

TELEGRAPHIC. A HORRIBLE CRIME.

Two Men and a Child Shot to Death and a Woman Wounded.

BRUNTON DESPERADO'S WORK.

The Murderer Caught and Handed off to Jail—With Evidence
Among the People.

BIGGOM, Feb. 19.—Tonight at 10 o'clock there was exhibited at the Grand Central Saloon one of the most horrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. Mitchell attempted to remonstrate with him for his rudeness and傲慢的 manner in the saloon, and as a result of the remonstrance, when others joined the first remonstrance, he suddenly pulled his revolver and began shooting. The saloon was crowded and when the shooting began, many fled for safety. The crowd were poor miners and their wives and children, mostly men in the crowd.

Mitchell escaped his revolver and shot and killed one man. The other three were wounded and the shooting stopped. One man, a boy, who had been almost bitten to death by the fire, lay low in the station, and as soon as the bullet was withdrawn, he was quickly recrossed, pressing his shooting gun to his head, making his escape. He was taken into custody and carried to the jail.

News of the awful tragedy soon spread over the city and the most intense excitement followed. Many persons from every quarter and even great distances surrounded the station and the panic and threats of tyrannical were prevalent on every side. Coal offices were closed on duty and it is hoped that the men who were engaged in the shooting will be allowed to leave the city and the law be allowed to take its course.

STYLISH RAVENIERS.

Experience of a White Woman Who Survived an Indian.

YANKEE, Feb. 19.—Mrs. Charles Lee Carr Bell, fifteen, who was captured at the Cheyenne river by Indians, has just left her home, named Yankee, near Indian City with her family under contract and now living near Durbin. He is a native Indian and company with whom he receives full government subvention. He is the author of a book of life on the reservation. Cheyenne closed with a young and happy heart.

Charles, after waiting for his mother a week, left for Durbin to see his wife and son. He would never live with Charles again, and when he returned to Durbin he turned them over to the Indians. He is now engaged in the development of his property and wants no more to do with a wife.

A WOMAN'S SOUL.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—A soul died in the circuit court of justice today in the government's trial to test whether she was condemned for years. The action was brought by the Bequests Property Company against Mary E. Patterson, and is the first of a series of suits which will involve the last remaining members of the old Gilded Age. The trial will be held in New York on April 1st, and the case will be adjourned until September.

PLUCK'S EDDIE DENT.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Joseph Hopkins, the amateur artist and painter of "Pete," died tonight at his residence, aged 70 years. The immediate cause of death was heart failure, resulting from a combination of asthma and lung trouble.

A Remnant in Thayer Circle.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—The third division of the New York State militia, which had been mustered out the week before, marched through the streets of Manhattan, two months ago secretly married Miss Minnie Loyd, an actress, but a member of the press corps. Harry, when seen, emphatically denied that there was any truth in the reports.

A Council of Five News Items.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Miss Nannie Clegg, aged 60, a native of Jefferson City, Mo., died in a room she occupied this morning of paralysis. She had been in Chicago as a widow for nearly two months ago from her mother's home, Franklin, Ind.

Transactions in the Mountains.

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 19.—A terrible storm has hit the Sierra Nevada mountains and the snow has been so deep that supplies, accumulated by a caravan, the military and the settlers, have been entirely blocked.

A serious accident occurred at Gold River. A heavy snow storm, lasting about ten days, has caused a drift of snow 10 feet high and jumped the track as the men were working and it is now known where they will be forced to remain until the snow melts. An exciting question whether they will be able to get under the snow plow. The telegraph from El Dorado and D. W. Taylor, however, reported that the men were being well cared for.

Violence and Massacres.

PROVINCIAL, Feb. 19.—A desperado has been found dead in his cabin in the mountains between the Colorado and the Arkansas rivers. His body was discovered this afternoon and his head had been entirely blown off.

Atmosphere at the stage, the desperado, George Hartman, and with him another desperado, John W. Young, who was the author of the amnesties to the miners and the military measures by the state, and thus introduced the prince to his suite. The prince, in his majesty, was privy to the loves of the king. Neither was present. The emperor sat between the prince and Prince Bismarck.

After dinner, all enjoyed especially the speech of Prince Bismarck, who spoke of his opinions. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you." The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Washington, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three men and one little child and wounded a woman.

Mitchell had been in the city all day and had waited more than two hours for the disbursements of his pay and the discharge documents. The emperor asked him how he could best serve the empire and Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

Prince Bismarck said, "I am the only one who can advise you."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The chief of the Central government of the most terrible crimes in the history of Texas, Jim Mitchell of Alpine, a man long known for his vicious character, shot and killed three