The improvements for 1902 cost $672,-710.77, of which $290,798.29 was for tollline construction, and $18,459.82 for underground construction. There were strung 2,835 miles of additional toil line wire, and 4,606 new exchange subscrib-ers added. The total revenue for the year amounted to $707,073,37, and the expenditures amounted to $515,254.35, the expense of maintenance being $204 .-The maintenance report says: "To explain some of the extraordinary additional charges to maintenance in 1902, we replaced the old switchboard in Salt Lake City, which cost us between $28,000 and $30,000, by a new common battery board, and this necessitated the changing of all of the subscribers' sta-tions. The actual cost of the old swithboard in Salt Lake City was charged off, and also one-half of the cost of the old bells. It is hoped that the old bells we may be able to use at one-half their original cost.
