seem to favor a continuance of the war. The President certainly will not interfere unless both governments re-quest the use of his good offices." This statement, made by an official of the administration after the meeting of the cabinet, may be regarded as authoritative. It is understood that there was some informal discussion at the cabinet meeting based upon the dispatches and resolutions which have been received by the President urging him to take action which will bring about an end to the war. The cabinet is unanimously of the opinion that the United States is not concerned in the affairs of South Africa, and consequently would have no justification in intervening. Members of the cabinet say an effort is being made to make political capital out of the attitude of the President, whose action in refusing to interfere is being in-terpreted in some quarters as an indion of sympathy for Great Britain. The administration, it is stated, has pursued and is pursuing an attitude of strict neutrality, favoring neither one government nor the other. was said at the state department that this government has received no communication enclosing $3,500 for transmission to President Kruger, to be used by the Boer government in the prosecution of the war. It is stated by officials that it would be a breach of neutrality for the United States to transmit funds which, if intended for the use of the government in its military operations, are certainly contra-band and liable to seizure. The agent of this government at Pretoria is supplying the British pris-oners with funds placed at his dis-posal by the British government, but the proposition for the United States to forward money to the Boer govern-ment is an entirely different matter, and Secretary Hay will undoubtedly decline to act as an agent for any such purpose.

MORE COFFEE FACTS.

Study the Question Yourself.

"When the doctor said no more coffee,' I was dismayed, for as an ardent lover of coffee and a crank in the matter of its preparation, I had grown to believe that life was not worth living without it, but the dull stupidity and the almost daily headache so inter-fered with my profession (literature) that I was compelled to seek the doctor's advice.

"I saw an improvement from the start, but missed my morning bever-age and feit a great lack. It was at the home of a friend and Postum apostle, Mrs. ---- of Lonsdale, that I tasted my first Postum. Her family had sworn by it a year or more, and declared themselves, from the least to the greatest, benefited by its use,

"I was surprised to find it really palatable, and determined that I could improve on it myself. I purchased a box, and as we all do, on the first trial, made a lamentable failure of it, through insufficient bolling, and the Postum was poked away on an upper shelf, until the oft-reiterated newspaper state ments made me determine to try it again, with long boiling.

"I took twenty-five minutes to prepare it, about ten minutes to bring it up to a boil , and then allowed it to boil steadily for fifteen minutes, and from the first sip, I was enthusiastic over the new beverage, and even wanted a sec-ond cup. It has never palled upon me, morning or night. Nothing could induce me to go back to the berry coffee. The change Postum has wrought in me seems little short of miraculous. For the first time in many years, I am really well, my color has freshened, headache has not visited me for many weeks, and my ability for work has returned with all its old zest. FREE AND EASY ALASKA.

I was talking with one of the Alaskan representatives who are in Washington for the winter when the conversation turned upon social customs This particular gentleman has made his rich strike and is comfortably fixed for life and in Washington has been moving in the very best social circles. 'I tell you,' he said, "it makes a great difference to a man who has been accustomed to the easy ways of Alaska to come to Washington and have to pick up and observe all the little quirements of society. At home I am accustomed to dressing for comfort and not for appearances. Up there the leaders in society totally ignore the rigid rules of Washington, and everything is free and easy; here you have to dress for every occasion and for the different times of day. It is all right for a change, but for a steady thing give me the unconventionality of Alas-ka. Now, tonight, for instance. I have to 'dike' out to pay a little call, and, moreover, it is almost imperative that I go in a back or coupe. At home I would drop in just as I happened to be and, if it rained, instead of an umbrella, would don my rubber coat and waterproof hat and stalk off afoot. It spoils a man to live in an easy going ominualty like the one to which I have become accustomed, and I will be glad shough to get back and put saide formality to once more breathe freely and act without restraint.

M. K. Parsons yesterday sold his herd of steers numbering 2,500 to Ballantyne and Rockwell of Denver for something like $60,625, receiving $24.25 per head. This is perhaps the largest cattle deal ever consummated in Utah. The purchase has been guaranteed by the payment of $5 per head, the balance to paid at the date of delivery, which will be in the early part of May.

Mr. Rockwell manipulated his firm's and of the transaction and feels that he has made a wise purchase, being confident that the price of cattle will rise above the present figures.

The cattle sold by Mr. Parsons yes-terday came from the famous Sparks herd of yearlings, that he bought re-cently for about $22 per head. They are pure Herefords and in excellent condi-tion. They are at present on the Sparks tion. They are at present on the Sparks ranch near Wells, Nevada.

The new owners of these cattle will move them to their ranch near Debique, Colorado, in May, unless they are sold before that date. Ballantyne and Rockwell are in the habit of making such vast purchases as that of yesterday. They have now several deals on hand, each of which is as large as that of yesterday.
