Schools in Laie.

LAIE, Oahu, Oct. 5, 1874.

President Brigham Young:

Thinking you would like to know how I am progressing with my department of the Hawaiian Mission, I send you the following report.

I am very happy to state that, after unremitting perseverance, I have succeeded in establishing a good English school on Laie.

We arrived here on the 3rd of June, 1873. On the 16th I commenced my school with four native children. In a few days the number increased to seven. Since the first of January, 1874, the average daily attendance has been twenty. On the 16th of June, just one year from the opening of my school, I had a public examination and exhibition. There were present one of the school agents of this district, the district judge, many of the parents and friends of the pupils, also Bro's. Mitchell, Cluff and Richards, and sister Mitchell. The number of pupils present was 24, including three of Bro. M.'s children.

The exercises consisted of spelling, reading, writing, mental and written arithmetic, and geography, also recitations and dialogues and singing. The examination lasted five hours, including a short intermission at noon. During the whole of the time there was not a failure. The native children deported themselves in a manner that would have been creditable to a more enlightened people. Bro. Mitchell's little girls have attended the school from its commencement. They have made rapid progress in their studies. They passed a good examination of a higher grade than the natives, and were quite a help to me in getting up the exhibition. They also played a number of pieces on the organ, which added much to the entertainment. At the close of the examination, Bros. Mitchell and Cluff, the school agent, the district judge, and other leading men of the place, made some very appropriate addresses to the pupils and their parents. All expressed themselves well pleased with the progress the pupils had made in their English studies, and encouraged them to continue at the school. Bro. Mitchell has done all in his power to make the school a success. He has talked to the people, both in public and private, telling them of the advantages to be derived from an English education. The rest of the brethren have rendered what assistance they could.

Financially the school has not been a success; those who patronize it are generally poor, and after having paid government and school taxes, and getting the common necessaries of life, they have but little left for the payment of school bills. I charge them twenty cents per week per scholar, which is five cents cheaper than other schools of the same grade that have assistance from the government. But I am here on a mission to benefit the people all I can, and not to oppress them by charging exorbitant prices for what I do for them. I only want a living, and that in the most economical style.

As all or nearly all of the English schools are receiving subsidies from the government, Brother Mitchell thought it advisable for me to apply to the Board of Education for some assistance. I did so, and corresponded with the President of said Board. He replied that when the present session of the Legislature closed, they would have a meeting, and my case would be considered.

Not long since I was in Honolulu, and called on Dr. J. M. Smith, the Secretary of the Board of Education. I had a very pleasant interview with him; I gave him a report of my school, with which he was much pleased, and said he would do all he could to procure assistance for me. Since that time I have received a letter from him, stating that he had presented my case to the Board at its meeting, that it was duly considered, and that my efforts to promote the educational interests of the country were duly appreciated, but the means at present under its control would not permit of any new outlays, and that the strictest economy would have to be exercised to meet its present numerous obligations.

I venture to add a few words about our Sunday school. Our average attendance is fifty, ranging from five to fifty years of age. I have a class of three boys and nine girls who read in the English Testament. They are learning well, and are punctual in attendance. With the exception of two, they are pupils from my day school.

The children and people, as far as I know, feel well towards me, and as they express it, "Aloha nui ia oe." They wish me to remain with them. I make it a special point to study their character, in order to know what course to pursue with them to result in the most good I am well pleased with my mission here; the time passes very pleasantly; the climate agrees with my health; I am not in the least degree home sick, and am willing to remain here as long as I can do good to the people, or as long as I am desired to stay.

Brother Alma L. Smith has arrived. He is well and feeling well.

Our Conference commences to-morrow. We are all here now; the young brethren have returned from their fields of labor on the other islands, to attend Conference. They are feeling well. We are all well and in excellent spirits.

Please remember me kindly to your family and the brethren in the offices.

May peace and prosperity ever attend you.

M. E. RANDALL.

A curious case of self-accusation on the part of a daughter to save a guilty father from the gallows as reported from Kingston, Canada. Elizabeth Jones, who was convicted of manslaughter six years ago on her own confession of having killed her cousin, for whose murder her father was executed, has confessed that her father committed the crime for which she suffered, and that she accused herself of the murder to shield him and at his desire.
