he whole day thinking, while he was There is a homely saying among the fishermen "that those who will not gathering his juniper berrics, what he could possibly do to please the school mend their nets will soon be unable t master, in the hope of getting some essons. One day when he was walk-ing sadly along, he saw two of the boys catch fish;" and one is seldon found so improvident as to let a hole from longing to the school trying to set larger and larger until the net is use a bird-trap, and he asked one what it was for. The boy told him that the less. The nearest approach to absolute rest is sleep, and of this, every man woman and child, should have abun choolmaster was very foul of field fares, and that they were setting the trap to catch some. This delighted the dance, proportionate to his consti-tution and occupation; but there is a relative rest, quite as important and boy, for he recollected that he more neglected by most busy men and women; this rest is recreation. The "I haven't time" excuse, al though as popular as ever, is sadiy threadbare. A man owning property and he had no doubt but he could can afford to invest thousands dollars The next day the little boy berrowed though he withdraw it from active business, if he is sure that the money in old basket of his mother, and when he went to the wood he had the great will double itself. We all have twenty felight to catch two field fares. He four hours in every day to invest, an if one hour withdrawn from busines put them in the basket, and, tying an old handkerchief over it, he took them to the schoolmaster's house. Just as he arrived at the door he saw the two can be better invested, is it not a wise thing to do it? Relaxation however to be profitable, must be whole-hearted it is not vest for the business man to ittle boys who had been setting the rap, and with some alarm he assed in bring his affairs and worries home hey had caught any birds.
