Vernal, Chitain Co., Aug. 13.—The has day of registration here was very similar to the rest, no excitement nor rush. One man presented his affidavit just one minute past six, but was not allowed to register. There has been pienty or chance for all, and most or those who had a right have registered in this county.

Yesterday Col. Mason, commander at Fort Duchesne, and the past doctor and judge-advocate, were in town and registered. They also were having maps of their irrigating system and pumping plant at Fort Duchesne made, preparatory to filing an application for water with the state engineer.

There are enough applications for the waters of the Ulniah river now on file to drain it dry during its highest flow.

A great many people who have returned from looking over the reservation express themselves as well satisfied with the outlook while others declare they have had enough already, and are going home regardless of what their numbers may be in the drawing.

It is safe to predict, however, that within five years a new county will be formed out of the present reservation and will very likely be called Duchesne county.

will very likely be called Duchesne country.

Busy times are expected here during the filing and fakirs are siready getting themselves in line to reap a harvest.

One man here is advertising free water rights with each location. Another is taking one of the printed cheap maps from Denver, which by the way is not accurate, marking in a few of the indian allotments and giving the "key" to the allotments and seiling them for $15 each, and a few people bite, too. The "key" to the allotments is very simple as a surveyer is now engaged putting up corner stakes with the name of the indian plainty written on them. It will be no trouble to the hallofficulty in selecting a claim for filing as the survey of most of the agricultural lands was made by Charles DuBeis in 1875, and the stones and markings have been removed and defaced.

There are reliable surveyors in the field howeyer, well established and well known who are prepared to do accurate work at reasonable prices and homesteaders will do well to be careful and avoid the failirs and grafters and secure the services of these men.

Alexander McMaster, Atty, for Estate, and Fraughter and Caldwell were the right men. And he sticks to it yet also though a dezen alitis have been secured showing that the two men were at work at Aliantic City at the time of the estine. Judge W. S. Metz of Sheridan, counsel for the suspects, stries that they may bring suit for false imprisonment.

This probably choses the celebrated bank robberty case, for even though large rewards have been kept glanding. In all purbability no trace of the murederers will ever be secured.
