

HUNDREDS OF MINERS LET OUT.

Discharged by Wholesale in Different Utah Camps This Morning.

RESULT OF PARADE YESTERDAY

Men Who Participated Without Permission Find Themselves Without Employment.

MINE OWNERS ARE RETICENT.

Said That Secret Meetings Have Been Held and a Decision Reached to Get Rid of Undesirable Men.

There are several hundred miners in Bingham and other camps out of employment today, on account of taking leave of absence from the mines yesterday. The mine managers are very reticent, and are unwilling to give out anything for publication bearing on the situation. It was learned, however, from an undisputed source that the mine owners of Bingham, Tintic, Park City, and other camps have reached an understanding whereby they propose to rid the camps of any undesirable men in their employ. But the main object of which is to restrain the power of the Miners' union. The mine operators have held several secret meetings bearing upon this question.

A miner named H. Brooks, who has been employed at the New York mine in Bingham, informed the "News" that yesterday, that notices were posted at all of the mines in Bingham several days ago, and were worded to the effect that the union miners were warned that if they took a lay-off on miners' union day, they would be immediately discharged. Mr. Brooks stated that notice was served on the various mine managements in which the miners asked to be relieved from their duties yesterday, it being their annual holiday. The reply was what was contained in the notice. It was said today, that the understanding reached between the various operators of mines also applies to the various smelters as well.

Mr. Brooks added that the large turnout yesterday from Bingham was due to the position taken by the mine owners. The greatest number of men from the camp came from the Utah Consolidated, leaving only a small force on duty. The United States and Boston Consolidated were also largely represented in yesterday's parade. Only five men quit the Utah Consolidated, upon the representation, Mr. Brooks says, of Manager Jockling to the men that there was a shortage of ore at the mill. Not more than a half dozen came off duty at the Bingham Consolidated properties. The Butter-Liberal was closed and a few employees left the Yampa and York.

Some of the operators aver that men working in the mines, as well as in the smelters, are of a bad character and are advocates of socialist and anarchistic ideas. Such as brought on the recent trouble in Colorado.

'PHONE STRIKERS PLACE PICKETS.

The striking linemen of the Bell Telephone company are still out, and just what the outcome will be cannot now be said. The strikers publish the following explanation of their position:

"The linemen in the employ of the Rocky Mountain Bell Telephone company are out on a strike in consequence of the violation of an agreement made between them and the telephone company May 1. In this agreement the company proposed to pay all sub-foremen 35 cents per hour and this is the specific part of the agreement that has been violated.

"A committee was in consultation with Manager Murray this morning, during which he admitted that he had a grievance but did not signify his intention of adjusting it.

"Two men were discharged for refusing to do sub-foremen's work Saturday for less than sub-foremen's pay, which is directly contrary to our agreement with the telephone company."

(Signed) "C. D. BOWMAN," "JAKE GUNTHER," "BEN ALDRICH," "H. E. BURKE," "Press Committee, Local Union No. 57, I. B. E. W."

General Manager D. S. Murray of the company in commenting thereon said today:

"It is difficult for the company to understand why the men have gone on a strike. The excuse given is trivial, and does not justify so serious and arbitrary an action, and there must be an underlying cause that is being concealed. When the grievance was presented to me, that some men were entitled to sub-foremen's pay who were not getting it, I put down in writing the company's definition of sub-foreman, so that neither our own local officials, nor the men, could go wrong in the matter, and the difference between the definition and that given by the men is so slight that it bases a strike on it is beyond reasonable belief, and it occurs to me that there must be something else behind it."

The definition of "sub-foreman" as given by Mr. Murray, "Men held responsible for the work of small gangs." He also wrote out for the consideration of the committee of strikers, this statement as to the company's position: "Two linemen with wagon and driver do not require a sub-foreman, but may have one, at the option of the company; these gangs being directly under the city foreman. For the present, there is no construction work being done on the Bell lines in this city, but the inside men are at work, and there are enough men available who can take care of trouble calls. The strikers have pickets out, two being posted opposite the Telephone building, but the company officials are not worrying over the pickets any. General Manager Murray has measures under way, which he is confident will end the strike in short order."

BIEN PLEASED WITH PROJECT.

Says Proposed Irrigation Scheme Means Great Things for the State of Utah.

HAS GONE OVER THE GROUND.

What is Now Needed is a General Organization to Treat With the Government.

Hon. Morris Bien of the reclamation service of the United States geological survey has been here since last Thursday, conferring with Col. E. F. Holmes, A. P. Doremus and F. S. Richards, the sub-committee on the Jordan river and Utah lake and the Jordan river. Mr. Friday these gentlemen, in company with City Engineer Snow and Reclamation Engineer Swenson, took Mr. Bien over the lands included in the Utah lake project on both sides of Salt Lake valley, and on Saturday they visited Utah lake and the Jordan river. Mr. Bien expressed himself as being very favorably impressed with what he saw, and stated that the conditions were much more favorable for the operations of the government under the reclamation act than he had supposed, and that he could foresee great future developments in water supply for the locality when the water project should be fully developed.

During Mr. Bien's visit he has had frequent and lengthy meetings with the sub-committee, at which all phases of the Utah lake project have been presented and exhaustively discussed. The outlines of the plan which had been proposed by the committee were submitted to him and the views of the water-users concerning the proposed organization were fully explained.

Yesterday afternoon there was a meeting of the full committee, at the office of State Engineer Doremus, at which Mr. Bien explained the plan of organization recommended by the secretary of the interior, which, in its main features, follows that of the Salt River Valley Waterusers' association. Mr. Bien pointed out the fundamental and controlling features of the proposed plan of organization and answered numerous questions that were asked by members of the committee concerning the matter.

One of the most important features of the meeting was the announcement by Mr. Bien that, in the opinion of the officers of the reclamation service, the Utah lake project should be included in the greater plan which had been presented by the state and land reclamation fund commission, and was now being investigated for the storage and utilization of the waters of Duchesne river, Bear lake and the intermediate streams, and that one association of waterusers should be organized to manage and control the waters of this entire region. Instead of having separate organizations for the Utah lake project, as originally contemplated. While this requirement will change the plans of the committee somewhat, the work that it has already done will still be available, and it is hoped that the plan will be successfully carried out in harmony with the wishes of the department.

This will impose on the state and land reclamation fund commission the work of interesting the waterusers of Utah, Salt Lake, Davis, Boxelder, Weber and Cache counties in a general cooperative movement to effect the desired organization.

Nothing new in it. As erroneously supposed by some Salt Lake newspapers, there is nothing new in the idea that the Utah lake project will be included in the general grand scheme for obtaining a sufficient supply of water for this state. The facts are these:

The national irrigation law, commonly known as the reclamation act, was passed in June, 1902. In October of that year the Utah State irrigation congress was held in this city, when propositions for several projects for the increase and utilization of the water supply in different parts of the state were considered, the first on the list being the Utah lake scheme. In the following spring the Utah Arid Land Reclamation fund commission was organized under the laws of the state, and the Utah lake proposition was taken up as the first for consideration. The matter was submitted to the government officials and after being taken up by them to ascertain the feasibility, but the commission said that the project alone would be insufficient and that other water-users, those now available would have to be utilized.

THE GREATER PLAN.

Engineers Doremus and City, F. S. Richards formulated a plan which was submitted to the commission, and subsequently it was submitted to the government officials. This plan took in the great scheme which has been explained in the columns of the "News," for the bringing in of the waters of Bear lake and the surplus waters of the Snake river in the north, and the waters of the Duchesne through the mountains into the Strawberry Valley, to make of that a great reservoir to increase the volume of Utah Lake.

Atty. Richards appeared before the authorities at Washington and thoroughly explained the plan during last winter and this spring and the work of inspection is going on in regard to the water project. One of the important subjects to be considered has been the maintenance of the different organizations so that each canal company would retain its individuality while gaining the benefit of the general plan. Mr. Bein has made it very clear that the government cannot deal with all the different water companies having prior rights, and that it is necessary to effect a merger, but that business may be conducted between the government and water users in that way, but on its board each organization will be represented and each one will regulate its own affairs, the same as before. They will constitute what is termed, "canal divisions." This will be following the Salt River Valley plan in Arizona. Each division will bear its own expense, but one organization will transact business with the government.

NO NEED FOR ALARM.

There need be no apprehension on this point, for all prior rights will and must be respected, and while the general plan is for the benefit of the whole region, each locality will manage its own water arrangements, maintain its own rights, and bear its own expenses. The inclusion of the Utah lake proposition with the others is not, by any means, anything new, as imagined in some quarters; nor will the movement for general organization to treat with the government, interfere with or hinder the work which is now in progress under government auspices.

In his tour along the Jordan to Utah lake, Mr. Bein was very much gratified with the prospects and with the preliminary work that has been accomplished. He predicts great things for Utah's future if the plans now in contemplation are fully carried out.
