EVENING NEWS.

Monday, October 10, 1887.

FROM THE FOUR WINDS.

John Ruskin is on the continent for rest. His publishers deny that he is insane. He has always been queer.

Mrs. S. H. Porter, of Columbus, O., sues a certain French "professor" of Cincinnati, because, instead of removing hair from her face he disfigured her for life.

Melissier offered to paint a picture on a white satin fan belonging to his little granddaughter. She refused the offer, not without indignation, and said she did not want her pretty fan soiled with his old paints.

"You want to buy a stove? Certainly, ma'am. What kind of a stove?" "Well, we're just married and I think of going into housekeeping; and, as I don't know how to cook, I think I will take a cooking stove."

Grady, of the Atlanta Constitution, has been offered $1,000 by a lecture bureau to go through the country and repeat his story of the New South, as delivered at the New England banquet. The editor declined, with the privilege of reconsidering the proposition.

Enameled or glazed bricks, for outside or interior decoration, are made by applying to the surface a flux, which, during the burning, causes the silica to melt and form a vitreous covering. Such flux is easily colored, and thus very beautiful fancy bricks are produced.

A young man in college wrote as follows to his father: "My dear father, I have only time—being greatly rushed with my studies to send my love and tell you that I wish you would send me fifty dollars. The father replied: "My dear son, I have only time—being greatly rushed with my day—to send love and tell you that I have not sent you fifty dollars."

On coming out of the mayor's office, where they had just been married, she throws herself into his arms, exclaiming: "Forgive me, I've kept something from you; I did not tell you I didn't know how to cook." "Oh, never mind, dear, don't cry about that, for you'll have but little cooking to do—I'm a poet."

Mrs. Youngbridge Honeycomb (to husband, who is a railroad president)—And are you sure you will always, always love me more than you will any one else? Mr. Honeycomb (absently)—Impossible to say. You see, it is very doubtful as to whether the divorce law will allow me to make any discrimination.

One of Buffalo Bill's Indians disappeared the other day, and it was feared he had committed suicide by drowning in the Platte. He returned a few days later, however, and explained that he had merely been visiting his Dublin "to see his old mother."

"Terrible storm that, last evening, George?" "Didn't hear it, old man." "Didn't hear it? Man alive, I dined right to wake the dead!" "Ha, I thought I saw lightning, but I didn't hear any thunder. An old schoolmate of my wife's is visiting here, and they haven't seen each other for ten years."

Texas fever seems to be breaking out in a number of places in Illinois. The state board of live stock commissioners has information of the existence of the disease near Essex, Kankakee County, near West Point, Hancock County and in Adams County. Veterinarians have been sent to each place to make investigations and establish local quarantines if necessary.

First Omaha Girl—Clara Stuckup's father gave her a magnificent diamond ring for her birthday present. I suppose she'll be around with it putting on airs.

Second Omaha Girl—She won't put on any airs over me. I have a new ring, too. See here. "But her ring is diamond." "No matter; she'll feel bad when she sees this. It's an engagement ring."

"What sort of a watch is this?" asked a gentleman, picking up a curious old time-piece in the shop of a dealer in curiosities.

"That," replied the dealer, "is a real curiosity. It is a watch that belonged to Alexander the Great when he died on the barren island of St. Helena."

"The deuce it is! Why, man alive, in the days of Alexander the Great there was no such thing as watches!" "That's just what makes it such a rarity. Alexander the Great didn't die at St. Helena."

"He didn't, eh? Well, that makes it a still greater curiosity." And taking up the rare relic, the dealer looked it up in his burglar-proof safe.

Being a physician to the Ameer of Afghanistan is a dangerous position. Recently the ameer had a bolt on his arm. His physician placed some ointment on it. The pain of the bolt was increased, and he moaned, whereupon the ameer ordered the head of the physician chopped off.

The latest scheme to swindle the farmer is being perpetrated under the guise of a so-called society to prevent the killing of birds. A man invades a rural home, talks glibly about the good being done for the farmer by the birds, and ends by asking him to sign a pledge not to kill a bird in twelve months. The pledges, with a little manipulation, turn up in the way of a promissory note, and make trouble.

A well-known steam engine builder says that a large share of the fault found with the engines running unsteadily comes from permitting the governor to get dry from lack of oil, or jammed up in some of its essential parts. The instances sending a man 100 miles upon repeated complaints of an engine sold two years previous. A half-day spent in putting the governor in condition was all the man did when he got there.—American Machinist.

Soldering Cast Iron with Tin.

Many ornamental articles are made of cast iron, variously decorated. The smaller specimens of this kind break very easily if carelessly handled. Then the question arises how to mend the broken article, a question that has puzzled many, as it is so very hard to firmly unite pieces of cast iron. It is hard to find a simple method, because cast iron has but a slight affinity for tin solder. The soldering can be made much easier by first cleaning the faces of the broken parts from all impurity, which is not necessary when the fracture is of recent occurrence and the broken parts are perfectly clean on their faces. With a brass wire scrubbing brush the faces of the fracture are continually scrubbed until they finally appear perfectly yellow, thus in a certain sense being "dry plated," with brass; the rough cast iron rubs off brass from the fine wires very quickly. The brazed surfaces are then just as brass is tinned, and then with no greater difficulty the parts can be soldered together.

THE GREAT, BIG BRUTE.—"Gert, ride," he said, "have you ever felt that your heart beat responsive to that of another?"

"I have, George," owned up Gertie, and her head nestled on his shoulder.

"Did you ever feel that your destiny was so linked to that of another that it was useless to try to follow it out alone?"

"Yes, George," returned Gertie, as she nestled some more.

"Gertrude, I will ask you more plainly, do you love me?"

"I will not attempt to conceal my feelings, George; I do."

"Well," said George, sliding out of the hammock, "I'm glad to hear that because Will Tompkins bet me a box of cigars the other day that I wouldn't indulge in a little flirtation. I am really much obliged to you for the assurance, and—"

But Gertie had gone into the house and slammed the door with all her might.
