THE FIRST LECTURE.

"Book of Mormon and American Indians" Discussed to Large Audience.

Barratt hall of the L. D. S. university was well filled last evening at the first of the series of lectures to be given by Prof. Mills on the Book of Mormon. Prayer was offered by Elder C. W. Penrose. The lecture dealt principally with the American Indians, and was a very interesting and instructive presentation. The manner of keeping the ancient Nephite records was explained and the history of the historic plates was traced from the beginning to the time of their delivery to Joseph Smith. A continuation of the history of the Indians was then given, covering the time between the final battle recorded in the Book of Mormon in 400 A. D., and the conquest of Mexico by Cortez. The story of the wandering of the Aztecs and an account of their gods, their temples, their bloody sacrifices, and their manner of writing were the topics next explained. This part of the lecture was illustrated by drawings of the Aztec gods and the writing of place-names by instructor Lewis A. Ramsay. Elder George A. Smith conducted the meeting, and Elder S. W. Richards offered the benediction. The next lecture will be given in two weeks, on Monday evening, Jan. 26, at 8 o'clock.

A Prisoner in Her Own House.

Mrs. W. H. Layha, of 1001 Agnes Ave., Kansas City, Mo., has for several years been troubled with severe hoarseness and at times a hard cough, which she says, "Would keep me in doors for days. I was prescribed for by physicians with no noticeable results. A friend gave me a part of a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with instructions to closely follow the directions and I wish to state that after the first day I could notice a decided change for the better and this time after using it for two weeks, have no hesitation in saying I realize that I am entirely cured." This remedy is for sale by all Druggists.

VETERAN PRINTER PASSES FROM LIFE

Death Claims Joseph Bull After One Week's Illness From Pneumonia.

LED AN ACTIVE AND USEFUL LIFE

Had Been With the Deseret News For More Than Half a Century—A Man of Sterling Character.

After an illness of but a week's duration Joseph Bull, one of the veteran printers of the state, died from an attack of pneumonia, his demise occurring at the family residence, 224 West First North street at 7:05 last evening. While his health has not been the best for some time he remained faithful at his post of duty in the "News" composing room until one week ago Saturday, when he was compelled to take to his bed. Pneumonia quickly developed and it soon became evident that his condition was precarious. He apparently knew that meeting and approaching the close of life's eventful battle and prepared for the end with the knowledge that he had conscientiously and faithfully played his part. His funeral will take place from the family residence at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and interment will be at the city cemetery.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

Joseph Bull was born Jan. 25, 1832, in Leicester, Leicestershire, England, and was the only son of Daniel Bull and Elizabeth Burdette. At the age of 14 years he was apprenticed in the printing business. In 1847 he first heard a "Mormon" Elder preach and was at once attracted by the doctrines which he advocated. For a year after he had been converted practically "alone," his ultimate destination being Salt Lake City. A collision in the Irish channel, however, detained them for three weeks, after which they continued their journey, arriving at New Orleans March 14, 1851, and in the afternoon of the same day Elder Bull arrived at Kanab, Iowa, where he entered the office of the "Frontier Reporter."

A month later he left for Utah, driving a herd of cattle across the plains, and arriving in Salt Lake City Sept. 15, 1851. For the first few months Elder Bull was engaged in the canyons, and in January, 1852, he was retained by Willard Richards as an employee of the Deseret News, with which relation he has since been connected practically ever since. He printed the invitations for the first typographical festival held in Salt Lake City, the cards being in various-colored inks. He also printed the first book of laws passed by the Territorial Legislature.

In February, 1852, Elder Bull was ordained a Seventy and became identified with the Thirtieth quorum of which he was clerk for several years. Oct. 28, 1854, he married Miss Emma Green, who was called on a mission to California, where he assisted Elders George Q. Cannon and Matthew F. Wilkie in the printing of the Book of Mormon in the Hawaiian language and in the publication of the "Western Standard," a weekly newspaper. While on this mission he also presided over the San Francisco conference, which position he held until July, 1857, when he was called by Elder Cannon on a mission to the Sandwich Islands, to publish a paper at Honolulu. Just as he was about ready to embark on the ship "Brigham" Young came from President Brigham Young to the Elders to return home in consequence of the "Buchanan War," and this resulted in the breaking up of the western missions. On returning to Utah, Elder Bull resumed his position in the Deseret News office, at which time he did the first copper-plate printing done in the west, for the Deseret Currency association. At the time of the move south he went to Provo, and in the fall he re-entered the Deseret News office. He was a member of the "Mechanics Dramatic association," of which Philip Margetts was at the time president. On Sept. 25, 1859, he was called on a mission to Europe. Arriving in Liverpool Dec. 12, 1859, he was shortly afterwards appointed president of the Bedfordshire conference and in 1863 he succeeded Elder Joseph F. Smith as president of the Sheffield district, conducting the Sheffield, Leeds and Hull conferences. He also labored in the "Millennial Star" office, during which time he superintended the publication of several of the standard works of the Church.

He returned home in 1864, having been absent nearly four years, and resumed his position with the Deseret News. In the fall of 1866 he was appointed by President Young to take charge of the publication and business of the "Juvenile Instructor," and about this time he and Edward L. Sloan issued the "Curtain," the first theatrical program printed in this section. On several occasions Elder Bull made trips east and west in the interest of the Deseret News, these trips being for the purchase of type, paper and presses, as the circumstances of the occasion required. In October, 1877, he was called on a second mission to Great Britain, laboring portions of the time in the office at Liverpool and spending another portion in the Birmingham district. During this mission he superintended the printing of editions of the Book of Mormon, Doctrine and Covenants, Spencer's Letters, Pearl of Great Price, and Orson Pratt's Key to the Universe; also about 250,000 tracts. Returning home in the fall of 1883, Elder Bull resumed his labors in the Deseret News office, and made several eastern trips for the purpose of soliciting advertising, in which work he was quite successful and became pretty generally known as the "Mormon Newspaper Man." He also did some work for the Salt Lake Herald. At a time he labored in the Salt Lake Temple, and after the death of his wife Emma, which occurred Oct. 24, 1885, he married Miss Zina V. Hyde, daughter of the late Apostle Orson Hyde and his wife Marinda, who, with several children by both marriages, survive him. He was the father of Joseph Bull, Jr., the well known deputy sheriff. His oldest grandson, Joseph W. Bull, is on a mission in England. Elder Bull had been a resident of the Seventeenth ward since 1884.
