

NEWS OF THE DAY.

A Washington special to a Chicago paper says that a debate on the admission of Colorado developed strong opposition, and that the chances for an enabling act are not very good.

A number of northerners residing at Shreveport, La., have issued a card declaring totally false the recent report of Merrill to Sheridan, about the ostracism of the blacks, &c., in that portion of Louisiana.

East river, N. Y., is bridged over with ice.

The Mexican government has expelled the Sisters of Charity from the republic.

It is said that the difficulty between Turkey and Montenegro has been compromised.

The new Spanish King has sent autograph letters to the principal European monarchs, announcing that he will rule Spain on constitutional principles.

The people of Rome gave Garibaldi an enthusiastic reception yesterday.

The French authorities have made a seizure of Carlist arms on the frontier.

King Alfonso has issued proclamations to the Basque provinces and Navarre and to the army, informing them of the measures to be taken and what he expects from them.

The Senate railroad committee will report adversely on the Northern Pacific bill.

It is said that, during the present week, the Senate will report on the recognition of the Kellogg government will be introduced in the U. S. Senate.

James Myers committed suicide at Collinsville, Mo., by shooting himself with a revolver.

A fire at Pekin, Ill., did $50,000 damage; ditto at Hunter's Point, N. Y., $30,000; ditto at Fort Leavenworth, $30,000; ditto at Oswego, Wis., $10,000; ditto at Hartford, Conn., $10,000.

Immense damage to shipping by a storm in British waters.

Some damage to the Navy Department at Washington, D. C., was caused by fire, this morning.

NEWS NOTES.

A bill for the suppression of cock fighting has been introduced in the Indiana Legislature.

E. L. Davenport, the well known actor, published a strong protest against Sunday amusements and athletic performances.

The fisheries on the coast of Scotland during the past season have yielded more than $50,000,000 of herrings.

Carl Schurz says it is fortunate for the nation that some men in public life are constitutionally protected from the presidential fever.

Fresh paint on the walls of St. George's Hall, Liverpool, affected Von Bulow, the pianist, so much that he played badly.

A jaw eight feet long has just been unearthed in Wisconsin. It is supposed to have belonged to a lady of the miocene age.

Patti, on her appearance at Moscow, was presented with five stars of rubies and diamonds. Two thousand bouquets were thrown to her during the night and she was called before the curtain sixty times.

Minnesota is to be congratulated. Her Governor has signed the embarrasment which have suspended the industries of other states have affected ours but little.

Louisville has the most extensive plow factory in the country. It employs a large number of hands, and makes over a hundred thousand plows yearly.

A New York correspondent of the Chicago Journal says it is believed that many persons have endeavored to go on the Tilton-Beecher jury with the belief that large amounts would, if necessary, be paid by both parties to secure votes in their favor.

A useful and much needed invention has been patented, a fountain pen, which by the pressure of the thumb on a small rubber ball, projects a stream of ink from the holder and into the face of the person who is looking over your shoulder while you are writing.

A Mrs. Lord, of New Haven, a very fleshy lady, broke one of her legs in a very singular manner the other day. She had been suffering from pain in the limb for some time, and the bone gave way simply from the weight of her body.

"Hard times" do not seem to affect literature as disastrously as might be supposed. The holiday trade of the bookstores throughout the country was particularly good, being generally from ten to twenty-five per cent. above that of last year.

Mr. Charles Calvert, under whose direction "Henry V." will be produced at Booth's, is manager of the Theatre Royal, Manchester. Mr. Calvert is a very successful actor, and "Henry V." will be the part of "Fluellen," the Welshman, in N. Y. Herald.

The admission of Colorado.

The senatorial caucus that was recently held to decide what legislation should be had at the present session of Congress brought up the question of the admission of Colorado and New Mexico. It was openly and sharply stated that, in view of the dangerous reduction of the republican majority in the Senate, the admission of new States was desirable. It was objected in regard to Colorado that it was a Democratic Territory and that, therefore, it ought not to be admitted lest it might give the Democrats a majority in the Senate.

The "great principles of the republic" shine through these beautiful proceedings with a fresh and dazzling glitter. States are not to be admitted on the basis of their political complexion, but on the basis of their fitness to be admitted.

The "great principles of the republic" shine through these beautiful proceedings with a fresh and dazzling glitter. States are not to be admitted on the basis of their political complexion, but on the basis of their fitness to be admitted.

The "great principles of the republic" shine through these beautiful proceedings with a fresh and dazzling glitter. States are not to be admitted on the basis of their political complexion, but on the basis of their fitness to be admitted.

The "great principles of the republic" shine through these beautiful proceedings with a fresh and dazzling glitter. States are not to be admitted on the basis of their political complexion, but on the basis of their fitness to be admitted.

The "great principles of the republic" shine through these beautiful proceedings with a fresh and dazzling glitter. States are not to be admitted on the basis of their political complexion, but on the basis of their fitness to be admitted.

The "great principles of the republic" shine through these beautiful proceedings with a fresh and dazzling glitter. States are not to be admitted on the basis of their political complexion, but on the basis of their fitness to be admitted.

The "great principles of the republic" shine through these beautiful proceedings with a fresh and dazzling glitter. States are not to be admitted on the basis of their political complexion, but on the basis of their fitness to be admitted.

The "great principles of the republic" shine through these beautiful proceedings with a fresh and dazzling glitter. States are not to be admitted on the basis of their political complexion, but on the basis of their fitness to be admitted.

THE CASE OF DELEGATE CANNON.

THE SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE has the following dispatch dated Washington, Jan. 20—

"The minority report from the committee on elections in the case of Mr. Cannon of Utah, recommends that the committee be discharged from further consideration of the subject. The report goes at length into a statement of the relations of a delegate to the House, and argues that Cannon has all the rights and privileges of a member. It is contended that members should not be expelled for political reasons, or on account of the existence of political societies in the Territory or State they represent. Nor should they be punished for alleged indulgence in such practices, except after a hearing in a Court of justice. Mr. Cannon is charged with being the first delegate that has been guilty of polygamy, admitting this to be the fact, and that it is intended to strike a blow at Mormonism, is it good policy to strike the blow in this way, by expelling a delegate? The fact that the House recently admitted delegates representing Mormonism, should relieve Mr. Cannon from expulsion. As to the charge that Mr. Cannon married his fourth wife subsequent to the passage of the act of July, 1874, which declared polygamy a felony, the minority says it goes for naught, because Mr. Cannon had been convicted, either under that act or what is known as the Poland law. The House should not convict him in advance of the action of the Courts. The report also sets forth the fact that Mr. Cannon is not under an indictment in the Courts of Utah for polygamy, and contends that it would be an act of gross injustice to prejudice his case; besides it is a serious question whether the subject of expulsion on moral or immoral grounds should be entertained, and the report puts the very pertinent question, 'If the House is to inquire into the moral fitness of its members, where will the inquiry stop?' This report is signed only by Mr. Harrison, but other members of the minority, Messrs. Lamar, Crossland, Spear and Thomas, concur in the recommendation that the committee be discharged from further consideration of the case, and that they fully endorse all of Mr. Harrison's views."

A HAPPY MAN.—A short time ago Rev. H. W. Beecher told his Plymouth Church people that heaven was the next place to Plymouth Church, and those were the only two places for him. More recently, at a Friday night's prayermeeting, he said to his congregation that, instead of being a poor suffering creature, he was "probably the happiest man in the room," that he had rolled off his burdens and was "certain of glory and salvation in God."

IF H. W. B. is a malignant and innocent man he has no cause to be otherwise than happy. But some of the newspaper men seem to be slightly incredulous over the gentleman's expressions of joy in his present situation and his certainty of salvation. The New York Sun comments in the following style—

"The Plymouth church people are both joyful and thankful, while their pastor is mysterious. There is one thing, however, that will be joyful, and that is the theory of the old adage, 'I am always happy.'"

At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

"At the Friday evening lecture Mr. Beecher himself was remarkably mysterious. 'I wish I could say that I was happy,' he said. 'Well, really, we are unable to say why he could not have said it. As he went on talking a good while, and he looked every now and then at the audience, we concluded he said what he didn't want to.'

By Telegraph.

PER WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH LINE.

LAST NIGHT'S DISPATCHES.

EASTERN.
$600,000 Fire.

NEW YORK, 24.—Market's vanishing factory, at Hunter's Point, with 2,000 barrels of vanilla, were burned last night; loss $60,000, insured.

It is rumored in Brooklyn that one of the jurors in the Beecher case was drinking with one of the counsel on Friday night.

Will Report Adversely on the M. P. R. R.—The Kellogg Government is to be recognized—The Chicago News.

WASHINGTON, D. C., 24.—The Senate committee on railroads, yesterday, decided to report adversely on the Northern Pacific bill and all others referred to them proposing government aid or a subsidy on the Pacific coast.

It is said by one of the most prominent republican senators that during the present week a joint resolution will be introduced recognizing the Kellogg government, and the House committee on Indian affairs have before them an act of the Cherokee legislature, authorizing the Cherokee delegation to negotiate with the government a loan of one hundred thousand dollars, to be repaid by the proceeds of the Arkansas river and south of Kansas. It is represented that this loan is necessary to keep the Cherokee people from suffering during the present winter, in consequence of the destruction of their crops by cholera and measles.

$30,000 Fire.

ST. LOUIS, 24.—Twelve of the largest stores at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, were burned yesterday; loss about $30,000. Seven hundred head of horses were in the building, but were all rescued without harm. The fire was the work of an incendiary.

Suicide.

CINCINNATI, 24.—James Myers committed suicide, early this morning, by throwing himself under a passing train on the Cincinnati and Richmond railroad, just as the train was leaving the Collinsville station; two wheels passed over his body, and he was instantly killed. His motive was unknown.

Supposed Murder.

The body of a man was found on the railroad track near Cumminsville, Mo., on Saturday. The body was mutilated, having been run over by a train. The supposition was that it was the body of a tramp, but the coroner's inquest brought out the fact that it was the body of Herman Gripe, aged 31, a resident of this city, who had started for St. Louis, on Friday night, on the Cincinnati and Richmond railroad, and was found on the track near Cumminsville, Mo., on Saturday. The body was mutilated, having been run over by a train. The supposition was that it was the body of a tramp, but the coroner's inquest brought out the fact that it was the body of Herman Gripe, aged 31, a resident of this city, who had started for St. Louis, on Friday night, on the Cincinnati and Richmond railroad, and was found on the track near Cumminsville, Mo., on Saturday.

Shot Dead.

LOUISVILLE, 24.—A special to the Courier-Journal says that William Rochester, son of Col. W. A. Rochester, of Danville, who is a very prominent citizen of Ky., was shot and killed by a party of men on Friday night, at the "Lantern Hotel," there are rumors as to the origin of the quarrel, it being said that the young Rochester made a movement as if to draw a pistol, when Miller shot him.

Dead.

PHILADELPHIA, 24.—Captain Thomas C. Harris, of the United States navy, died this a.m. at the naval asylum, after a brief illness.

Killed.

NEW ORLEANS, 24.—W. A. Webb (colored), a negro, was shot and killed by a party of men on Friday night, at the "Lantern Hotel," there are rumors as to the origin of the quarrel, it being said that the young Rochester made a movement as if to draw a pistol, when Miller shot him.

$30,000 Fire.

MILWAUKEE, 24.—Fowler's mill, on the Milwaukee river, was burned yesterday morning; loss $30,000, insured.

$150,000 Fire.

HARTFORD, Ct., 24.—St. Patrick's church was burned early this morning; it was valued at $150,000, insured for $75,000. The walls are standing, and will probably have to be taken down. The building will be replaced at once.

WESTERN.

Heavy Shock of Earthquake—Indiana Relief for Marysville—Excitement at Los Angeles.

SAN FRANCISCO, 24.—Dispatches from Butte, Montana, and Sierra counties report a heavy shock of earthquake at four o'clock this morning.

Yesterday the bandit Vasquez was sentenced to be hung, March 19th; the motion for a new trial was denied.

Indian Affairs are very threatening in the neighborhood of Hiko, Nevada, and it has been found necessary to remove families from Lahannah valley to Hiko, the military and police for safety. It has been ascertained that the Indians themselves, that since last July fifteen white men have been killed by savages in the neighborhood, and that lately they have been driving off cattle. The settlers in the valley think they will attempt to carry their threat to drive the whites from the valley entirely. Application has been made at Hiko for men and arms to meet the people. Hiko. Relief is being forwarded from all parts of the State to the Marysville sufferers.

There is much excitement in Los Angeles over the proposed change in the route of the Southern Pacific Railroad.

FOREIGN.

FRANCE.

PARIS, 24.—The French authorities on the Spanish frontier have sent a convoy of arms for the Carlists.

MEXICO.

CITY OF MEXICO, 17, via Havana.

The Diario officially denies the signing of any document with the English, adding that such a contract never will be signed.

AUSTRIA.

VIENNA, 24.—The Montenegrin difficulty has been compromised; the citizens of Montenegro are to be tried at Cetinje; the evidence of the Turkish witnesses in the case will be taken at the frontier town of Spuz.

ITALY.

The People Welcome Garibaldi!—Civita Vecchia yesterday evening, and was received by the most enthusiastic demonstrations by the people, and a torchlight procession.

The General arrived to-day in Rome, and was met at the railway station by the Mayor and members of the municipal council. Several workmen's societies formed a procession with bands and escorted the old hero to his hotel. Immense crowds lined the streets and cheered with the wildest enthusiasm as the General passed. No disorder of any kind marred the demonstrations.

TO-DAY'S DISPATCHES.

CONGRESSIONAL.

SENATE.

Polaris Rejected Bill.

WASHINGTON, 25.—The bill for relief of the Polaris passed.

The Louisiana discussion was resumed, and Johnson addressed the Senate.

EASTERN.

Colorado's Chance of Admission.

CHICAGO, 25.—The Inter-Ocean's Washington special says the debate over the admission of Colorado developed strong opposition, and that the chances for an enabling act are not very good.

More Testimony from Irwin.

WASHINGTON, 25.—The way and means committee, to-day, questioned Irwin as to what service the various persons employed by him rendered.

Logan, the "Wild Irishman," on his Feet.

Pranced there in upon the arena of the great debate, like a trick mule in a circus, or a spavined nightmare upon the track of a buffeted dragoon.

NEW DEPARTMENT ON FIRE.

About half past twelve this afternoon a fire broke out in the upper story of the navy department building, and for some time burned fiercely, but it is now apparently under control.

BORN.

The wife of Mr. J. L. Grundman, of the 11th ward of this city, gave birth to a son, Jan. 24. Mother and child are doing well.

DIED.

At Fillmore City, N. Y., Jan. 18th, after a protracted illness caused by rheumatism, succeeded by dropsy, L. E. LYMAN, youngest daughter of Edward and Lydia Partridge.

NEW YORK, 25.—Judge Mansuetti, a prominent citizen of New York, died yesterday morning, after a brief illness.

NEW YORK, 25.—The City of New York, after a protracted illness, died yesterday morning, after a brief illness.

NEW YORK, 25.—The City of New York, after a protracted illness, died yesterday morning, after a brief illness.

NEW YORK, 25.—The City of New York, after a protracted illness, died yesterday morning, after a brief illness.

NEW YORK, 25.—The City of New York, after a protracted illness, died yesterday morning, after a brief illness.

NEW YORK, 25.—The City of New York, after a protracted illness, died yesterday morning, after a brief illness.

NEW YORK, 25.—The City of New York, after a protracted illness, died yesterday morning, after a brief illness.

NEW YORK, 25.—The City of New York, after a protracted illness, died yesterday morning, after a brief illness.

NEW YORK, 25.—The City of New York, after a protracted illness, died yesterday morning, after a brief illness.

NEW YORK, 25.—The City of New York, after a protracted illness, died yesterday morning, after a brief illness.

NEW YORK, 25.—The City of New York, after a protracted illness, died yesterday morning, after a brief illness.

NEW YORK, 25.—The City of New York, after a protracted illness, died yesterday morning, after a brief illness.

NEW YORK, 25.—The City of New York, after a protracted illness, died yesterday morning, after a brief illness.