

REVIEW OF PREVAILING ATHLETIC SPORTS

FOOTBALL SEASON IS ALMOST HERE

Every Effort Being Made For Strong Line-Up at "U." High School, Logan, Provo and Other Towns.

It was indeed good news to football fans throughout the state, and especially to students of the University of Utah, when Coach Joe Maddock of the Salt Lake institution announced that his organization would remain with the "Utah" until June. This means that Maddock will guide the destiny of the "U" football team this year and is also means he will have more time. He always does.

On Wednesday he had a squad of players out at Lagoon and the day marks the beginning of the season; the game of the first game in the football year which will be waged during the football season of 1909-10.

Joe Maddock is confident he will get a good team this season, despite the fact that some of last year's stars will not be in the line-up. But he is well satisfied to work with and has many up players in certain to be productive of satisfactory results.

Maddock expects to meet and defeat, most of the former rivals, such as the Colorado school of mines, the Denver university, the strong Idaho bunch and the A. & M., and he will, in all probability, have to line up his men against the H. T. U. of Provo.

WHAT PROVO IS DOING.

A special to the "News" from the Provo City says:

"There is every reason to believe that Provo will have one of the strongest football teams this season if it ever had. Fred Bonham has started to get rounding up the boys and he is getting the best kind of support. He has an abundance of good material and the former "U" star will make the other teams travel pretty fast to beat him. The new coach is Chas. E. Palm and P. G. Stevens are assisting him in the work and their efforts are showing results. Much will be made to induce the commercial club to give assistance to the team and it is hoped that games will be played with the "U" Idaho and the Salt Lake high school."

"DAD" CONVILLE BUSY.

Now at the high school there are no games of busy activity. "Dad" Conville proposes to have a team which will carry the colors of crimson and black to victory, and the candidates for positions on the team who can not stand superlatively strenuous life had better keep away, because Conville is only making the boys "go some." Being the week he had material for the team but after a practice or two he had indicated a remarkable turn in, in fact there were only 45 in it at first.

Frank Wheling is making a fine record in the position of fullback and it is most apparent that Goodfellow will be back on the old job, left fullback, Gallacher, Atkins and Godwin will be in the game again, no doubt, and it will be only a few days now before Conville will be able to figure on a permanent line-up.

OTHER TEAMS WORKING.

The boys are all anxious to have a stronger team than ever because they have not forgotten the eleven representing the Granite Stake High, and the thing that organization did last winter to transients. The Granite boys are not laying much but they are "sawing wood," and will be heard from.

All Salt Lake college has not announced its football campaign but things will be doing there before long. The Ogden high school team and other schools are doing preliminary work and getting lined up for the coming gridiron battles.

BIKE RIDERS LEAVE.

Palmer, Schnell, Morgan and Crebs, bike riders who competed in the races this summer, have received transportation from Johnny Chapman and have at once for Kansas City where they will enter the six-day race. The races open on the 12th of this month.

JOCKEY CLUB ISSUES PROGRAM OF RACES.

The program for the first week of racing at Buena Vista track under the auspices of the Utah Jockey Club, is off printed. The officials for the meeting are as follows:

P. P. Pomeroy, presiding judge; Frank S. D. Skinner, associate judge and representative of the Pacific Jockey Club; Richard Dwyer, starter; W. Haynes, clerk of scales, and F. Fitzgerald, paddock judge and timer.

Mr. Fitzgerald is a well known newspaper man and is familiar with the racing scene in all its branches. The opening card, Sept. 18, schedules six events, the features being the Inaugural Handicap and the Buena Vista handicap.

Tomorrow is inspection day at the track and if the weather is good a big crowd is expected to view the

COACH JOSEPH H. MADDOCK.

Every football fan in the state knows, or should know, Joe Maddock, the "hurry up" coach who put the U. of U. football team in the front rank of intermountain gridiron affairs. Recently Mr. Maddock resigned, but later consented to remain with the institution until June. He is now busily engaged in rounding up another good team to represent the state university.

Vast Amount of Money Made By Sixteen Major League Clubs

New York, Sept. 11.—As an indication of the interest that is being taken by the American public in baseball this year, an authority has compiled the following list of the estimated profits of the 16 major league clubs for the season, basing the figures on the attendance in the various cities to date:

Pittsburgh, $150,000; Chicago Nationals, $125,000; New York Nationals, $125,000; Cincinnati, $100,000; Philadelphia National, $25,000; St. Louis Nationals, $25,000; Brooklyn, $20,000; Boston Nationals, $10,000; Detroit Americans, $20,000; Athletics, $100,000; Boston Americans, $25,000; New York Americans, $60,000; Cleveland, $40,000; White Sox, $80,000; St. Louis Browns, $40,000; Washington, $20,000.

Col. Applegate Explains Why Mexican Race Meeting Was a Fiasco

Considerable space was given in the public prints not long ago to the fact that a party of Americans had secured a concession from the Mexican government for a big race track there. Recently not much has been heard about the proposed race course, and the reason perhaps is that the promoters made a discovery similar to the discovery made by a party of Americans in the fall of 1893. The story is told by Col. L. L. Applegate, whose troubles tell in the "News" have proved no interesting to our readers.

"During the fall of 1893," said Col. Applegate, "while at Lutonia, R. C. Pate, who had a concession for races in the City of Mexico, visited Lutonia and induced Col. M. Lewis Clark, Ed Hopper, secretary of Lutonia, and myself to attend the opening of the new Mexican race track.

"When we got to the City of Mexico we stopped at the Hotel Burbado. There were many Americans there and it was not long before we had quite a circle of friends, Americans and native Mexicans. On the night before the Derby there was a ball, one of the big social events, and it was my good fortune to receive an invitation to the same. It was attended by the president and members of his cabinet, arrayed in all their splendor.

"Next day came the Derby and the president and his officers were there in a body. As a compliment to the authorities, Clark invited Secy. Rodriguez into the judges' stand for the purpose of placing the third horse, and it was my duty to see that his royal nibs did not make a mistake.

"There was as fine a class of people at the track that day, arrayed in hand-some costumes, as I have ever seen in any town, and they were well behaved.

"That night at the Derby dinner Col. Clark was highly elated over the success of the opening day, but I wagered with him a jug of buttermilk (?) that there would not be enough people at the track the next day to make a disturbance.

"Senor, how do you figure that?" he demanded. I replied that I had got on to the habits of the natives. At 12 noon they close bar bolt and barricade their stores, for the daily siesta, and then at 5:30 they all take a drive to Alameda, dressed in their very best.

"Well, the next morning I won the buttermilk, as there were not more than 200 persons at the track. They ran a day or two and then quit. The horses were surely dogs. If any one of them had run half home while coming into the stretch he would jump the fence to get to the home. They were simply dogs."

"As a compromise, Col. Clark proposed to pay for dinner at the Sun French restaurant. As I was not acquainted with the French or Spanish Bingo down there and did not know the program at their feed houses, I put my index finger on an item and like a ripe asked Col. Clark, who was a French and Spanish scholar, if it did not mean stuffed peppers. Well, we ordered some and I remarked that I had not seen any too much pepper in any of the stuff down there. Col. Clark never neglected himself at the table, and he took a generous portion of the order. At the second helping I happened to look across the table at him and saw he had made the discovery that the stuff was hot. Great big tears were rolling down his cheeks.

"What's matter, Colored, said news from home?" I asked. "Why these tears?"

"His reply was: 'D—n you! Now I suppose you are satisfied. You have killed us both. Ring for the fire department.' The colonel had a habit of taking two or three naps during every meal, but I assure you that with that meal he took his nap."

"His reply was: 'D—n you! Now I suppose you are satisfied. You have killed us both. Ring for the fire department.' The colonel had a habit of taking two or three naps during every meal, but I assure you that with that meal he took his nap."

"As a compromise, Col. Clark proposed to pay for dinner at the Sun French restaurant. As I was not acquainted with the French or Spanish Bingo down there and did not know the program at their feed houses, I put my index finger on an item and like a ripe asked Col. Clark, who was a French and Spanish scholar, if it did not mean stuffed peppers. Well, we ordered some and I remarked that I had not seen any too much pepper in any of the stuff down there. Col. Clark never neglected himself at the table, and he took a generous portion of the order. At the second helping I happened to look across the table at him and saw he had made the discovery that the stuff was hot. Great big tears were rolling down his cheeks."

"What's matter, Colored, said news from home?" I asked. "Why these tears?"

"His reply was: 'D—n you! Now I suppose you are satisfied. You have killed us both. Ring for the fire department.' The colonel had a habit of taking two or three naps during every meal, but I assure you that with that meal he took his nap."

"As a compromise, Col. Clark proposed to pay for dinner at the Sun French restaurant. As I was not acquainted with the French or Spanish Bingo down there and did not know the program at their feed houses, I put my index finger on an item and like a ripe asked Col. Clark, who was a French and Spanish scholar, if it did not mean stuffed peppers. Well, we ordered some and I remarked that I had not seen any too much pepper in any of the stuff down there. Col. Clark never neglected himself at the table, and he took a generous portion of the order. At the second helping I happened to look across the table at him and saw he had made the discovery that the stuff was hot. Great big tears were rolling down his cheeks."

"What's matter, Colored, said news from home?" I asked. "Why these tears?"

"His reply was: 'D—n you! Now I suppose you are satisfied. You have killed us both. Ring for the fire department.' The colonel had a habit of taking two or three naps during every meal, but I assure you that with that meal he took his nap."

"As a compromise, Col. Clark proposed to pay for dinner at the Sun French restaurant. As I was not acquainted with the French or Spanish Bingo down there and did not know the program at their feed houses, I put my index finger on an item and like a ripe asked Col. Clark, who was a French and Spanish scholar, if it did not mean stuffed peppers. Well, we ordered some and I remarked that I had not seen any too much pepper in any of the stuff down there. Col. Clark never neglected himself at the table, and he took a generous portion of the order. At the second helping I happened to look across the table at him and saw he had made the discovery that the stuff was hot. Great big tears were rolling down his cheeks."

"What's matter, Colored, said news from home?" I asked. "Why these tears?"

"His reply was: 'D—n you! Now I suppose you are satisfied. You have killed us both. Ring for the fire department.' The colonel had a habit of taking two or three naps during every meal, but I assure you that with that meal he took his nap."

"As a compromise, Col. Clark proposed to pay for dinner at the Sun French restaurant. As I was not acquainted with the French or Spanish Bingo down there and did not know the program at their feed houses, I put my index finger on an item and like a ripe asked Col. Clark, who was a French and Spanish scholar, if it did not mean stuffed peppers. Well, we ordered some and I remarked that I had not seen any too much pepper in any of the stuff down there. Col. Clark never neglected himself at the table, and he took a generous portion of the order. At the second helping I happened to look across the table at him and saw he had made the discovery that the stuff was hot. Great big tears were rolling down his cheeks."

"What's matter, Colored, said news from home?" I asked. "Why these tears?"

"His reply was: 'D—n you! Now I suppose you are satisfied. You have killed us both. Ring for the fire department.' The colonel had a habit of taking two or three naps during every meal, but I assure you that with that meal he took his nap."

"As a compromise, Col. Clark proposed to pay for dinner at the Sun French restaurant. As I was not acquainted with the French or Spanish Bingo down there and did not know the program at their feed houses, I put my index finger on an item and like a ripe asked Col. Clark, who was a French and Spanish scholar, if it did not mean stuffed peppers. Well, we ordered some and I remarked that I had not seen any too much pepper in any of the stuff down there. Col. Clark never neglected himself at the table, and he took a generous portion of the order. At the second helping I happened to look across the table at him and saw he had made the discovery that the stuff was hot. Great big tears were rolling down his cheeks."

"What's matter, Colored, said news from home?" I asked. "Why these tears?"

"His reply was: 'D—n you! Now I suppose you are satisfied. You have killed us both. Ring for the fire department.' The colonel had a habit of taking two or three naps during every meal, but I assure you that with that meal he took his nap."

"As a compromise, Col. Clark proposed to pay for dinner at the Sun French restaurant. As I was not acquainted with the French or Spanish Bingo down there and did not know the program at their feed houses, I put my index finger on an item and like a ripe asked Col. Clark, who was a French and Spanish scholar, if it did not mean stuffed peppers. Well, we ordered some and I remarked that I had not seen any too much pepper in any of the stuff down there. Col. Clark never neglected himself at the table, and he took a generous portion of the order. At the second helping I happened to look across the table at him and saw he had made the discovery that the stuff was hot. Great big tears were rolling down his cheeks."

"What's matter, Colored, said news from home?" I asked. "Why these tears?"

"His reply was: 'D—n you! Now I suppose you are satisfied. You have killed us both. Ring for the fire department.' The colonel had a habit of taking two or three naps during every meal, but I assure you that with that meal he took his nap."

"As a compromise, Col. Clark proposed to pay for dinner at the Sun French restaurant. As I was not acquainted with the French or Spanish Bingo down there and did not know the program at their feed houses, I put my index finger on an item and like a ripe asked Col. Clark, who was a French and Spanish scholar, if it did not mean stuffed peppers. Well, we ordered some and I remarked that I had not seen any too much pepper in any of the stuff down there. Col. Clark never neglected himself at the table, and he took a generous portion of the order. At the second helping I happened to look across the table at him and saw he had made the discovery that the stuff was hot. Great big tears were rolling down his cheeks."

"What's matter, Colored, said news from home?" I asked. "Why these tears?"

"His reply was: 'D—n you! Now I suppose you are satisfied. You have killed us both. Ring for the fire department.' The colonel had a habit of taking two or three naps during every meal, but I assure you that with that meal he took his nap."

"As a compromise, Col. Clark proposed to pay for dinner at the Sun French restaurant. As I was not acquainted with the French or Spanish Bingo down there and did not know the program at their feed houses, I put my index finger on an item and like a ripe asked Col. Clark, who was a French and Spanish scholar, if it did not mean stuffed peppers. Well, we ordered some and I remarked that I had not seen any too much pepper in any of the stuff down there. Col. Clark never neglected himself at the table, and he took a generous portion of the order. At the second helping I happened to look across the table at him and saw he had made the discovery that the stuff was hot. Great big tears were rolling down his cheeks."

"What's matter, Colored, said news from home?" I asked. "Why these tears?"

"His reply was: 'D—n you! Now I suppose you are satisfied. You have killed us both. Ring for the fire department.' The colonel had a habit of taking two or three naps during every meal, but I assure you that with that meal he took his nap."

"As a compromise, Col. Clark proposed to pay for dinner at the Sun French restaurant. As I was not acquainted with the French or Spanish Bingo down there and did not know the program at their feed houses, I put my index finger on an item and like a ripe asked Col. Clark, who was a French and Spanish scholar, if it did not mean stuffed peppers. Well, we ordered some and I remarked that I had not seen any too much pepper in any of the stuff down there. Col. Clark never neglected himself at the table, and he took a generous portion of the order. At the second helping I happened to look across the table at him and saw he had made the discovery that the stuff was hot. Great big tears were rolling down his cheeks."

"What's matter, Colored, said news from home?" I asked. "Why these tears?"

"His reply was: 'D—n you! Now I suppose you are satisfied. You have killed us both. Ring for the fire department.' The colonel had a habit of taking two or three naps during every meal, but I assure you that with that meal he took his nap."

"As a compromise, Col. Clark proposed to pay for dinner at the Sun French restaurant. As I was not acquainted with the French or Spanish Bingo down there and did not know the program at their feed houses, I put my index finger on an item and like a ripe asked Col. Clark, who was a French and Spanish scholar, if it did not mean stuffed peppers. Well, we ordered some and I remarked that I had not seen any too much pepper in any of the stuff down there. Col. Clark never neglected himself at the table, and he took a generous portion of the order. At the second helping I happened to look across the table at him and saw he had made the discovery that the stuff was hot. Great big tears were rolling down his cheeks."

"What's matter, Colored, said news from home?" I asked. "Why these tears?"

"His reply was: 'D—n you! Now I suppose you are satisfied. You have killed us both. Ring for the fire department.' The colonel had a habit of taking two or three naps during every meal, but I assure you that with that meal he took his nap."

"As a compromise, Col. Clark proposed to pay for dinner at the Sun French restaurant. As I was not acquainted with the French or Spanish Bingo down there and did not know the program at their feed houses, I put my index finger on an item and like a ripe asked Col. Clark, who was a French and Spanish scholar, if it did not mean stuffed peppers. Well, we ordered some and I remarked that I had not seen any too much pepper in any of the stuff down there. Col. Clark never neglected himself at the table, and he took a generous portion of the order. At the second helping I happened to look across the table at him and saw he had made the discovery that the stuff was hot. Great big tears were rolling down his cheeks."

"What's matter, Colored, said news from home?" I asked. "Why these tears?"

"His reply was: 'D—n you! Now I suppose you are satisfied. You have killed us both. Ring for the fire department.' The colonel had a habit of taking two or three naps during every meal, but I assure you that with that meal he took his nap."

"As a compromise, Col. Clark proposed to pay for dinner at the Sun French restaurant. As I was not acquainted with the French or Spanish Bingo down there and did not know the program at their feed houses, I put my index finger on an item and like a ripe asked Col. Clark, who was a French and Spanish scholar, if it did not mean stuffed peppers. Well, we ordered some and I remarked that I had not seen any too much pepper in any of the stuff down there. Col. Clark never neglected himself at the table, and he took a generous portion of the order. At the second helping I happened to look across the table at him and saw he had made the discovery that the stuff was hot. Great big tears were rolling down his cheeks."

"What's matter, Colored, said news from home?" I asked. "Why these tears?"

"His reply was: 'D—n you! Now I suppose you are satisfied. You have