THE C. L. WHITE CASE.

THE PROSECUTION OBTAIN NO EVIDENCE, BUT THE COMMISSIONER "HOLDS OUT."

The preliminary examination in the case of Charles L. White, charged with a deadly and unlawful combination, was resumed this morning, before Commissioner McKay, Mr. Varian appearing for the prosecution, and Judge Kirkpatrick for the defendant. Mrs. Mary A. Wayne, sister of Miss Starkey, was called. She resided in the Nineteenth Ward; was acquainted with the defendant and his wife, and had been for about two years; had not visited his house for about six months; came from England three years ago; her sister went to live at defendant's as nurse, and had lived at various other places in the same capacity; had seen her in his house but seldom; the house had six rooms—two bedrooms, one workshop, one kitchen and two shades; did not know who occupied the bedrooms; defendant moved from this house to Arizona, a little over a year ago, with his family; witness thought her sister went with them; they were gone about a month; saw her sister about three weeks after their return, at Mrs. Connelly's house; had had no conversation with defendant about her sister; did not know whether or not they were married; she knew she had no child; after defendant's return he built the house he now lives in, with two rooms; a third room had been subsequently added, saw defendant and his family, and her sister there; saw no beds in the house; her sister was acting as nurse; her parents and brothers and sisters lived in Hooper; their names were Francis and Jane Starkey, parents; Sarah Starkey, Robert, Ella, Joseph, Frank and Rachel Starkey, children.

Mrs. Caroline Connelly was called. She knew defendant and his family; had been at his house once, when he was selling out to go to Arizona, knew Elizabeth Ann Starkey; had met her at several places, acting as nurse; witness was a midwife; saw Miss Starkey at defendant's house once when defendant returned from Arizona; came to live at witness' house, renting 3 rooms; Miss Starkey came a few days after, and lived with them; she soon went to live as a nurse at Mrs. Johnson's; defendant had told witness that Miss Starkey was nothing to him; a friend helping his wife; witness had never attended Miss Starkey in a professional capacity; had not seen her during the last six months.
John Carruthers, the next witness, was uncle to Mrs. Margaret H. White; knew Miss Starkey; did not remember when he became acquainted with Miss Starkey; had seen her at defendant's house; did not know whether she was recognized in defendant's family as his wife or not.
By the Commissioner.—Did you have any talk with Miss Starkey yesterday?
A.—I believe I shook hands with her at the door, and said I was glad to see her.
Q.—Did you not advise her not to answer any questions she might be asked?
No, sir, I did not.
Mr. Varian asked that a continuance be had until to-morrow, to give Miss Starkey another chance to testify.
Judge Kirkpatrick objected, because there was no necessity for it. The witness had emphatically said that she would not answer.
The Commissioner suggested to Mr. Varian that William Wayne, one of the witnesses subpoenaed, had not been examined, and he was called. He knew defendant and his wife; had seen Miss Starkey at defendant's house, but did not know whether or not she was married to him, or was recognized as his wife; had not discussed this matter with any one; had not attended any court proceedings.
Judge Kirkpatrick moved for a dismissal but Mr. Varian objected, saying, "We think we have a witness that can sing, but won't" and asked that the examination be set for to-morrow at 10 a. m.

Commissioner McKay stated that ordinarily he would feel like granting the motion for dismissal, but that in this case there seemed to be a manifest intention to obstruct the wheels of justice and that he would grant in continuance until to-morrow morning.
Bonds not having been furnished by the defendant, he went out, in custody of Deputy James Peacock, to look for sureties.

THE YOUNG CONCERT.

Mr. B. B. Young and Madame Mazzucato Young, the projects of last evening's grand vocal concert, have every reason to feel proud and gratified at the success which crowned their labors. They had been long anticipated. The return of Mr. Young from Europe, which talented wife had his expectation upon tip toe for the time of their first appearance in public. Something was known of the gentleman's ability, from his earlier efforts upon the lyric stage, where he was always a favorite, and from reports of those who had been favored with private exhibitions of the lady's musical skill, rumor had also been busy with the excellent reputation of Madame Young. It is no small compliment therefore, to say that the concert given by them, with their pupils, in every way justified the flattering opinions which were previously formed. A large and brilliant audience, and what is better still, a thoroughly appreciative one, was present to erect them, and everything connected with the entertainment was "sanitized by merit and fame."
The crowning gem of the concert was "Jerusalem," by Mr. Young. It was truly a magnificent effort. The theme, the air, the execution were equally noble and sublime. His voice, always excellent, has improved under his training, wonderfully and for power, sweetness and flexibility, will not find many superiors. He possesses, besides, dramatic fire and unctious, and a pathos seldom united with such volume. The encore, "Di Provenza," which he was compelled to give in order to silence a perfect storm of applause, evinced great tenderness. In the duet with Mr. McIntosh, the richness of his voice again displayed itself, and in the ballad in French, "O, Swallow, Swallow," with the beautiful little gem, "The Sea hath its Pearls," given as an encore, its sweetness and elasticity were further shown.
A very notable feature were the accompaniments of Madame Young. The lady is a gifted musician, and as a pianist, almost perfection. Veteran piano players were heard to say that her accompaniments were an evening's entertainment in themselves.
The other attraction we must, on account of limited space, glance briefly over. The Pilgrim chorus from "I Lombardi," was finely executed, though perhaps in a manner too measured and mechanical. More freedom would have added to its effect. The "Memory," by Mrs. T. J. Mackintosh, Miss Grace Almy and Mr. H. S. Krouse was sweetly given, and "My Pretty Jane" by Mr. M. H. McCallister was a veritable gem.
