The "Contributor" for 1891.

We have before us volume twelve of the Contributor (1891). It is a most interesting book, comprising within its pages numerous articles of excellent literary merit. It is of value not only as a magazine containing intelligently written papers upon current and historic themes, but is of great worth for reference, owing to a wealth of important data being comprised within its contents. There are numbers of Contributors who take each volume bound at the conclusion in place of its serial number. We have had to read now obtain them for the past year, while those who have taken the numbers issued ought to have them in their possession. Those who have them should therefore return them.

Volume twelve contains some unusually interesting biographical sketches, which are always attractive reading. Biography is always a favorite study, and it is always—always associated with morbid studies—can be presented.

Mind Reading.

Wednesday was not opened at the usual hour this morning on account of a public trial reading test given by Prof. Seymour, who today opens that place of amusement for the next week. A committee, prominent among whom were representatives of the News, Herald and Times, Judge Laroy and Harvey Coffman (child of the Rio Grande Western), met at the courthouse hall at 11:30 this morning and a few minutes afterwards the professor started to give voice tests, such as finding articles which were hidden. After this he took a committee of two or three and seated them while something, while the other gentlemen remained behind at Wanstall with the professor. The article, which was a gold medal, in a box in his pocket, was found in a box in his pocket. Prof. Seymour then read a few words from the book he was holding, and the committee was asked if they could find the article. The money was returned and the affair settled.

ANOTHER BLAZE.

The Belmont Residence of George Thomas Damaged by Fire.

SPONTANEOUS CONGESSION THE CAUSE.

The Loss is Fully Covered by Insurance in the Home and Other Companies.

At 12:30 o'clock this afternoon the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Temple, on Main Street, was destroyed. Mrs. Temple, who was occupying her home, which is located on the fifth floor of the house, at that time observed smoke issuing from a closet adjoining her chamber. She promptly sounded the alarm and found the rafters and shingles of the roof in flames, then shouting directed her attention to the window, which was shattered. Mrs. Temple, who has recently moved into Bishop Cleaves' house, and matched the occupant.

Mr. Cleaves was proceeding to an alarm when a pedestrian who was passing the City Hall suddenly saw dense clouds of smoke issuing through the roof. He at once sprang the door, and immediately informed the department, which immediately responded.

The run up the heavy grade from the Theatre to the Eagle Gate on Main Street was made with difficulty. The firemen were compelled to use ladders to reach the roof, and the smoke was so dense that the men were unable to see the fire.

The fire was then unrolled and started up the heavy timber heating from the street to the house, then up the main entrance, and finally through the front door, until the fire was reached. For a time the smoke was thick, but after it had cleared away the flames became extinguished, and the interior of the building was entirely saved.

The exact cause of the fire will probably never be ascertained, but it is believed that it originated in spontaneous combustion of the insulation filled with articles of an inflammable nature, such as oil paintings, many of them valuable, and a variety of papers.

In Justice Baird's court yesterday afternoon, the sheriff, with a number of men having been summoned, over of damages was inflicted by the Great Northern Railway Company for $25,000 was to be taken into trial, but the trial was adjourned, and the case will be heard on January 1st.

During the early stage of the fire, Governor Thomas was observant, but arrived in time to do no service, but nevertheless the governor and the insurance men, who were making a careful inspection of the premises, went down a staircase and the governor, who was wearing a coat, was seen to have a cut on his hand, about 25-30.

The building was turned over to the sheriff, who had charge of the same, and was removed.

The most noteworthy point about the house was the governor's daughter, who acted the part of a heroine from the beginning.
