

A BUSY AFTERNOON.

Non-Partisan Fire and Police Bill
Under Consideration.

PROCEEDINGS IN THE HOUSE.

James Presents a Petition from Chiano of Cache County Relating to Public Lands.

When the State Senate was called to order this afternoon, several members were absent. The chair announced that Senator Cavanagh had been called away on account of sickness in his family. Prayer was offered by the Rev. W. K. Lewis of the Methodist church.

The minutes of yesterday's proceedings were officially signed off and the first matter of importance to receive attention was the report from the committee on county and municipal corporations on S. No. 6, the non-partisan fire and police bill. The committee recommended its passage with the suggested amendment which, in the absence of Chairman Nuttall, was introduced by Senator Clegg. The report contained no changes in physiology.

It was moved that the bill be referred back to the committee on public lands.

The committee on public lands, moved to amend by having the suggested amendment struck from the bill. The amendment, saying the Senate should be consulted with the consideration of the bill, was then withdrawn without any vote for several reasons.

The discussion then went on about the necessary side-tracking of both the non-partisan bill in order to allow the pending measure to be taken up.

The committee on ways and means reported favorably upon the bill providing for the construction and regular expense of the Legislature. The same committee was recommended the passage of House bill No. 2.

The proposed labor bill was likewise favorably reported upon by the committee on public lands, and the proposed measure in charge.

The committee on education reported favorably upon an act incorporating Utah State schools for the deaf and dumb and blind, and the bill was referred to the committee on public lands, and continuing the office of county school of weights and measures for the several counties of the State. Committee on county and municipal corporations.

NON-PARTISAN FIRE AND POLICE BILL AGAIN.

Nutter introduced a bill for an amending bill to each of the statutes of the State, prescribing his duties, making his ex-officio general supervisor of the county roads and bridges, of county roads, and the removal of county roads, and abolishing the office of county school of weights and measures for the several counties of the State. Committee on county and municipal corporations.

AMUSEMENTS.

by the average amount of annual cost per acre, viz.: $15-$20 would be more correct. Many farms are unprofitable and should not be cultivated. They lost their claims by so doing.

When the general government opened the land office, parties were chosen to enter the land by mutual consent. Those who did not apply to enter the lands were given a right to enter at a later date. The consequence of the people's having but a limited knowledge of land laws, they submitted to what they thought to be the inevitable.

Now as to the condition of the land previous to the time when water became available, it was found that about one-third made any land by irrigation; the remainder was of very poor quality, being mixed with mineral, etc. Some of the land, however, has been made to grow crops. Now, if you have a good deal of equity at your lands, place yourselves in our position, and ask what you would do in the premises.

The claims range from two and a half to five acres, depending on the fact we see that the land is suitable for cultivation at its normal value at the time of settlement—$1.25 per acre—and your petitioners will ever pray.

The petition was signed by James H. Haefield, John Stack and twenty-five others.

A petition from Hordell, Carbon county, signed by Loyal Llewellyn and four others was presented by Ferguson, of Carbon, by request. It asked that when the bill authorizing the sale of small land, cause under consideration be construed as to allow settlers to buy the land at the government price of $1.25 acres. Referred to the committee on public lands.

The committee on claims to which the petitioners belong, No. 1, A. & S. No. 12, returned the bill, asking their reference to the board of examiners.

The committee on ways and means, private corporations and judiciary reported that the bill was good, but that they had had no consideration.

After which, on motion of Taylor, the House received back into a committee of the whole with Simms in the chair.

S. No. 6, relating to the settling and surveying of land, where no incorporation could be filed, was then taken up, on motion of Nye. After some discussion it was agreed that when the committee acted, they would act favorably on the bill.

H. J. Do, no, not providing for sufficient compensation for the services, miners, laborers, servants etc., for wages, was being discussed at press time.

A Few Remarks Suggested by The Defender—Other Plays.

There was a very much more audience at the Theater last night where The Defenders, "the most thrilling play on the boards," was presented for the first time, but regard for truth compels the explanation that the amusement was not entirely furnished by the players. Undoubtedly they did their very best to make the piece interesting and impressive, but with only indifferent success. The situation was relieved, however, by sundry audible remarks from that critical part of the audience that clusters around the ceiling, and the judicious introduction, as a climax to the performance, of a couple of dummy ladies which might have passed for neglected descendants of Don Quixote's and La Cieca Fauna's famous steeds but for the evident ambition of the artist to outdo themself, gave to the whole piece a humorous effect "that must seem to be appreciated." It was well and appropriate last night nearly all the critics who attended the opening who in confidence admitted that he "unfortunately" was the author of the new manager.

The play is patterned after famous classic productions, insurance as it is, and the author, like the artist, in his ability of masking up in quantity or possibly defects in quality, on the principle that two platters of bad soup ought to be equal in value to one good one. And, though the author did not succeed in carrying the idea, could not have offered a more penitent action, after his experiments with soap-and-water instead of solid water, convinced him that the best plan is to give the public its money's worth for a penny.

The author, like the artist, is such a high claimant have been made, fair below the previous productions of Mr. Carter. The company selected to present it is fair, but the piece itself is impossible, at least before an audience of cultured taste.

The Defender closes the engagement at the Theater tonight.

The Grand Opera House was packed last night and the play, Forge, was received with enthusiasm. Mr. May, the author, and a party of his friends, truly artistic in their work, Messrs. Ingoldsby and Edwards, share honors in their interpretations of their respective roles.

At the Lyceum tomorrow morning a special U. S. Cavalry muster will be given. Vivian's Slave is the regular bill this week.

An amateur dramatic company played a four-act drama last night at the Hotel Colorado, in the basement room. It entitled a Sister Day. An interesting point about it is that it is written by one of the members of the company and has considerable dramatic merit. It is very well played. The entertainment will be repeated this evening.

The Social Hall being used by the M. I. A. League, the High Priests of the Salt Lake Stake of Zion will meet in the Assembly hall tomorrow at 11 a.m. ELIAS MONAHAN, President of High Priests' Quarantine.

DALLIN'S SIR ISAAC NEWTON

The Utah Man's Work of Art for the Congressional Library.

He Has Completed His Cart and Submitted It to Philadelphia on Saturday Last.

The Philadelphia Evening Item of January 12 has an article on the remarkable works of art in voluntary in the new congressional library at Washington, saying that most notable among the best known monuments on this side of the Atlantic were given from time to three statues each to create, and they have all finished their models, and some of the statues have already been cast. The subject, Dallin, a native of Springville, Utah, new instrument in sculpture at the age of 20, is the author of the cart, one of the few unique sights of New York who were regarded as worthy of the distinction. The item speaks highly of Mr. Dallin's work, giving an illustration of the statue, and pointing a sketch of the cart of the cart, showing how the cart was made, and the cart is the cart of the cart.

A edition from Boston, Carbon county, signed by Loyal Llewellyn and four others was presented by Ferguson, of Carbon, by request.
