"It is simply a good indication of the presence of an ore body," said Mr. Bullock this morning.

"The tip of the vein is toward the west, and we now feel certain that we are going to strike something."

BULLOCK IS AFTER VEIN.

Talc is Scams Indicate Presence of Famous Aspinwall Vein.

Manager B. H. Bullock of the Bullock Property is today exhibiting some good looking specimens of talc, carrying a copper stain, and indications of the presence of silver, from the bottom of the vein 130 feet short on the property.

The talc lies in the seams that are believed to extend out from the hanging wall of the Old Aspinwall vein.

The low grade ore was struck the last week and haulers, 2,000 lbs. of ore, 2,000 lbs. of talc, and 2,000 lbs. of silver.

"The new shaft was started last year," said Mr. Bullock this morning.

"It is within a short distance from the old Aspinwall mine, from which a large amount of wealth was taken. The talc and the formation corresponds to that encountered in the Aspinwall property."

BUSINESS AND STOCKS

er. May opening at 1.07 1/2 to 1.07 3/4. Later May touched 1.07 1/2.

Local receipts of corn were exceedingly small—4 cars—and this light movement created firmness in the market for that grain.

Notwithstanding a 10 to 15 advance in the price of the provisions market showed only moderate firmness.

The market advanced in strength as trading advanced, a big decrease in the visible supply of wheat in the United States being responsible for much of the bullish sentiment.

Corn—Additional strength developed later in the day, in sympathy with wheat. May advanced to 88 1/2.
