

manifested by a number of delegates from invited powers, and a proposition carrying it into effect received the unanimous consent of the conference, with an important reservation by Sweden. With this solitary exception the sentiment of all delegates, monometallists and bi-metallists, as formulated in the resolution of adjournment, was that a recess until next spring might be productive of important results; that a final disposition of the question by the conference at this time would be impolitic, and there were reasons to hope for an unlimited understanding, and that the time had arrived for governmental action and diplomatic negotiations. It was generally admitted that grave monetary evils exist, that some remedy is urgently needed, and that some of the labors of the conference, such as its ascertainment of the view of the States, and its collection of materials have been of the utmost importance. It is considered that the willingness expressed by the Bank of England to hold one-fifth of its metallic reserve in silver, provided other nations open their mints to free coinage of that metal, is a tacit admission that a great bi-metallic union would restore silver to its former place and value as international money, the reasons stated in the resolution of adjournment have a high and very important significance. The conference is regarded here as having attained as great a measure of success as its best friends could have hoped for at present.

A correspondent says: Excellent reports of crops are received from the provinces. Farmers of the central provinces, the great wheat growing region, count on a good average crop, and as far as an opinion can be formed, this year's vintage will be one of the best for 15 years. Advices from Spain are contradictory, but favorable reports predominate. Constantinople, 10.—Dervish Pasha, Turkish commander, reports that the movements of the Austrians at Novi Bazar appear to indicate the intention of Austria to advance to Salonica. The Turkish ambassador at Vienna sent similar information, but the Austrian ambassador here denies the report. Two battalions of Turkish troops have been routed by insurgents near Mecca, and 225 Turks killed.
