Selected Poetry.

IN THE DAYS WHEN WE SHALL VOTE.

[Dedicated to the Penna. Woman's Suffrage society.]

BY M. S. BLADEN.

In the days when we shall vote,
Coming soon:
Men and women make a note
Of the time;
Of the time that we shall sing,
When our votes to poll we bring,
In the days when we shall vote coming soon

For the men who helped us then
In our need,
With their word, and purse, and pen,
And their deed,
We will muster full and strong;
We will bring our votes along,
In the days when we shall vote, coming soon.

And the women, too, who dared
To be strong;
Who for no censure cared
From the wrong;
But who boldly keep their place,
We'll take care to not disgrace,
In the days when we shall vote, coming soon.

May the papers that were true
To our aim,
Never see a cause to rue
We have won the game;
But find abundant sales
For their journals filled with tales
Of the days when we shall vote, coming soon.

FOREIGN NOTES.

After some time spent in experimenting and contriving, the new gun with which the German army is to be equipped has at last been completed, and the right of manufacturing it given to private establishments, in order to hasten a rapid supply. This weapon will carry about the distance of an English mile with a sure right. It can be made to shoot 26 rounds per minute, which is two more than the Wender gun has been able to accomplish. The weapon itself is very light and easy to be handled. As it is superior to either the Werder or Chassepot gun, it promises to accomplish the object for which it was made. It is understood to be the aim of the German government to furnish the army with this gun as soon as possible, so that at the expiration of three years at most the whole force will be completely equipped. Europe regards this peaceable proposition of the great power with anxious eyes.

From an article in the Paris Constitutionnel we learn that England has spent the following sums for her wars from the year 1688 to 1815, the period of her greatest power: 1. The war began in 1688 and concluded in 1697, by the treaty of Rysick, cost 900 millions. 2. The Spanish war of succession from 1702 1713 cost one milliard 503 millions 3 The Austrian war of succession, from 1739-1748, one milliard 350 millions. 4. The seven years' war, 1756 1763, two milliards 800 millions. 5. The American war, 1775-1783, three milliards 600 millions. 6. The war of the French Revolution, from 1793-1802, eleven milliards 597 millions. 7. The war with Napoleon, 1803 1815, twenty-five milliards 975 millions. The poor ratis kept almost even pace with the wars: In 1748 it was 12 000,000; in 1763, 25,000 - 000; in 1783, 43 000 000; in 1802, 88 000,-000; and in 1815, 137 000,000. Within these 153 years England has, therefore, had sixty-five years of war which have cost her seventy-two milliards 537 millions of francs. Of this sum, 51,725,-000,000 were met by the revenues of the country and only 20,210,000,000 by loans.

The English republican agitator, Bradelaugh, has written a letter to an American correspondent in London, giving his views of the progress and prospects of republican ideas in England. He says: English republican clubs will soon combine to form a national association. He does not favor an alliance with communists. In his opinion, it is perfectly lawful to dethrone the reigning family by Parliamentary means. Bradlaugh claims that republican ideas are having a steady growth throughout that country. If landed proprietors will make liberal concessions, he hopes the republic may be postponed, since he regards the land question as the real battle field in Great Britain. He says:—"The agricultural laborers have been aroused by hunger and misery from political lethargy. Empty bellies think fiercely, and it will require much more than a Bishop of Gloucester's sneer at agitators, or a Duke of Marlborough's threat against malcontents, to check this movement among farm laborers. One of them told me the other day, 'There are hundreds of us who want to join you, if you will come among us and tell us how.'" Bradlaugh concludes by advocating perfect religious freedom.
