THE CHRISTMAS NEWS

FOR 1901.

A UTAH-COLORADO EDITION.

The Christmas edition of the "News" this year will be printed on Saturday, December 21st, 1901. It will contain an exhaustive review of the year's developments in business, mining, commerce, real estate, building, and all other branches of business, and will form the most elaborate compilation of the resources and attractions of Utah which has ever been issued.

Our sister state, Colorado, and its industries and attractions will be well represented in the issue, many beautiful views of Denver and Colorado scenery being given. A big part of the edition will be devoted to the resources and attractions of Utah which has ever been issued.

Especially attractive articles will be prepared by a corps of selected writers, and leading men of the community will contribute timely articles on current topics.

As the holiday number will be issued several days ahead of Christmas, it will form an invaluable advertising medium to local dealers for the Christmas trade. The general advertiser could find no better means for reaching the people of the great west. The "News" will pledge a circulation of at least 20,000 copies for the Christmas issue.

Special rates will be accorded advertisers who wish their notices printed in the Semi-Weekly News as well, giving them a total circulation of nearly 45,000 copies.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Rev. Louis G. Reynolds will deliver a lecture on "Socialism," at the Jewish synagogue this evening. All are cordially invited.

The two additional quarantine inspectors, whose offices were created by a special act of the City Council, are J. W. Tontton and C. H. Woodward, having been appointed by Mayor Thompson.

The father of Edward Penney, the Park City miner who died at the Holy Cross hospital in this city a few days ago, is on his way here to arrange for the burial of his son. Undertaker O'Donnell has received word from the father to that effect.

The remains of John Walsh, who died in California a few weeks ago, have been shipped to Buffalo by Undertaker O'Donnell. It is said that Walsh died of heart failure produced by severe blows received in a fist fight in which he engaged on the night of his death.

Dr. W. T. Dalby has received from Harry Edward in Alaska three pieces from the skeleton of a mastodon, which was discovered near Dawson City. The pieces received here are a section of the shoulder blade, a portion of the shin bone and a tooth, all of which are, of course, of gigantic proportions.

Mrs. Parker, widow of the late Capt. Montgomery Parker, has received a collection of very interesting Spanish curios which belonged to her husband and were shipped from the Philippines after the captain's death. In the collection are swords and lances which were carried by the courtiers in the days of Philip II.

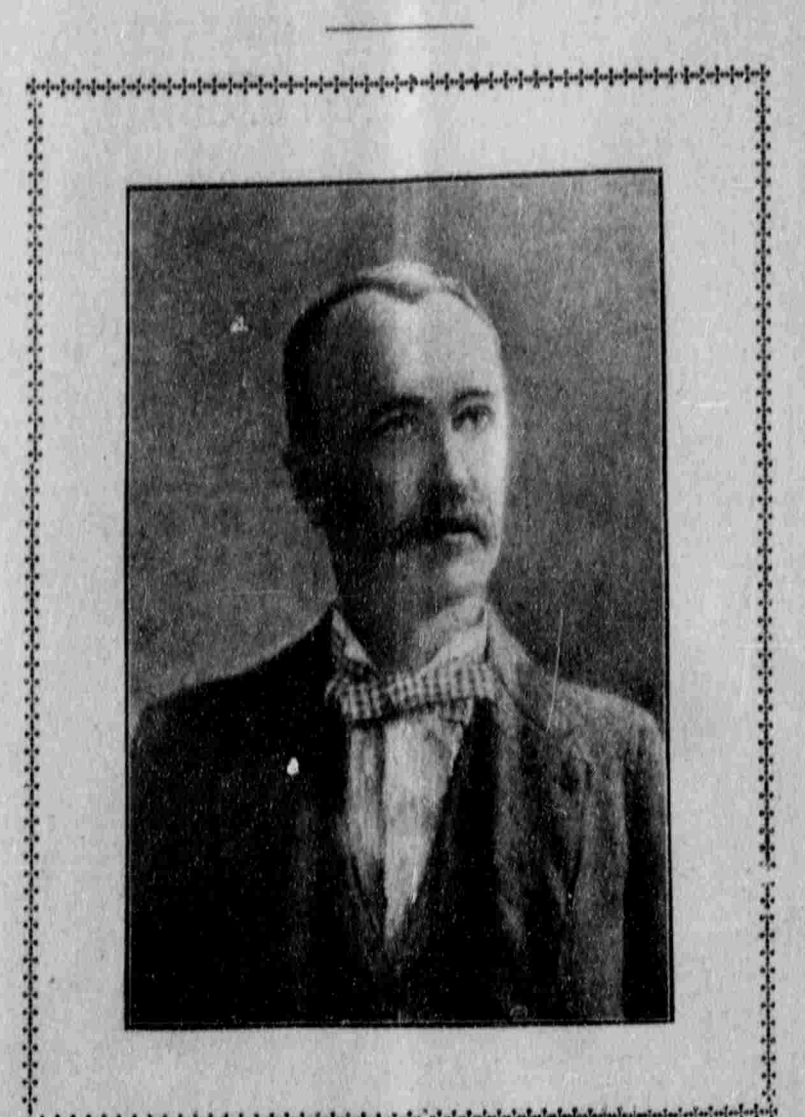

The members of the Cooks and Waiters union, met last night and decided to make the union as much as social as an industrial organization and to admit women to membership. The organization is looking for suitable quarters up town, which they can fit up in style suitable to the tastes and comforts of all members of the union.

The news boys of Salt Lake will be given their annual Thanksgiving bath free at the Sanitarium. This is a courtesy that Manager Snyder has extended to the newsboys ever since he became the proprietor of the place. The candidates for alibiatory honors will be lined up at 10 o'clock in the morning.

The funeral of J. Hayes Cook was held yesterday afternoon from O'Donnell's undertaking parlors under the rites of the Episcopal church. Dean Edgely of St. Mark's officiating. The pallbearers were Matthew Cullen, Judge Peter Lochrie, Alexander C. Sutherland, Henry Kohl, Angus Buchanan and Clyde Baxter.

GEORGE H. WRIGHT SAID TO BE CAUGHT

Pelican Point Murderer Run Down at Last In Honolulu, Where He Was Arrested On a Minor Offense.

GEORGE H. WRIGHT, THE SUSPECT.

(Special to the "News.")
Chicago, Nov. 21.—George Wright has been arrested in Hawaii, charged with three murders in Utah.

(Special to the "News.")

Provo, Nov. 21.—Sheriff Storrs is anxiously awaiting the Hawaiian mail, which is due here today, for final word regarding the positive identification of the man in jail in Hawaii. He is more hopeful on this occasion than heretofore, from the fact that Wright has been identified by such an experienced officer as U. S. Marshal Andrews. It is thought that the Cranman Detective Agency at Chicago, which has been working on the case, has been notified by its agent in San Francisco by wire of the positive identification of Wright. It is only a matter of a few hours before the photograph of the suspect, which was to come by this week's mail, will be in the hands of Sheriff Storrs.

With the arrest of George H. Wright, alias James G. Weeks, alias C. T. Case and numerous other aliases, the second chapter in the Pelican Point tragedy may be said to be closed. The first including the killing of Harry Hayes, alias Albert Ernestson, Alfred Nielson and Andrew Johnson, aged respectively 25, 18 and 21, on the western shore of Utah lake in February, 1895, the arrest and conviction of Harry Hayes, stepfather of Albert Ernestson, for the murder, the intelligent and humane efforts of Sheriff George A. Storrs, who had become convinced of Hayes' innocence, to secure the pardon of Hayes, which was accomplished in the spring of 1899, when he was liberated from the state prison, where he had been sentenced to life imprisonment, the board of pardons having been greatly influenced by the efforts of Sheriff Storrs, commuted the death sentence to life imprisonment.

SEARCH FOR WRIGHT.

The second chapter, begun with the search for Wright, which Sheriff Storrs initiated immediately upon taking charge of the office in 1897, when he became convinced of Wright's guilt, and for the past four years has been endeavoring to capture him, has been greatly aided by the efforts of various detective agencies, who have also advertised Wright extensively through their publications, and it was through descriptive matter sent out by the Cranman Detective Agency of Cincinnati, Ohio, that United States Marshal Andrews recognized Wright, who was a prisoner in Rio, Hawaii, having been arrested for "gross cheat" in Honolulu as he was about to depart for Australia.

NUMEROUS IDENTIFICATIONS.

The work of securing Wright's arrest has in the main been disappointing, but this has only temporarily discouraged the sheriff, who has always held to the belief that the man would be captured, if alive. It has not, however, been without its annoyances. Many letters have been received from officers and amateur detectives, who were sure they had Wright arrested or under surveillance, and when investigation proved them mistaken, the officers have been greatly disappointed. One man who was so sure that Wright was living in his neighborhood that he wanted the sheriff to come at once with a posse, was compelled to admit that he had made a mistake, after corresponding with Sheriff Storrs, but he volunteered the opinion that he did not think Wright ever would be arrested, unless the descriptive matter and photograph of Wright was changed.

SHERIFF STORRS' WORK.

When Harry Hayes told his story of innocence to Sheriff Storrs, which happened on a trip to Salt Lake, when the sheriff was taking Hayes before the supreme court in his case, the sheriff, who believed him, and Hayes' request that a search should be instituted for the articles missing from the cabin where the boys were killed, was heeded. The request had often been made by Hayes before in the impulsive, irritable manner which characterized him from the time when he found he was suspected of killing the boys and all through his trial, but no one paid any attention to it, the search for clues all being made on the theory that Hayes was guilty.

To the end of proving Hayes' guilt the lake was dredged for the wagon and horses, which it was believed he had buried under the ice with the boys, but no search was made for the other articles, household effects, a gun, etc., etc., the officers entertaining the belief that Hayes knew what had become of them, and that he was one who would have any interest in taking the articles, which were of little value. One circumstance stance that no doubt strengthened Sheriff Storrs' belief in the reasonableness of finding the "things" as Hayes called them, was that Deputy Sheriff J. T. Williams, appointed by Sheriff Storrs, had suspected James G. Weeks about a matter of a few hours before something of the murder.

CLEW FROM WILLIAMS.

Mr. Williams resided at Mapleton in 1895 and in February Weeks came to his place and rented a cabin from him, situated on some land owned by Mr. Williams at the mouth of Spanish Fork canyon. He went away for a few days about the time that the murder was committed, and returned with a team and wagon, the wagon containing a large assortment of articles such as might be found around a rancher's cabin. This Mr. Williams helped him to load, and he was greatly surprised when a search through the southern portion of the county and soon had a large collection of the plunder stolen from the Hayes cabin, which he yet has and which will be of use in the trial of Wright. He has also the wagon which was taken from Hayes' ranch and traded to a man in Salt Lake county by Wright.

ACCOMPLISHED CRIMINAL.

The history of George H. Wright, even the little that is known here, marks him as a most accomplished criminal, and a very successful one so far as keeping out of the clutches of the law is concerned. He was born in Medford, Minnesota, about 1861, and is the son of a well-to-do farmer. He is bright and intelligent, and a favorite with his parents, who gave him a good education. About this time he was in the law department of the university of Michigan, and a man of wide and general information. In addition to this he is very gentlemanly in his bearing and has no record of any kind, he succeeds in making a good impression on people with whom he comes in contact, and his neighbors and acquaintances in Salt Lake City, and others who have known him, have been greatly surprised, incredulous, when the charge of murdering the boys at Pelican Point was made against him, although some of them had had their confidences shaken when they learned that he had been preferred against Wright.

TIMBER SWindle.

About twelve years ago he left home and became interested in some timber land and scheme in which he induced some of his friends to invest, and it is alleged, swindled them out of their money. About this time he was in Medford, Minnesota, about 1861, and is the son of a well-to-do farmer. He is bright and intelligent, and a favorite with his parents, who gave him a good education. About this time he was in the law department of the university of Michigan, and a man of wide and general information. In addition to this he is very gentlemanly in his bearing and has no record of any kind, he succeeds in making a good impression on people with whom he comes in contact, and his neighbors and acquaintances in Salt Lake City, and others who have known him, have been greatly surprised, incredulous, when the charge of murdering the boys at Pelican Point was made against him, although some of them had had their confidences shaken when they learned that he had been preferred against Wright.

LIVED IN SALT LAKE.

In 1899 he located in Salt Lake City, living first in the city and afterwards west of the city over Jordan. Here he represented that he had a ranch at Kanab, and he had valuable horses and cattle, and it is told that on one occasion a neighbor had a Jersey cow stolen. Wright, of course, sympathized with the neighbor, who told him he would like to buy another cow, and would pay $35 for one. Wright promised to bring one down from the ranch and did so. The animal had both horns sawed off and her face was covered with blood. Wright explained that before he started from the ranch the cow had hooked one of his horses, and he had dehorned her. The neighbor accepted the explanation, and paid for the cow, which he afterwards suspected was the very cow that had been stolen from him, and when other transactions of Wright's were brought to light he was sure of it. In the cellar of the house occupied by Wright in Salt Lake City was found a harness which he had been accused of stealing, but had been acquitted of the charge; a road scraper and several other things which had been stolen were also found there.

STOLE CATTLE.

While living over Jordan he is believed to have engaged extensively in cattle stealing. He told a Utah county man that he knew of one of his neighbors in Salt Lake having lost a bunch of fine cattle from his corral one night, and that he (Wright) thought he knew they were taken to a butcher in Salt Lake, and had them killed at once and hides hidden. Wright explained that he would always accommodate a man that way if the animals were sold cheap enough.

FOR STEALING SHEEP.

There is, or was, an indictment against Wright in the Third district court for stealing sheep. He was arrested, but was permitted to go and hunt witnesses to clear him or condemn him. This was about the time he came to Utah county, and assumed the name of Jas. G. Weeks. He bought his wife and little girl to the Williams cabin and lived there for some time, keeping up to the neighbors the fiction of his Kanab ranch. In August, 1897, he went to the "ranch" and brought in a bunch of fat cattle which he sold in Springfield, and Spanish Fork; he was soon afterwards arrested and charged with stealing sheep, the cattle from J. W. Dwyer, of Salt Lake county. He was taken before Justice Boyer of Springfield on the charge of larceny and gave bail in the sum of $400 for appearance for a preliminary hearing.

JUMPED HIS BOND.

This he forfeited and went to Colorado, leaving his wife and child in another home near Salem, to which he had previously moved from the Williams cabin. Mrs. Wright soon after sold her furniture and went to her mother in Fowler, St. Lawrence county, New York, where she was afterwards located by Sheriff Storrs, who went after her, and she came to Utah with him in January, 1899. She claims to know little of Wright's whereabouts since he left Utah, although at that time they corresponded, and he visited her once in New York. She obtained a divorce from Wright after her return to Utah, and is now the wife of Frank Storrs of Mantle. Mrs. Wright believes Wright committed the murder, and has been making some efforts to locate him since her marriage to Mr. Storrs.

COLORADO CAREER.

Wright left for Colorado on a small pony and had little if any money. The first transaction in which he engaged, was the reaching Colorado, at which the Utah officers have any knowledge, proved quite profitable and illustrates the resourcefulness of the man. At Rifle he produced a contract purported to be signed by J. Vernal Utah, horse man, who had horses ranging near Rifle, the agreement was to the effect that Weeks should gather the horses belonging to the Vernal man, send one to him and help him to retain the other half for his work. He hired a boy to help him, and when they had gathered all the horses they could, he sent the boy to Vernal with half of the herd, the boy to collect from the Vernal man, who had been told that he had not made any bringing them, and "his share" he disposed of in Rifle and Meeker, getting some money and leaving before the boy came back to tell about his surprise—if not grateful—the Vernal man was to have some of his horses sent home.

HIS NEXT ALIAS.

In August, 1897, Sheriff Storrs learned that Weeks had been in Rangely, Colorado, and secured requisition papers for the purpose of going after him. He traced him to Fowler, Colorado, where he found that Wright had been a prominent citizen under the name of T. C. Case, "a nephew of J. I. Case, the agricultural machinery manufacturer." This alias is been used by Case, assumed at some Colorado towns early in his career there. He was broke and found some men with a new "J. I. C." threshing machine, which they could not run, and he was told that Case, however, he was "a nephew of Mr. Case," and had helped to build many of the machines. He was so successful as a machinist that there was no need to doubt his being a graduate from the Vernal man, who had been told that he had helped to build many of the machines. He was so successful as a machinist that there was no need to doubt his being a graduate from the Vernal man, who had been told that he had helped to build many of the machines.

ANOTHER MURDER.

A short time before that, however, evidence had come to light in regard to a murder of Wm. C. Crampton, of Freshwater, in January, 1896, that had forced the authorities of Park county to send out a posse to look for him. He was the murderer of Crampton, Crampton and Case had been interested in mining ventures together, and when Crampton was found dead no suspicion was directed against Wright.

WAS ON THE JURY.

He was one of the coroner's jury, and note the coroner's verdict, which he signed as one of the jurors. What finally led the Park county officers to suspect Wright is not known, but at the time he arrived in the county, he had arranged to have Case arrested, and they would give Sheriff Storrs no assistance or information.

AGAIN ESCAPES.

Case was at that time in Chicago stopping at the North Shore hotel. He learned in some way that the officers were on his track for the Crampton murder and succeeded in escaping. This Sheriff Storrs learned afterwards, and since that time he has known nothing of Wright's whereabouts till early this month, when he received the letter from Marshal Andrews.

The third chapter in the tragedy will be the trial of Wright, what that will bring forth in an interesting question, bringing forth the attorneys claim it will be a very difficult matter to convict Wright. Sheriff Storrs thinks not, and to a layman it would not seem so very difficult. When it is considered with what ease Hayes was convicted, Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake nail, and ten penny nail, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and in a few minutes she was able to walk. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Rockland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by all Druggists.
