WARHINGTON, 10. — Considera tion of the river and harbor appro tion of the river and harbor appropriation bill was resumed, and Cockrill favored the appropriation for the Mississippi river improvement commission, and said a thorough survey was first necessary.

Blaine, Alison and Withers were made new confreres on the army appropriation bill, and the Henate resumed the river and harbor bill.

Supposer said it now appropriates Spencer said it now appropriates $8,252,700; as it came from the House it appropriated $7,300,000.

Sargent called for the yeas and uays on the amendment increasing the appropriation for the harbor of harieston, S. C., from $5,000 to $200,000.

$200,000.

The committee's amendments were agreed to, reducing the appropriation for the Galveston harbor from $125,000 to $50,000; striking out the appropriations of $7,500 for improving the White and et. Francis rivers, Arkansas; increasing the appropriation for improving the Act of the South wants.

Next, it is thought by many of our new and old friends that it would be a wise and powerful policable or for Governor Hayes to call to his cabinet council General Joseph E. Johnson, who was an old line whig, reluctantly engaged in the southern rebellien, always the opponent of Jeff Davis and neglected by him.

C. Anderson to act as messenger to bring the Louisians returns. He produced a paper purporting to be signed by all the electors.

Elijah L. Bugbee, manager of the Washington, Atlantic and Pacific telegraph office, was the next witness. Butler examined him sharply upon his failure to bring an original book showing the receipt and delivery of certain telegrams which witness said he could not find. Butler said he had some memorandums taken from another book in the effice, which he said was the book he wanted, as it was the book into which the original was copied.

Butler then asked for a certain message which witness said he believed had been eaten by rate, as it had been stored in a closet along with other old papers which were not considered retains and which it was found had been largely destroyed by rate. An amusing examination then followed, which ended by Butler's producing a cheek mark of George Dunning, night clerk of the company, on February 24th, 1817, date of the message Butler had asked for. Witness identified both check mark and telegram which Butler, had, and said, in answer to Butler, the British bark Athelston has
