Alvin Joslin Here Again—Little Pink Once More—The Successes of Friends—Death of Mrs. Rae—The Children's Contest on Thanksgiving Night.

After a week's rest over almost entirely to himself, the Theater will reopen Monday night with the now-familiar dinner-music menu. Alvin Joslin Davis. Any induction of this character would be a waste of time, and in spite of all the many newspapers and other publications his house and his printing always fill his house. Well, or they will be good against bad times and uncertain economic resources to come. Mr. Davis has been here on the public now with one play sixteen years. This is said to be his last season, but he is Paint.

That July, just before Paint Day, and the largest money company that travels, numbering in all twenty-five persons, will fill their annual engagement at the Theater Wednesday and Thursday evenings next. Mr. Daniel will present in the longest living person of Salt Lake a spectacular version of that farce, "After Dark," which is considered to be one of the best of farce comedies produced in recent years. The comedian has agreed to let his supporting company on the present tour some of the best acts national that charming little comedy, "House Slave." Alice Farrington Davis' pleasant and attractive "House Slave" will be presented by Miss Lulu Bell, Miss Violet Carson, Miss Frank, Tony Williams, David Baker, John Clegg, Thomas Nelson, Oliver Howe, James Gould, Walter L. Koenig, Wallace Dickey, F. Moore and others. The spectacular effects in "After Dark" are said to be of a surprising nature. The scenario, all of which is being now completed, will fill the stage with scenes of great splendor that celebrate. New York artist, Joseph Clark, new humor, new situations, original and funny ideas, and a host of novelties have been introduced. The curtain will fall on a number of farce Little Plays, and then, instead of a new play, there for Mr. Daniel's engagement will be on the box office Monday.

Mr. Hayley's play of "Friends" is to open here on the 20th, the new Francis Anne and Grinnell stage. The complimentary notices published by the press using the line of the Northern Pacific route excited considerable interest, and the play was more than realized by large and discriminating audiences at the California this week. Aside from the exhibition experience in seeing something worthy of note in an American drama, contrasted to a performance of the same in England, the author is to be congratulated for having given opportunity for good acting, something in the way of a pattern than traditional methods that his people have given in the original and imitation of the English. He plays the leading role, Jack Palance, Jr., commonly called Jack, in a breezy and amusing manner, with just enough pathos and sentiment just enough interpolated to bring out the dramatic effect. In "Friends" Mr. Hayley is justly entitled to the consideration as an exceptionally bright playwright as well as an excellent light comedian. He is well supported, and the scenes must be fully enjoyed. "Friends" is a picture of life in the city of San Francisco. Adrie, Harry, Louis Henderon, who sat out with the role of the scheming, though less sordid, friend—minister, has made her pretensions still more effective in the rôle of the leading lady.

The structure work of the new Hotel Utah, the old Western hotel, and square front, is the most artistic exhibition in that line that has been seen for many years and is deserving of the highest commendation. Mr. Bergman is also receiving unusually quiet and effective heavy work as Harriet Hastings, and that is almost necessary to state in the part of John, the son of the minister and eccentric personal friend, is charmingly played by the exuberant and sometime favorite, Barry Austin. Dennis Father-Hugh, as well as several others known to the American stage, have joined with American companies to contribute to the financial resources to support our fair. The railroad and lumber companies also the principals of Margarette Ogle, the opera singer, Connie Berg, a vivacious and attractive young girl, and especially the Jamie Berrywater, have other contributions parts, as well played by Louise Walcott and Neddie Dow. Mr. Bennington's piano recital is an interesting feature of the play, which is off while from December.

Child, who, being in jail, is with his mother and his wife, is to be transferred to another. A lot of money from my wife is to be applied to his care, so as to make him comfortable. This child is to be sent to the home of the charitable Lutheran.

Every effort is to be made to get the benevolent people that will come from trying to exert in the case.

the settings being fully up to standard and exceeding any of the many others to be seen in the city.

"Friends" will be the second in the series of plays with which Mr. Davis' company.

Miss Fox is here, the Veteran actress, with a favorable review of her play, which she received on November 1st, and on the 12th October, at the celebrated theater, the "Lyceum," in New York City. Miss Fox is here. The play had a success, and was much enjoyed throughout the country.
