THE TIMBER ACT.

Subjoined is the circular recently issued from the department of the interior regarding the rules governing the use of timber on the public domain:

"1.—The act, so far as it relates to timber on the public land, applies only to the states of Colorado, Montana, Idaho, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming and Nevada, the district of Alaska, and the territory of Utah.

"2.—The right of railroad companies to procure timber for construction purposes from the public land adjacent to the lines of their roads, authorized by the several granting acts and the act of March 3, 1875, (18 Stats., 482) is in no way enlarged by this act.

"3.—The act of June 3, 1878 (20 Stats.), authorizing the cutting of timber for building, agricultural, mining, and other domestic purposes, from public lands which are known to be mineral and not subject to entry under existing laws of the United States except for mineral entry, is not repealed by this act, but remains in force subject to the rules and regulations prescribed thereunder by the secretary of the interior.

"4.—Settlers upon the public lands, miners, farmers and other bona fide residents in either of the States, District or Territory named in this act, who have not a sufficient supply of timber on their own claims or lands for firewood, fencing or building purposes, or for necessary use in developing the mineral or other natural resources of the lands owned or occupied by them, are permitted to procure timber from the public lands strictly for the purposes enumerated in this section, but not for sale or disposal or use on other lands or by other persons; but this section shall not be construed to give the right to cut timber on any appropriated or reserved public lands, and the secretary of the interior reserves the right to prescribe such further restrictions as he may, at any time, deem necessary, or to revoke the permission granted hereby in any case or cases wherein he has information that persons are abusing the conceded privileges, or where it is necessary for the public good.

"5.—Section 2461, United States revised statutes, is still in force in the States, district and territory named in this act, as well as in all other States and territories of the United States. Its provisions may be enforced as heretofore against any person who shall cut or remove, or cause or procure to be cut or removed, or aid or assist or be employed in cutting or removing, any timber from public lands of any other character or description, or for any other use or purpose whatever than as above defined in sections 2, 3, and 4 of these rules and regulations, unless special permission is first obtained from the secretary of the interior, specifically designating the particular sections or tracts from which timber may be cut, and under what restrictions and limitations.

"6.—Persons, firms, or corporations residing in either of the States, district or Territory named in this act, who desire to procure permission to cut or remove timber from public lands for purposes of sale or traffic, or to manufacture same into lumber or other timber product as an article of merchandise, or for any other use whatsoever other than as defined in sections 2, 3 and 4 of these rules and regulations, must first submit an application therefor in writing to the secretary of the interior, designating the lands by sections, townships, and ranges, if surveyed, and, if unsurveyed, describing the lands by natural boundaries, and the estimated number of acres therein. They must also define the character of the land and the kind of trees or timber growing thereon, giving an estimate as to the quantity of each kind, stating which particular kind or kinds they desire authority to cut or remove, and the specific purpose or purposes for which the timber or the product thereof is required. The application must be sworn to and witnessed by not less than four reliable and responsible citizens of the State, district, or territory in which the land is situated, and who reside in the locality of the particular land described.

"7.—The petitioner or petitioners should also submit with the application such evidence as can be procured to conclusively show that the preservation of the timber or trees on the land described is not required for the public good, but that its use as lumber or other product, and for the purposes named in the application, is a public necessity. Upon receipt of the application, with accompanying papers, it will be duly considered, and if deemed for public interest, the desired permission will be granted subject to such restrictions and limitations as may be deemed necessary; but if it shall appear that the cutting of timber in the locality described in the application will be detrimental to the public interest or infringe upon the rights and privileges of the settlers in that locality, the application will be rejected.

"8.—In order that farmers who desire to have the forests preserved in the interest of the water supply for irrigation and all others having adverse interests may have due notice of such applications, the parties making an application, as herein provided, shall cause a notice of such application, describing the lands and timber which it is desired to use, to be published at least one week for three consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in the state, district or territory, and also in a newspaper in the county, or, where there is more than one county, in each of the counties wherein the lands are situated, and a printed copy of the published notices must be submitted with the application, together with the affidavit of the pub-
