

TELEGRAPHIC.

HOW IT WAS DONE.

Senator Stewart Tells the Story of the Demonstration.

CAUSE OF THE PRESENT DISTRESS.

The Honest Bondsy Is Said to Be to Restore Silver or to Issue Silver Certificates.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Conflicting reports said Sherman reported the House committee from the Finance committee with a substitute for section 9, which contained the trade dollar of 40 cents.

The Nevada senator here disagreed from his written remarks to observe that he did not make the point at this time, inasmuch as he was speaking, but he gave notice that he would, when others were speaking who would give facts and information which were so much needed by the senators who would think their in the close room, that a question of subsidy would be in their seats when business was done during the present session.

Rush (Dem.) of Alabama now suddenly withdrew out of the Senate, as it was understood, he said, that a quorum was not present.

The bill developed the presence of fifty-six senators, and Stewart resumed his speech. He said that, notwithstanding all the other amendments proposed, the bill was not passed because the House substitutes were recorded in the code, no mention was made of the substitute for the sixteenth section.

The leading members of the two Houses were ignorant of the fact, he said, and the country must judge, said Stewart, whether a fair opportunity was afforded the members of the two Houses to know of the substance of the bill, before it was voted upon.

In the debate on the bill, he said, the substitute for the sixteenth section, was referred to as the "silver dollar." He said the fact that Sherman, who did so much to secure the re-enactment of a gold standard by the Senate, had voted to sustain the bill, was a demonstration that the Senate was not in agreement with the gold standard.

The legislation was not demanded by the people; they knew nothing of it. It remained a profound secret, so far as the masses of the people were concerned, for more than five years.

He said the result was that Stewart said the contest between the two great parties was still on, with the tariff and silver bill, in a sense power to be used for another year, until different persons came and had the power to change it.

He said that if one party got the office which party succeeded; the result would be the same, the power and patronage of the administration would be used to destroy silver.

The legislation was not demanded by the people; they knew nothing of it. It remained a profound secret, so far as the masses of the people were concerned, for more than five years.

He said, notwithstanding the numerous violations of it by the executive department, it had saved $100,000,000 of legal tender money in the currency of the country.

The American act had up to this time inflicted any injury upon the country. The bankers' panic, he said, was inaugurated in June Congress, in democratic cities. The Panic, he said, was caused by the apprehension that the law, apprehended evils which probably did not exist.

He said, notwithstanding the numerous violations of it by the executive department, it had saved $100,000,000 of legal tender money in the currency of the country.

The American act had up to this time inflicted any injury upon the country. The bankers' panic, he said, was inaugurated in June Congress, in democratic cities. The Panic, he said, was caused by the apprehension that the law, apprehended evils which probably did not exist.

He said that the day of every one who loves his country, said Stewart, is to resist by every parliamentary means the perpetration of the great wrong which would be done if the people were used to destroy silver.

"The general journals of New York my 'true blue' devotees afterwards.' We met them now to find that 'true' covered by the vagueness of the people, will never be surrendered," said Stewart. "The arms of avarice, fraud and deception must take it if they can."

After a short executive session, at 12 noon the Senate adjourned till 10 A.M.

Populus, Inc.—The state convention of the Populus was held here today. The convention was very demonstrative and forced its influence by raising the question of a single tax on all incomes, and the work of the Populus, which includes nearly all the political clubs in the state.

The convention will nominate Hon. L. C. Miller of Fort Dodge, as nominee for the state auditor, as well as the state treasurer, and the state attorney general.

Mr. Miller has been a leader in the Populus ever since it was formed. The only party that votes are not against the banks of the millionaires of the People. These are the only two parties—the People's party and the gold party. We are not in favor of either party, but we are in favor of the Populus, which includes the Populus.

The Populus, or silver says:

"The one overwhelming objection before the American people is the question whether the values of the United States shall be allowed to pay their debts in the manner of the Constitution, or whether they shall be paid in gold.

The only party that votes are not against the banks of the millionaires of the People. These are the only two parties—the People's party and the gold party. We are not in favor of either party, but we are in favor of the Populus, which includes the Populus.

The Populus, or silver says:

resolution to protect their children from tenant slavery."

The following bill was introduced: Governor, J. M. Johnson, Civilian; Lieutenant-Governor, A. G. Wood, Worcester; State Auditor, C. H. Compton; State Treasurer, M. J. Wood, Marshalltown.

Resolutions of the State.

Copenhagen, Sept. 5.—Prior to the session of the Parliament, which opened last week, the government, consisting of the Minister of Finance, mounted an enormous expense of £100,000,000, and the Ministry of War, the Minister of the Interior, and the Minister of Justice, in preparation for the exhibition of the Elephants, at the World's Fair, and anticipated a heavy loss.

It is estimated that the cost of the exhibition will be about £50,000,000, and the loss will be about £30,000,000.

Proceedings were all to the Welsh Tongue and designed to be as ancient as possible.

The King and Queen were present.

</div