Wild flowers and simple garden blooms were the decorations at one of the most charming afternoon functions ever given in the city, when Mrs. David Keith threw open her beautiful home to two or three hundred guests on Thursday. Wild mustard, the dainty milkweed flower and other blooms of the near hills were in abundance, with jarkpurs, bachelor buttons, marigolds and nasturtians helping in the many artistic schemes of decoration. The large reception hall was in blue and gold, mustard and jarkpurs being combined with bows of blue and gold ribbon on the staircase, and the many flower-filled jardinières. The same colors were used in the drawingroom and an effective picture was the punch table, the bowl being sunk in a block of ice, which was draped with clusters of grapes. In the grapevines surrounding it were scattered oranges and lemons, adding in the color idea. The library was one of the notably artistic spots, the mantel having a bed of pink and white bachelor buttons, from which rose sprays of Gypsy flum, while from a vase at one side ascended a tall spray of the flumina long fronds falling in a filmy cloud over the mirror. Vases and jardinières of the flowers stood about the room. The diningroom had a striking combination of blue and green, which harmonized with the prevailing tint of the room. The mantel and sideboard held vases of wild pansy and bachelor's buttons, while wall-pockets hung about the room, filled with the same flowers, and from the chandelier were suspended baskets of them, the chandelier being festooned also in the blue and green. The central picture was the table, which held three baskets filled with the bachelor buttons, tied with green bows, with streamers of the ribbon extending from each basket, forming a circle on the table. The room was thought out were beautifully arranged, and the entire house was thrown open to the guests. The porches were also charmingly decorated, and fitted with rugs and seats for the convenience of the guests. The hours were from three to six, and the affair altogether a most delightful one.

The most elaborate affair ever given at the Country club was the dancing party on Wednesday night, given by Samuel Newhouse, in honor of Miss Alice Goodwin. The grounds were brilliant in myriad electric globes, and Japanese lanterns, strings of them lining the walks and lawns. The archway over the entrance was studded with them, and the effect throughout was most beautiful. Navajo blankets and rugs were strewn on the lawn, and with the chairs made cozy nooks for the guests, while the veranda was also attractively arranged, lemonade being served here throughout the evening. The dancing floor was laid on the east side, and an orchestra rendered delightful music. The scene, with the myriad young girls in their dainty summer gowns, was a charming picture, and the event will be long remembered by those present. The bride's gown was of white meteor cloth over taffeta, with trimmings of duchesse lace, her costume being completed with a long tulle veil fastened with a sunburst of pearls, the gift of the groom. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses, Miss Weller wore white net over pink taffeta, and carried sweet peas. Punch was served on the porch, and other refreshments in the diningroom, a number of the relatives and intimate friends assisting. THE PUBLIC should not accept some advertisers exaggerated statements without some element of proof. Our constant effort is to prove to the buying public, by the prices we quote, that our store presents greater opportunities for profitable buying than any other in Zion. Our recent purchase of the Lyon & Co. stock and fixtures for 68 per cent of the wholesale cost, makes it possible for us to sell the $36,000 worth of jewelry and kindred wares at wholesale prices and still net us a good profit on our investment. We are more than satisfied with these prices, and the thousands of buyers we are having prove to us that they know and appreciate the values we are giving.

Our sales have been very large and scattered promiscuously through the stock, and to concentrate the buying for the coming week, so as to empty the big wall cases now occupying the center of our store so that we may sell them, we will make a final sweeping cut, on all CLOCKS, CUT GLASS and SILVER-PLATED HOLLOW-WARE, bought of Lyon & Co., of . . . . .
