

TERRITORIAL COURTS AND JUDGES.

DEBATE IN THE U. S. SENATE, APRIL 17, 1874.

[CONCLUDED.]

That is all.

Mr. MERRIMON. I think that is right.

Mr. CONKLING. That is another question, whether the Senator thinks that is right or not; but he went on to argue that the districts ought to be fixed by the Legislature, that the place of holding the courts ought to be fixed by the Legislature, and so on, and so on.

Now it turns out that the House bill has not one syllable or one letter on that subject, but is confined wholly to a provision authorizing the Legislature, hit or miss, to send every man where it pleases to the districts which have been constituted.

Now what is to be the effect of that practically? Either the Legislature is to go on without consulting with the judges, or else it is to do it in connection with the judges, they being, as every lawyer understands, far more able to do this, if they act sincerely, than anybody else can be. If it is to be done in connection with the judges, then it becomes matter of legislative persuasion, it becomes matter in which members of the bar are asked to take position, and that is the question of preference in districts may be settled to please them.

I say, Mr. President, that if it be true that such questions must be carried to the Legislature, it will be time enough to carry them there when the judges have shown so little manhood, so little sense, so little fitness for their places that they cannot adjust that in themselves—a thing which among all other courts and among all other men without difficulty.

But my purpose was simply to bring to the knowledge of the Senate the fact that the House bill conferred no power upon the Legislature to bound or fix districts or locate courts or do anything in the world save only to transmit the judges to particular districts, that is all. Now, in lieu of that comes the amendment of the Senate committee. I see the Senate from Pennsylvania rising to renew his motion for an executive session; but before taking my seat I wish to say to the Senator that I think if he would withhold his motion until as would be necessary to enable a vote to be taken on this subject, it would be useful, as I understand from the judges themselves that there is occasion for some expedition in this matter.

Mr. CAMERON. Before I renew my motion.

Mr. SARGENT. I ask the Senator to allow me to reply to a remark made by the Senator who has just taken his seat.

Mr. CAMERON. I only wish to say to the Senate that I believe if we adjourn upon this question the calendar will come up to-morrow as a matter of course. I now renew my motion.

Mr. HAMILTON, of Maryland. Allow me to ask, if we adjourn now, will the calendar be in order to-morrow?

The President pro tempore. It will.

Mr. HAMILTON, of Maryland. I mean is there an arrangement or agreement about the calendar to-morrow?

The President pro tempore. It will come up on calendar without a motion. The Senator from Pennsylvania moves that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to. Congressional Record.

April 8. The Senate, in its committee of the whole, considered the consideration of the bill (H. R. No. 1385) providing for the assignment of judges in the Territories.

Mr. WADSWORTH, of New York, in opposition to the bill, moved that it be recommitted to the committee on the Judiciary.

The President pro tempore. The Senator from Iowa, moves to recommit the bill. Is there objection?

Mr. SARGENT. I do not make any objection, but ask that an amendment which the President pro tempore has proposed be attached to the original bill may accompany it back to the committee and may be printed.

The President pro tempore. If there be no objection, the bill will be recommitted to the committee on the Judiciary, and the proposed amendment will be referred to that committee and ordered to be printed. Congressional Record.

Hollister's Four Hundred.

A Utah correspondent sends us an account of a raid made on the people of Sanpete county in the Territory, by Deputy United States marshals acting under orders from the Federal Ring in Utah, which has resulted in numerous arrests of honest farmers and the seizure of the property of the same.

The people of Sanpete county are mostly Europeans by birth, and have always been accustomed to the use of beer as a beverage. Every year has been his own brewer, growing the wheat and barley which he makes into malt, and which, with the addition of wild hops, is made into a tolerably palatable beer, but the Federal Ring, for the purpose of getting the farmers to give up the brewing, have been sending out the contents of an ordinary wash tub being the largest quantity of material converted into beer of any one time. It has been necessary for the farmers to buy beer of the one when their barrels run low, and sometimes to purchase a small quantity of beer from the nearest salaried agent of the Federal Ring, who has been sending out the contents of an ordinary wash tub being the largest quantity of material converted into beer of any one time.

For this the unfortunate Sanpete farmers have been punished upon by the vigilant representatives of the United States Government, and quite a number of them have been mulcted in penalties varying from $50 to $200, on the ground that they were "brewing" beer, and that they were not complying with the law relating to the manufacture of malt liquors.

At the next session of the District Court some hundred cases of this kind will be tried, and when the majority of the law will doubtless be fully vindicated. In the meantime, in consequence of the judicial action, a great deal of the malted barley has been sent to the Federal Ring, and the Federal Ring, in consequence of the judicial action, a great deal of the malted barley has been sent to the Federal Ring.
