

JUDGE HOWELL ON GOOD CITIZENSHIP

Duty to Vote—Political Apathy
A Menace to Free Institutions.

SHAME TO RIDE TO THE POLLS

Only by Full and Free Ballot Can This Be a Government of All The People.

Ogden, Nov. 4.—At the Third ward meetinghouse last evening Judge J. A. Howell delivered a strong address on good citizenship before the Y. M. and Y. L. M. I. A. joint session. He briefly outlined the founding of the great government of the United States, with its free institutions, and reverting to the duties of its citizens, directed special attention to the elective franchise. On this subject he said:

"If the high ideals and the lofty aims of this government are to endure, then it is absolutely essential that not only a few out of the many, but that all the free citizenship of this great united land should band together for the preservation and safeguarding of these ideals, and that is the reason why those of our people who have paid attention to the questions are seeking as best they may to arouse the people to a recognition of their duties."

"It is not necessary for me, in order to convince you that the people of today are not fulfilling their duties of citizenship, to our country as they should, to remind you that we have but lately learned that there are or have been whole cities in the United States, like Pennsylvania under the Pennsylvania railroad, but keeping themselves strictly at home let me remind you that at the last so-called general election, when we elected a Congressman and all our county officers, though the carriages ran from noon until night, yet nearly one-half the voters could not be coaxed or enticed into performing the simplest of their duties of citizenship, the more exercise of their suffrage."

"It must be remembered that the casting of the ballot is not the only function of a citizen, any more than attending church on Sunday is the sole function of a church member, but the good citizen must day by day seek to make his influence felt for the uplifting of the government. Just as the good churchman must, as he goes about his daily work, carry into practice the doctrines of his church to the uplifting of all humanity. But the churchman who does not devote even one day in the week to the practice of his religion is worse than he who is not willing even to set apart one, so the citizen who does not even vote is worse than he who does at least. Yet you know and I know that the election, which is fraught with so much wealth or woe to our citizens here, the greatest effort will be made by all political parties to induce our citizens to vote, they will be driven in carriages and automobiles, and yet a large proportion will not go at all. Oh, why will our citizens not awake to their opportunities and their obligations? To secure the right of a free and untrammelled ballot men have in the past given their very lives, and but for that sacrifice of our forefathers for their posterity we would not have it, yet we value it so lightly that men and women must be driven to the polls, and some cannot be driven. It would be highly improper for me to misuse my privilege in being here tonight in an attempt to influence you to cast your vote on Tuesday next for any party, or men who are candidates for public office, but I can voice the sentiment of all the better thinking men, what ever be their political affiliations, when I say: Shame upon every man and every woman, who if he or she be not aged or infirm, cheapens the inestimable rights of citizenship on Tuesday next by riding to the polls!

"Assuming, then, that the people do not rightly perform their duties of citizenship, what are the causes?"

"It has been said that politics are dirty and that therefore good men and women do not want to become contaminated by them, but you may be sure that just as long as the great body of good men and women of the country neglect to perform their duties of citizenship, just so long as they leave them in the care of men who have none but selfish interests in them, just so long will they remain dirty, and that only those who have clean hands themselves can ever hope to cleanse them. But though some may be influenced by an alleged fear of contaminating themselves, yet I believe the great reason for the apathy in political affairs upon the part of the great body of people is its indifference. A great many of our citizens feel that the government will get along, although they take no part in it, and that their taking part in it would serve no useful purpose. They are as complacent as some members of a church who believe that so long as they help to maintain it they are performing all the duties of a Christian, therefore it is essential that an attempt be made to arouse these people to take a more interest in public affairs, because it is their failure to do so that prevents our government from becoming what

It was intended by its founders—a government of all the people, whose voice should be paramount and whose will should be the law. I do not wish you to think me pessimistic, nor am I, but we must not sink at our deficiencies, rather with courage and fortitude must we remove them, or our free democracy will degenerate into a miserable despotism, or oligarchy of those who are in a material fashion benefited by a misuse of its functions, or it will be dissipated altogether, because of the antagonism aroused by such misuse, and anarchy will reign in its stead."

THREE TICKETS.

The citizens of Ogden have three tickets to select civic officers from at tomorrow's city election, nominated by the Republicans, Democrats and Socialists.

FUNERAL OF MRS. UNDERWOOD.

The Fourth ward meetinghouse was well filled with relatives and friends of Mrs. Sarah A. Underwood, who assembled to show a tribute of respect to her memory. That she was highly esteemed in Ogden where she has lived since 1883 was evidenced by the wealth of beautiful floral tributes that covered her bier. Bishop E. T. Woolley presided at the services, and beautiful and appropriate readings were sung by the ward choir. Mrs. Mary Farley sang "After the Toll is Over," and Orson Griffin sang "The Christian's Good Night." The beautiful life of the deceased and her many noble characteristics were eulogized and the family comforted in the hope of a glorious resurrection by President C. P. Middleton, Elders C. H. Greenwald, J. M. D. Taylor, Angus T. Wright and Bishop Woolley. Interment was made in the Ogden City cemetery.

THRILLING RUNAWAY.
A horse attached to a runabout ran away about 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon endangering the lives of many pedestrians who were walking along the east sidewalk of Washington avenue between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth streets. One little girl who was riding in an invalid's chair, being pushed by her deaf father, Herman Peterson, was struck by the cart and knocked out of the chair but escaped with only slight bruises and cuts about the face. It was little less than a miracle that no one was killed as the animal was running at a great speed swinging the cart from one side of the walk to the other. At last the cart collided with a telegraph pole, breaking the cart. The little girl was taken to Bodson's drug store where Dr. Wherry attended her.

Keith-O'Brien Company is to Occupy the Entire Building.

KEITH-O'BRIEN BUILDING. THE INSERT PORTLAND IS OF H. W. WALKER, MANAGER.

That Salt Lake City is on a firm financial foundation and that the city and business interests have implicit faith in the future of the city is exemplified in many ways, but in none more than in the latest announcement from the business world—that the Keith-O'Brien company will largely increase their stock of goods, and will likewise occupy the whole of the Keith building on South Main street. The store is situated in a magnificent four-story building, occupying two floors of the building, and the announcement already made, that the company will occupy the whole of the building, and the fact that the company is increasing its stock of goods, and that it is occupying the whole of the building, are all signs of the prosperity of the city.

agore of the firm figured on being money the first two years—when they were not disappointed in the nature of things an investment of a quarter of a million dollars could not yield returns at once which competition was no less and an entirely new method of trade must be built up, but the directors also figured on another factor in business life, that good goods, fair treatment and honest dealing would pay in the end—and in this, too, they were not disappointed, for now in the fifth year of the firm's existence, the balance is on the other side of the ledger, and the return on the original investment have so increased that the stock in the store now represents $1,500,000. The business of the first year aggregated something like $750,000, the present year it will not fall short of $1,500,000, and in this way the firm has increased its business and its faith in Salt Lake has justly grown strong, and the plans for increasing its plant and making further heavy investments are justified by the outcome of the outlay already made.

In the subterranean of the floors, after the building has been remodeled, the suit and cloak department, the millinery and children's department will occupy half of the second floor, the other half to be occupied by the carpet, rug and drapery department. The third floor will be devoted to the dressmaking and ladies' tailoring department, also the alteration department for ladies' skirts, coats, suits, etc.

The street department will also be enlarged and several new departments will be added and the other departments enlarged, which will necessitate the carrying of a much larger stock of goods than is now carried. It is calculated that the firm will carry a stock valued at not less than half a million dollars at all times after the reorganization of the store takes place. There is a savings bank department already in the store, this department having been instituted the first of last March; there is also a checking department, which differs from ordinary banks in only the feature that no loans are made.
