

"My prayers are daily ascending for you, and for all the Elders throughout the land, and, although I am not much of a writer, nor a man of great noise, in my secret prayers I take pleasure to remember all the interests and all the different branches of the great latter-day work, of which preaching the Gospel and gathering honest Israel is by far not the smallest. But some may think that attending to the 'almighty dollar' is more necessary. On my late mission I learned to realize the fact, that a better spirit attends an Elder when preaching the Gospel, a duty which we owe to fallen mankind, than when devoting his time to worldly matters. Nevertheless, all is necessary to develop the kingdom, and to keep us from getting one-sided."

Elder E. A. Box writes from Norbury, June 14—

"I am now paying a farewell visit to my wife's friends, previous to returning to my mountain home."

"I have thus far been quite successful in tracing back the genealogy of my family, and, I think, by the time I leave England, I shall have obtained nearly 200 names belonging to the family, dating back as far as 1678."

"I am sometimes led to believe that the Saints do not attach the importance that they should do to the subject of baptism for the dead, or they would, while in their native countries, endeavor to obtain what information they could respecting their families, and thereby save themselves a great deal of trouble and regret when they have gathered to Zion."

"Since we held our Conference in Manchester, there has been a spirit of inquiry concerning our doctrines visible in a number of the branches, and we are in hopes that it will result in much good."

"The brethren are preparing for out-door preaching. Some have already commenced."

"The emigration from the Manchester Conference, this year, will more than double that of last. This is very gratifying, as it shows that the Saints are putting into practice the teachings which are given them."

"The Saints, I am happy to say, are doing very well, and the work of God is progressing."

EXAMINATION CONTINUED.—The examination of Ah Gyp and Chong Wong, charged with shooting and killing Joseph Simon, was resumed at ten o'clock this morning.

Mr. Schutzelin was introduced as a witness for the prosecution. He testified that he heard Simon say, on the sidewalk or in the saloon, either that he was "going to die" or that he "would have to die;" and after he was taken to his own room, that he expected to die, and that he desired that some one should give him poison that his sufferings might not be prolonged. The first remark about dying was made by Simon about half-past twelve o'clock, and the second between one and two o'clock.

Previous to making those remarks Simon recognized the witness, saying he was the barber down the street. He said two Chinamen shot him, and afterwards that it was a Chinaman at a little store round the corner. He also said there were three or four Chinamen in the store. Officer Smith requested witness to ask Simon what kind of a coat the man wore who shot him, and he said he had a white blouse on. That was before the two Chinamen were brought before deceased. Most of this conversation was carried on in German. Simon appeared to be in great pain at times, while at other times did not appear to suffer much.

Mr. Welch was the next witness for the prosecution. We give his evidence in brief: After Simon was taken to the Philadelphia Saloon he said he was going to die, or said, "Let me die." He supposed deceased was affected in his mind, caused by the intense pain he appeared to be suffering. He said it was the Chinaman with the white blouse who shot him. The Chinaman was present when he said so. Witness pulled the Chinaman alluded to close to deceased and asked the latter if it was he who shot him, and he said it was. Both Chinamen were before him at this time, but he said nothing about Chong Wong, the one with the dark blouse.

Officer Alexander Burt was placed on the stand by the prosecuting counsel. He was present in the saloon and asked the interpreter to ask Simon if these were the Chinamen who shot him, to which he answered yes, and when questioned as to which of the two did the firing, he answered that it was the one with the white blouse (Ah Gyp).

The prosecution here rested their case, and the introduction of evidence for the defense was commenced.

Robert Hazlep was the first witness for the defense. Saw four men carrying a man away from Commercial Street. He went to Kon Gee's store. When he got there the police were inside. He assisted them to search the premises for fire-arms, but found none but a gun. The night was bright moonlight. William Studer, the first witness in this examination, had told witness he saw a Chinaman run down the street immediately after the shooting. Studer said he could not catch him as he had to go for the police.

Joseph Salsbury was next sworn and placed on the stand. He testified that William Studer, in answer to questions put by witness, said immediately the shot was fired two Chinamen came out of a house adjoining Kon Gee's store and ran into a back yard. The door of Kon Gee's store, and that from which the women emerged were about ten feet apart.

Officer Andrew Smith was next examined. Himself and officers Alexander Burt and John Y. Smith searched the premises for fire-arms, but found no pistol. Found some knives and a gun on the premises. The prisoner, Chong Wong, told witness when he arrested him that there was no other Chinaman in the house but himself and Kon Gee, and that he knew nothing about the shooting and did not hear any firing. In answer to an unnecessary question put by defending counsel, as to whether Chong Wong spoke to witness in English or Chinese, the latter said, "In English, I don't understand Chinese."

Officer John Y. Smith was placed on the stand, his evidence being substantially the same as that given by the witness preceding him. Himself and Mr. Livingstone found Ah Gyp in the cellar after Chong Wong had said there was nobody but himself and Kon Gee in the house at the time. He requested the witness Hazlep to assist him in searching for fire-arms.

The case, so far as the evidence was concerned, here closed, and a recess was taken till 2 o'clock, at which time the arguments in the case were to be commenced.

BUFFALO, 14.—During a heavy hailstorm this morning the passenger train from Hornellsville, on the Erie Railroad, ran into a gravel train, seriously injuring four laborers, and cutting and bruising several others.

TROY, 14.—William Deegan and James Herrick, while resisting arrest by policeman Bradshaw, in Lansingburg, last evening, were shot by officer Deegan, and fatally injured.

FT. McPIERSON, Neb., 14.—Professor Marsh and the Yale College exploring party returned here today from the Niobrara river, where they have spent the last month in investigations. The trip was successful, and many interesting discoveries were made. Many new extinct animals were found, among them several fossils of horses, camels, and rhinoceros. The party are all well, and start to-morrow for Ft. Bridger to explore the Uintah Mountain country.

NEW YORK, 14.—Byron A. Steif, nephew of Charlotte Willetts, whose body was found in a house in 87th street, in a horrible state of decomposition, appeared at the coroner's office to-day, and said he first heard of her death this a.m. Deceased had brought him up from childhood. She was the executrix of his father's estate. She was of eccentric habits, never left her house during the daytime, and refused to have any servants or anyone else to reside in the house. Witness last saw her May 9. He called at the house four weeks ago, but could not get in. His aunt was probably then dead.

Mrs. Walworth and her youngest son have taken up their residence in Sing Sing village, and yesterday attended Catholic service in the prison chapel. By special request no visitors will be allowed to see Frank, who, to-day, commenced work in the private office of the clerk of the shoe department.

NEW YORK, 14.—Rumors having been circulated that Thurlow Weed was seriously ill, an announcement is made that although he had suffered recently from a chronic difficulty, his general health has remained as good as usual.

President McMahon, in conversation with a correspondent, says the real government of the country is now vested in the ministry, and "I am firmly convinced that the only change which they will introduce into the republic will be to carry out the programme which the late government proved itself incapable of doing. We are not impolitic enough to take steps similar to those taken by the empire, but everything that can be done to insure the Pope's safety and the necessary liberties of all shall be done. It is directly against the interests of Italy to expel the Pope from his dominions, for were he obliged to take refuge in a foreign country, the Catholics of all the world would unite in crying shame against Italy, and public opinion would be against the Italian government to such an extent that not only would our interference become compulsory, but might become the signal for a European war, from which Italy has little to hope and everything to fear. In accepting the Presidency I did not look to the future, but only to the right, and that left me where I saw men of every shade of political opinion, ready to tear each other to pieces, and lead a crowd of ignorant electors to do as much. The necessity of saving the army, our only hope for the maintenance of our country in the rank which belongs to her, out of this hideous scramble for power and profit, was the uppermost thought in my mind when the offer of the Presidency was made me. To re-organize the army, and make it the bulwark of French liberty ought to be the aim of every true Frenchman. There is no reason why the present regime, in its amended constitutional form, with the military executive who should reign over the country and rule the army, should not become established in France. When the words the 'Empire and Republic' become synonymous every citizen will be a soldier, and every soldier the servant of the republic; then there will be as little strife and wrangling in the country as to who shall be minister as there is at present as to who shall be Marshal."

NEW YORK, 14.—Lizzie Lloyd King, alias Kate Stoddard, the murderer of Goodrich, slept soundly in King's county jail last night. The leading papers were furnished her at her request to-day, and she read all they contained in reference to her case. Some of the statements, she remarked, were incorrect, but she did not particularize them. For a time she appeared in a melancholy mood, but subsequently she brightened up, and appeared very cheerful and conversed for some time with Fanny Hyde, the murderer of Geo. W. Watson, whom she considerably resembles. They spend the greater part of the time in each other's company. The excitement in Brooklyn over the case is unabated, and it is the topic of conversation in every house and on every corner, and this a.m. Miss King's effects, with the exception of a number of letters and articles of the deceased, found in her possession, were sent to the jail. The watch, pocket-book, rings, seals, etc., were handed over to the district attorney, and will be used as evidence on the trial. The trial, however, will not take place in three months, as it will be September before the next grand jury will be empanelled. Miss Palm, the affianced of Goodrich, had a long interview with the murderer to-day. The detective is still in search of Roscoe, as is also Lucette Myers.

The sensational reports of foul play in the case of the death of Miss Willetts are fully exploded. The body bears no evidence of murder, and the case is simply one where an eccentric old lady, living alone, died unattended.

A London correspondent publishes a story of a conspiracy to rob the Shah of Persia of his jewels. According to the story, which sounds very apocryphal, the parties to the plot were four persons. Col. Algernon Bignor Hawkins was leader of the party and organizer of the conspiracy; Serafino, his other name not known, a Jew diamond broker of Marseilles, but formerly of Salonica, Baron Narses Migraditch, a number of the Dadian family, formerly seraff or money lender of Aleppo, but lately of London and Paris, an entechian armian said to be connected with the eminent Oglor Dadian family, which so long has managed the finances of the Sublime Porte; the fourth and last was Toby Spring, a first-class burglar and safe blower. The plot does not appear to have been so elaborate a one as might be expected from such a combination of talented rascals, and it was discovered through the indiscretion of Narses, who, elated at the prospect of success, got drunk on opium, and was followed by the police to the rendezvous of the conspirators. The result was the capture of Toby Spring and Serafino, while Hawkins escaped and Narses considerably ran into the river and was drowned. The heaviest burden of the cheat fell upon poor General Hadji Dochell Alledin, who has been permanently disgraced, and was sent home to Persia by the next steamer of the Peninsula and Oriental line.

The following telegram has been received at the office of the Anglo-American Telegraph Company in New York:

"The steamers Kangaroo and Edinburgh arrived at Placentia, Newfoundland, on Sunday a.m., with a cable on board for the two lines between that place and Sydney, Cape Breton. The Edinburgh came into collision with an iceberg in a dense fog, off Cape Breton. Her bowgear was damaged, but the ship was not much injured."

WASHINGTON.—The Department of State is informed by cable, from minister Sickles, at Madrid, that the Spanish government has issued a decree rescinding all embargoes, and ordering the immediate restoration of all property heretofore seized for political offences in Cuba.

WASHINGTON, 14.—Dr. Mary E. Walker was, to-day, appointed to a nine hundred-dollar clerkship in the office of the Treasurer of the United States.

CHICAGO, 14.—At Keokuk, Iowa, on Saturday night, Dennis Reeves and wife quarrelled, when the latter, assisted by her son by a former husband, a boy of sixteen years, beat Dennis to death with a potatoe masher, and buried him yesterday a.m. The suspicions of the authorities were aroused and the body was disinterred, when a coroner's inquest developed the above facts. The steamer Tigress sailed this evening from the navy yard, on her voyage in search of the Polaris.
