

character as Orr also seized him and he was pulled about and maltreated by the beastly mob till his coat was torn to shreds. Officer Ringwood, who tried to protect him, was knocked down, trampled on and kicked, and for doing the same thing officer John Y. Smith was seized, pulled about, knocked around and finally arrested by those law-breaking U. S. deputy marshals, one of whom brandished a huge knife. There can be no doubt that had those infuriated fiends in human shape succeeded in dragging the Mayor into the crowd they would have murdered him, and yet there can be found individuals, calling themselves gentlemen, among them Federal officials, who gloated over the inhuman outrage.

After this the doors were closed for a few minutes, when Mayor Wells addressed the crowd from the balcony, commanding the peace and ordering the crowd to disperse or he would compel them to do so. The order was unheeded, and Chief of Police Burt, taking about seven or eight men with him, went to the front of the building, and, after having the doors closed behind them, repeated the order of the Mayor. Instead of its being heeded, a few of the mob made a movement toward him, when he headed his small force of men and commenced the work of dispersing the peace-breakers, and then it was seen what a lot of cowardly ruffians had been making the biggest row, for the valor of those loud-mouthed villains vanished in an instant, and in a short time those who had behaved the most conspicuously bad, were soon as still as mice, or at a respectful distance from danger.

It soon came out that warrants were out for the arrest of the whole of the police force who had not ready been arrested, and some of those who had warrants were served on the following—Andrew Burt, Jeter Clinton, B. Y. Hampton, Jas. Livingstone, C. Ringwood, W. G. Phillips and Charles Crow. The evident intention, after the polls were free from the guardianship of the police, was for the mob of deputy marshals and others to carry off the ballot-box, but in this they were foiled. After the polls were closed, Justice Clinton and the others named were taken to the U. S. Marshal's office under arrest. On the way there Mr. Clinton got some distance ahead of the others and he was mobbed on East Temple Street, by the "Liberals." To the credit of Major Bird and Mr. B. Lyons be it spoken that they did all in their power to protect Mr. Clinton from personal violence. Some of the "Liberal" mob called out, "String him up," and other such expressions. The others, who were some distance in the rear, then ran up and, although prisoners, supposed to be under the protection of deputy U. S. marshals, had to protect themselves and Justice Clinton from a mob, composed in part of deputy U. S. marshals.

No language would be too strong to depict the despicable, cowardly conduct of a parcel of cravens who would attack an aged gentleman who they thought was not in a position to protect himself against such odds, and who were aware that the City police force were under arrest, and thought by these miserable apologies for men to be unable to lend aid in protecting the defenceless.

There was one gentleman among the crowd of deputy U. S. Marshals, at least, that we know of, and we are ever a thousand times more ready to accord merited commendation than even justly deserved censure. We refer to deputy U. S. Marshal Smith, who was courteous and gentlemanly throughout in his demeanor, and several times expressed regret at the unlawful and uncalled for proceedings of the others.

The parties arrested, Captain Burt and officer Phillips, were placed under $1,000 bonds and the others under $300 bonds each, for their appearance next Wednesday, at 10 o'clock.
