The committee to whom had been referred the bill of R. Kletting, for plans for the Warm Springs bath house—$250, recommended that but $150 be allowed, as the charge was excessive. Adopted.

In the case of Christine M. Robinson, who asked that her taxes might be remitted, as she was unable to pay them, the committee reported favorably.

The committee on improvements reported adversely on the petition of N. F. Putnam, who asked that a street lamp be placed near St. Mark's Cathedral, because the electric light would soon shed its rays in that direction.

Mr. Roberts moved that the recorder be instructed to furnish to the Council the revenue received from the water tax and the amount of lumber used by the city during the last six months, and the cost per thousand feet. Adopted.

Mr. Webber offered the following:

Resolved, That the city treasurer be and he is hereby authorized and directed to advertise for the sale of the remaining fifty bonds of the issue of Salt Lake City bonds of 1888, in accordance with a provision of "a resolution providing for the issue of bonds for corporate purposes," adopted July 10, 1888.

Mr. Roberts—Do we need that amount now?

The Recorder—I think we do.

Mr. Clark—I voted for the issue of these bonds with the idea that some of the money should be used for obtaining a further water supply. If some of this money is to be used for that purpose, all right. Otherwise I am opposed to it.

Mr. Webber—That is my object in offering this resolution. I think a number of reservoirs can be made in City Creek Canyon and some of the water now running to waste at night can be saved.

The resolution was adopted, Mr. Roberts being the only negative.

Chief Engineer Ottinger reported that the original contract with the Gaynor Company called for ten miles of wire. It was now found necessary to put in twenty-five miles instead of ten. An appropriation of $1500 was made to purchase the wire.

Councilor Pyper offered an ordinance amending the election law so as to conform to the territorial statute and the Edmunds-Tucker law, making it necessary for a citizen to reside in the city one year before he could be eligible for election to any office.

The bill for an ordinance to prevent the placing of any poles at the intersection of the streets, save those to be used for street lighting, passed its first reading.

The police uniform bill was then called up, when Mr. Dooly moved to adjourn. The motion was lost, however, and the bill came up, the pending motion being that of Mr. Roberts to postpone the donning of the uniform 120 days from the passage of the bill. This was defeated, and Mr. Sharp moved to make the period thirty days. The amendment was carried. The bill passed its second reading and was read the third time. The roll call on the passage of the bill was as follows: Ayes—Webber, McCornick, Sharp, Pyper, Clark, Carlson, Smith, Teasdel. Councilors Roberts and Dooly abstained from voting. The bill passed, and was referred to the committee on enrollment.

The complaint about the sulphur water from the natatorium being turned into the canal on Ninth West street was referred to the mayor, marshal and watermaster.

Adjourned.

THE CASTLE GATE SHOOTING.

On Wednesday morning the trial of the Italian, Thomas Grimaldi, who murdered Patrick Emmett near Castle Gate, Emery County, on the 8th of September, came up for trial before Judge Blackburn. Messrs. George Sutherland and M. M. Kellogg were appointed by the court to defend the prisoner, and assistant United States District Attorney Evans prosecuted. A jury was empaneled and duly sworn, and the indictment read to them by the clerk.

The first witness called was Jos. Gillaugh; I live at P. V. Junction; was at the scene of the murder, Kyuna Switch, Price Canyon, on the 8th of September last; owned a saloon there, and was running it at the time; it was about 2 o'clock, Sunday afternoon, when the trouble first occurred, inside my saloon; the size of saloon is 18x36 feet; it faces the north; there is a door near the west corner and a window on the east side; the counter is on the east side; there is willow brush on the west side; the ground is clear on the north side; the R. G. W. runs in front of the saloon; there was a card table in the room; when the trouble occurred McMartin, O'Brien, Emmett, Cunningham, and others whose names I do not now recollect, were present; defendant and two other Italians were there also; when the Italians came in the men in the saloon were talking sociably and drinking; no trouble had occurred; did not see the defendant enter the saloon; saw Dagio (the "yellow man") and a dark

Italian whose name I never heard; the first intimation I had of any trouble was hard names being called; I then saw the "yellow man" with a knife in his hand; I told him to stop the racket, and made him put up his knife; I then told the Irishman that they ought to have had better sense than to have called men such names; the trouble stopped, and we all took a drink; everybody then sat down sociably enough; I went to the card table and soon heard the quarreling renewed; the Italians were talking mostly in their own language; I got up and made the Scorpedo put up his knife; he did so, but warned me not to go near him any more; I took Emmett outside the door; when I got outside Grimaldi and Scorpedo followed me, the latter with his knife; he made a cut at Emmett, but I thwarted his blow; I did not see Grimaldi with any weapon; the knife in Scorpedo's hand was probably four inches long in the blade; Grimaldi went in a north-easterly direction; I saw him then draw his pistol from his pocket; it looked like a Colt's 45. I then hurried to get into the house, and a general fight ensued; I was not in the saloon but a few moments before I heard four or five shots fired; Emmett came into the saloon four or five minutes after the shooting and asked for water; I did not see him come in, as I had gone out of the back door to escape the bullets, one of which whistled through the saloon, striking the decanters, pieces front which struck me in the breast; I gave Emmett the water, and he then asked me for something to lay down on; he was very pale, and was bleeding; he then laid down, but never spoke only muttered something before he died, which occurred thirty-five minutes after the shooting; I examined his wounds after he died; I found three bullet holes; one ball entered on the right side and came out of his back; this must have been the fatal shot; another ball made an abrasion of the skin of the breast, in a straight line; another bullet struck his right hand; the Irishmen had no weapons; the knife and pistol were the only weapons I saw.

Cross-examined—I saw none of the shooting; about the time it took place the men in the saloon went out of the back door; they did not follow the Italians; when I returned into the saloon after the shooting there was but one man in there, and that was the bartender; saw stones thrown during the melee, but could not see who threw them, or in what direction they were thrown, but am certain they were not thrown by an Italian; saw one of the stones strike the defendant in the mouth, but did not see any blood drawn; this was before the shooting commenced; the stone that hit him could not have been larger than a walnut; one stone was all I saw hit defendant; it did not knock him down; he did not even stagger; the last I saw of him he was still erect.

Re-examined—Neither Emmett nor O'Brien threw the stone that hit Grimaldi; am positive of this; after
