Art Department of the Fair.

All who visit the Fair are unimpaired in their commendation of the committee and unimpaired in giving the verdict that it is the best exhibition of the kind the Territory has ever had...

It is a matter for regret, especially on the part of reporters, that the articles on exhibition in the various departments are not more boldly labeled with the names of the exhibitors and the localities they hail from.

The News has already given a cursory description of the fair, of most of it, and we would have been pleased to have entered into greater detail if it were admissible.

We have taken a second run over it, and have specially struck with the liberal and worthy exhibit in the art department.

To the right of the entrance Mr. Kirkham has some meritorious landscape, the scene in Logan Canyon being specially worthy of note.

The gem specimen of portraiture is the likeness of Bishop Edward Hunter. We are not afraid to risk our reputation as a judge of the art to pronounce it as unequalled in its line at any time in Utah.

The portraits of Parley P. Pratt and Orson Pratt, by the latter's son Loren, are strikingly life-like. The young artist will, with careful training and practice, rank high in the profession.

Young Joshua Midgley has an artistic specimen of sign writing on glass. It is elegant in design and executed in excellent finish—clear and clean.

Miss Fricilla Jennings has several paintings, the best of which is the smallest one, with an old mill and land water surroundings.

The artistic penwork, and crayon portraits by a young man named H. Hales, Jr., is a very commendable likeness of Mr. Reeves is specially striking.

As a specimen of ingenious sign writing, combining elegant lettering with landscape, animal, figure and ornamental painting, W. C. Morris's mammoth board is simply immense.

Walker Brothers exhibit a series of most excellent paintings, but they are not generally the productions of local artists.

The photographic display by Mr. Savage discounts all former exhibits in that line by great odds.

Young John Hafen has some very fine specimens of crayon drawings. The portrait of Governor Murray is beautifully executed.

The scene in Provo Canyon by the young George Beard, of Coalville, is well worth of note.

C. Dahlgren's Lake Side is a very meritorious painting. This gentleman's productions can be selected at a glance among thousands, by a peculiarity of coloring.

Mr. Savages' landscapes, too, are acknowledged as most excellent every where. Some of the best specimens of portraiture are the work of young Ralph Savage.

Young John Hafen has some very fine specimens of crayon drawings. The portrait of Governor Murray is beautifully executed.

Anticipated Departure.—Elder Hyrum H. Evans will soon depart on a mission to Europe.

The people of the Sixth Ward have arranged to give him a benefit party in the Assembly Room of the Ward.
