LOCAL AND OTHER MATTERS.

Take Notice.—See notice of Utah Southern stockholders meeting on the 21st prox.

Twelfth Ward Party.—The last of the enjoyable select series of dancing parties in the 12th Ward school-house takes place this evening.

Carrier Sick.—Our patrons in the western portion of the city have not received their papers regularly of late. The cause is the sickness of the carrier.

Will Not Meet.—There will be no meeting of the Tabernacle choir, to-morrow night, as announced. The next practice will take place on Friday, the 13th prox.

Supreme Court.—The case of E. A. Wall, appellant and respondent, vs. A. E. Dodge, et al., appellants and respondents, was argued and submitted, in the Supreme Court to-day.

Stayer's Lecture.—A large audience listened to Mr. C. W. Stayer's lecture in the 14th Ward assembly rooms last evening. Several leading members of the Church and a large number of our legislators were in attendance, and indicated their appreciation of the remarks by the close attention paid during the delivery, and the applause at its termination.

Condolence.—We extend our hearty sympathy to the family of Mr. William Foster, foreman of our morning newspaper, the Herald, in the loss of their little daughter, aged 10 years, who fell a victim to diphtheria, yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. She was a bright and promising little girl, her parents' oldest child. The funeral will take place to-morrow morning, at 10 30 o'clock.

"It is Easter."—Where is that atmospheric prognosticator who declared that the cold weather was all over?

It is no longer a mystery that a prophet is without honor in his own country, for it is easier to run a needle through the eye of a camel than to believe what some of these weather prophets say.

Since writing the above, our prognosticator stepped in to say that when he says "all over," he means "everywhere."

Detained by Snow.—Inhabitants of the city near the railway depot, were a little surprised, last night, to hear the whistle of a locomotive about 10 o'clock, on the Utah Central. It was the 8:20 passenger train, which had been delayed through waiting for the freight train ahead, blocked by snow between Farmington and Kayville. The express train north, yesterday morning, was stalled at the same place, and though due at Ogden at 9 a. m., did not reach there until 11 o'clock.

Another County.—And now the question of Ashley's Fork want to secede from the U. S. from Wasatch, and organize a Coal County, with the county seat at Ashley. The reasons assigned in the petition, signed by 125 residents, presented yesterday to the Legislature, are that Ashley is 150 miles from Heber City, the present county seat of Wasatch, and that the inhabitants of the former place, to reach the latter point, are forced to traverse a route rendered almost impassable by bad weather, etc. "We are sorry for you, Thomas Hawkins, very sorry," and hope the Assembly will allow you to depart in peace and set up for yourselves.

A Blaze on Wheels.—Night before last, a young son of Bishop Sperry, of the 4th Ward, was going home late from a surprise party, when, as he was passing the residence of Brother James S. Wagon, he saw a fire burning in the yard, on some heavily laden wagon, he gave the alarm, promptly assistance and the flames were soon subdued. The wagon belonged to a family who were staying at the house over night, and the fire originated from sparks remaining in a stove, which the travelers had used along their journey and then left inside the wagon. The loss was not serious, only the spring seat and some of the boxes having burned, but had it not been discovered as it was, the wagon would have "waited for" a long time before it again returned.

Savage's Lecture.—The 17th Ward Meeting House was well filled last evening, by the residents of that neighborhood and others, who had assembled to hear Mr. C. H. Savage in his new lecture on "Thirteen Thousand Miles, by Land and Sea." As anticipated, this was mostly a narration of scenes and incidents of personal observation and experience, during his recent trans-Atlantic voyage and sojourn in the island of Great Britain; and, as also expected, proved a subject of intense and thrilling interest to all. The perils and beauties of the sea were depicted so vividly, that the listener could fancy himself on the bosom of the deep, surrounded by all its terrors and splendors, while the graphic descriptions of steamships, routes, currents, and many other items of interest and information, contributed to make the discourse useful as well as entertaining. While on this subject, it was stated that ocean travel, with all its dangers, was not really so perilous as land travel by railroad, and that far more lives were lost by railroad accidents than by shipwrecks. The Cunard Line of steamers had run for 40 years and not one of its vessels had ever gone down with its crew. The Gulien Line, of which the lecturer spoke in terms of praise for the skill and efficiency of its officers, agents and crews, and their kind and gentlemanly behavior toward all their patrons, had run for 30 years, to and fro, across the Atlantic, and in that time had lost but two or three passengers, one of whom was swept overboard from the Montana, the vessel on which Mr. Savage returned, during a terrific storm in mid-ocean. He here made special mention of the bravery, skill and gentlemanly deportment of Captain Gaid, of the steamship Montana.

The touching at Queensdown, crossing of the Channel, arrival in Liverpool, and the visit to London were treated in turn, and the speaker then launched forth upon a general description of men, things, appearances, characteristics, customs, etc., of "Old England," depicting in a vigorous, amusing and an impartial manner the merits and demerits, the good and bad, the beautiful and ugly, and the advantages and disadvantages of that great nation. He spoke of the general hospitality and of rigid politeness of pride and falsehood, and of simplicity, truth, of coldness and cruelty and of warmth and charity, of England's greatness and England's weakness, and contrasted the limited size of the "right little island" with the vast influence it wielded all over the world. England's chief beauties were those of age; anything old was venerated and respected, be it human or otherwise, living or inanimate. This was "greatly to their credit," but everything new and young was ignored and despised, which was not so much to their praise. A boy was nobody. A man never became known till he was 50 or 60. Their greatest statesmen were men of 70 years and upwards; and another thing to their credit was that, men at such a time of life were still able and powerful, which circumstance was due to their mode of life. There was nothing new there, the country was non-progressive, and disliked innovations of all kinds; especially American travelers with their eyes open to the truth. The lecturer closed with a reference to the narrow feeling of nationality, which so many cherished, and hoped to see the time when this would be rubbed out, and men be willing to acknowledge that other men and other countries were, on an average, as good as themselves and their own. There was good in all things, and every nation had furnished its quota of goodness, greatness and intelligence.

UTAH LEGISLATURE.

COUNCIL. Wednesday Jan. 28th, 1880. 3 p. m.

The question of the proposed amendment to the City Charter again coming up, the Council renewed their report of the majority of the committee, regarding the privilege to be granted the City of borrowing money without delay to the Congress of the United States, making before the house, Councilor Cairne made an able and extended speech in support of his position, advocating the passage of the original bill empowering the city to issue bonds that should be exempt from taxation, and deprecating the proposed taxation of those bonds. Following is an extract of the speech:

"It is well understood that if these bonds are taxed it will drive them out of the Territory, and then they will be beyond your reach. But if you exempt them, our people will invest their savings in them; the interest derived will be invested in our midst, and that will go to swell the revenue of the Territory and the County, and both will be benefited in the end. Salt Lake City needs water; water she must have, or her growth and prosperity will be destroyed. What she asks is no great favor. Granting it will not affect the revenues of the Territory very seriously, either one way or the other. In conclusion, I ask the gentlemen of this Council to deal generously and magnanimously with this question. Let the corporation of Salt Lake City issue a 7 per cent bond, free from taxation, and so conducive to the general growth and prosperity of the Territory, that it is a pity that an act will be introduced to their credit, and afford them pleasant reflections when they return to their homes and friends. But, gentlemen, never let it be said of you, that when Salt Lake City asked for bread you gave her a stone, when her children cried for water you increased their tears."

The motion before the Council was then put and lost, and the bill and report referred to were given to the committee on revenue.

The bill to extend the boundaries of Davis County, so as to include Antelope Island and a portion of the waters of the Lake, was read, and disposed of at some length, and an amendment proposed to the effect that a portion of Salt Lake City, now lying in Davis County, never to Salt Lake County, at the same time as the other proposed changes should be made. The bill was then recommitted for further consideration.

A bill to incorporate Park City, Summit County, was read, with an accompanying petition, and referred to the appropriate committee.

The bill to organize San Juan County passed its second reading, its amendments being adopted. A House message announcing the passage of the bill amending an act providing for special elections and filling of vacancies, was read the first time and referred to the committee on elections.

The bill for the most legalizing elections and acknowledging certain deeds, passed its second reading. Council adjourned till Thursday at 2 p. m.

HOUSE. A petition from 124 citizens of Ashley's Fork, Wasatch County, praying for the forming of a new county to be called Coal County, with the county seat at Ashley, was read and referred. The chief reason assigned for the desired change was that Ashley was so far removed from the county seat of Wasatch, and the roads between almost impassable two-thirds of the year.

The reconsideration of the Rich County boundary bill, which was reported back without amendment, the House adjourned, after some discussion and a slight amendment, passed the House. The reconsideration of the Rich County boundary bill, which was reported back without amendment, the House adjourned, after some discussion and a slight amendment, passed the House.

A bill rewarding convicts and commencing their sentences, for good behavior, was presented, read and referred to the committee on judiciary.

A bill in relation to chattel mortgages, and other matters referred to the same committee.

House adjourned till Thursday, at 2 p. m.
