KIDNAPERS TERMS.

About I o'clock this afternoon he went to a candy store in the cost and With him he carried the $10,000, expecting that it would be demanded of him there. He was met by a women, who detailed to him the terms of the kidnapers. With all the cagreous of a distracted parent. Whitia agreed to their immediately, Detectives in his employ said he paid the money, but on this point the father declines to commit himself. Half an hour later he returned to the Hollenden hotel and awail developments.

His entrance to the hotel was shrouded in secrety. By a previous arrangement made with the hotel management, be did not register. Detective C. V. About 2 o'clock this afternoon he

Derkins, who has superintended the search for the boy in behalf of the father, was in the labby of the hotel calmiy smaking and pretending to be unconcerned. But the hearts of both parent and detective were beating anxiously. The agent of the kidnapers promised that the boy would be starred toward the hotel shortly after nightfall. As the hour far the appearance of the child approached, Whilla became narvous. He disviganted the advice of the detective, who had told him to keep out of sight of the ownspaper men and the crowds of curious people who had learned that he was in the city. Emerging from his room he walked up and down the hall on the second floor
