DESERET EVENING NEWS.

Correspondence.

HOT SPRING SIDING,
U. P. R. R., May 27, 1869.

Editor Deseret News:—From this enchanting view of lake, valley, Promontory and Wasatch range, we descry the jostling cars flying upon their iron way towards the Orient. They bear us tidings of trade and commerce; of gigantic schemes for the concentration of wealth; of growth in art and science; of the inception of a homogeneous Christianity the antipodes of Puritanism, and the rising of the star of empire in the West.

Who linger now for fortunes upon the confines of unsettled State lines, or railroad termini, or junction speculations, are but day dreamers. Opaque visionaries, they scramble about on all-fours for some glittering prospective, totally oblivious to the world of wealth unfolding from the quickening laboratories of commerce in the West. With fitful tenacity they grasp at the shaggy Bear river goat, as if persistent to ignore the golden fleeced Cotswold of the Pacific. Or, can it be that these deluded civilizers cajole themselves with the phantom of a "sheet anchor of Christian civilization for the Mormons" with golden flukes? How many draughts of such sheep-heads have been brought to land in these parts, time would almost fail me to enumerate. From "Kirk" and "Pete" to "Tuck" and "Saul" the sequal of depleted wallets and donation slips have ruled the fates of them all, however elated at first, by specious assurance of support, or pampered by the shallow featured apostrophies of cliques and clubs. A word to the wise, &c.

The nomads of the terminus and junction baubles, like a gipsie horde, wander about knowing not whether to go hence or come hither. For the major part of them, unquestionably, in the words of St. Paul, "to depart hence would be far better" for any community they might infest, if not for their own future comfort. But somebody has mouthed it that a round-house, etc., is to be built at Deseret Station; and the vagrant tribe are on the rush hitherward, a herd of porkers with Old Nick at the helm. Kicked "on end" and knocked "into a cocked hat" is understood to be the finale of the performance.

Wells, Fargo & Co's stage will make connection with the trains at Deseret on or about Monday next, or as soon as their new bridge over the Weber near that station is ready. It is under rapid headway. The commodious stabling at Belmont, their station one mile from the mouth of Weber cañon, is to be removed across the river to Deseret. This will shorten the stage route from the railroad to Salt Lake City to a run of about 30 miles.

The counter-march of mails from Salt Lake via Bear River, thence to Brigham and Willard causes some dissatisfaction. The schedule runs thus: Leaving Brigham City every morning at 7 o'clock, arrives at Corinne at 8.30. Leaves Corinne at 9 o'clock, or on the arrival of the mail train, and arrives at Brigham City one hour thereafter. Leaves Brigham City at 1 p.m. and arrives at Willard at 2 p.m. This time I am assured is punctually observed, except in case of detention at Corinne. This route is carried by Wm. C. Thomas, Esq., in new and handsome express hacks, with fine well-fed American horses. When but a small sack of mail, as is sometimes the case, it is conveyed to Willard on horse-back. When a hack is required one is always in readiness. Whether "color" is a defect in the qualification of a mail carrier, I shall not now assume the province of determining; but that "Philis" is no ignoramus; that he is polite and, above all, in mail matters, attentive to business, none will deny who know him.

I have listened to serious complaints to-day concerning the non-arrival of the super-excellent "NEWS" at Brigham City, as well as Willard. I believe none are more annoyed in this than friend Thomas himself. A feeling is on the gain to trace the failures to some inadvertencies on the the mail trains. The responsibility, be assured, rests elsewhere than upon the "'49 Express" and "colored driver."

Dissatisfaction being the theme, I will enlarge upon it sufficiently to state that I am just informed by an experienced U. P. engineer that the Government Commissioners have refused to accept the line through Weber Kanyon, on the ground that a good and feasible road cannot be built there. It is quite possible the line may yet be constructed through Cache Valley, up Blacksmith's Fork to its head waters, thence following a creek, across Bear River, to the Muddy, thence to Granger's, on Ham's Fork, connecting with the present line. This, it is said, ought to have been the route of the U. P. R. R.

Very liberal additions have been made to the Ogden Hotel. It now sports the most commodious and elegantly appointed bar-room in the Territory. To "taper off," a Mammoth Mirror, 5 feet by 7, has been imported from the East, the express charges alone on which were somewhere in the region of $300. It is truly a magnificent ornament. The frame is of black-walnut, massive, but simply varnished, showing the native elegance of the wood. It is surmounted by a gilded eagle, perched over a bee-hive, the emblem of Deseret. The spacious interior is richly oak-grained; the bar is grained with a delightful variegation of sienna, black-gold, curled oak, bird's-eye maple and Egyptian, by W. V. Morris, Esq., of Salt Lake City. Other improvements—such as extensive enlargement of sleeping-rooms, sitting-rooms, etc., are in progress.

A Jew in this region recently let a Gentile have goods on time. Gentile sold the goods and was making for California with the proceeds, when he was overtaken on the Promontory, brought back and incarcerated in the cotton calaboose of Ba-ar-town. On Monday night last, some 40 persons took him from the calaboose and turned him loose. The Jew arrested and shipped him to Brigham City, where he was arrested on a charge of felony; when, after a week in court, the prosecution failing to sustain the charge, Gentile was discharged, the heavy costs falling upon the unfortunate little Jew, and losing his goods into the bargain. Technicalities are something in law. He will probably be arrested again to-night, on a charge of fraud, on which, possibly, he may be convicted.
