Various Social, Literary and Educational Clubs Are All in Line On the Movement.

The question of the establishment of detention home for youthful violators of the law now prominently be fore the public is creating a great deal of attention and interest. It is a theme especially dear to women, who perhaps have special sympathies in the case in proportion to the special opportunities they have of noting effects of environment, training and relative discipline upon plastic, youthful minds. Aside from the Marge body of women who privately cherish hope for the establishment of a temporary asylum for the young offenders who are in need of its shelter, there are a number of local representative women who in both private and public effour have worked for the fulfillment of this project. oOthers, collectively, through club bodies, have lent their influence to the cause, and expressions gained from a few representative women of the city may be taken as embodying the general sentiment of the community. Mrs. E. B. Wells, who has long beer in touch with this and kindred subjects affecting the public good, expressed herself as favoring emphatically the establishment of the home. Mrs. Byron Cummings, president of the Utah Federation of Women's clubs, endorses the movement enthusiastically, and says that the federation has not only already considered the question, but stands ready as a body to act in any way to render aid. Mrs. F. S. Richards, president of the State Council of Women, says that she not only individually favors it, but has worked in connection with the State Council of Women to bring it about. A recent suggestion from the national council, to which the local body is auxiliary, embodied this idea in a recent scheme +- give substantial aid to its cause; and a local movement is in progress by the State Council of Women to edit a one day special edition of local newspapers, the proceeds to go jointly to the benefit of a detento go jointify to the benefit of a deten-tion school for girls and a memorial to Susan B. Anthony. Aside from this the council will act in any way for the home, or rather homes, as Mrs. Richards with nearly all others favors separate establishments for the boys and girls.

"PRACTICALLY INEFFECTIVE."

Mrs. C. H. McMahon who has worked enthusiastically for the idea, says that the juvenile court is prac-tically ineffective without this home She could cite many instances where boys turned out from the court on par-lo burge mented. Screens turnwing boys turned out from the court on par-ole have repeated offenses, knowing that no punishment or absolute dis-cipline is in store for their relaxas. There are offenses too slight for com-mitment to the reform school and yet which requires some form of punish-ment or discipling for their concention. ment or discipline for their correction;

University Football Guard Secures Po. sition With Railroad Company.

Carrol Seeley, famous as a guard on the University of Utah football team for 1907, is no longer a student at the university. A few days ago he withdrew, and went to Oregon, where he drew, and went to Oregou, where he has secured a position with a railroad company. Before coming to Utah this fall, Mr. Seeley, worked as a mining en-gineer at Ely, Nev. In 1897 he entered Williams college, and played two years of football, afterwards playing one year in Stanford in 1900, and a year on the Multnomah club of Portland. His case has been much discussed while he remained at the university, on account remained at the university, on account of a charge in an article printed in the Educational Review, that he was not at the university as a student, but merely to participate in athletics.

which requires some form of punish-ment or discipline for their correction; and it is this for which the detention home stands. Mrs. A. J. Gorham, another proc-tical advocate of the home, says that the need is so apparent as hardly to bear question. "The law for its es-tablishment exists and its delay hinges only upon a slight technicality. Be-cause other experiments in this line have failed is no reason that others might not prove successful. It seems to me that all good citizens shou'd unite in influencing its speedy estab-lishment." She cited the case of the young Greek recently tried in the fu-venile court for stealing coal. He has no parents nor guardians here, and evidently did not know that he had committed an offense. Unable to speak English, he understood his case only through a young companion who acted as partial interpreter. From the time of his arrest till the next day, when his trial took place he was in jall, and to emerge from this to a trial whose pesult turned him loose on the street again with only the punish-ment of parole, was something he was unable to comprehend. What the home might have done for this home-tees and untrained boy can be easily seen. PRIMARTES IN LINE seen.

Mrs. Louie B. Felt, whose position as president of the Primary associations, has enabled her to note the effect of moral, religious and educational train-ing upon youthful minds and char-acter is decidedly in favor of the home as a corrective influence for careless or vicious instinct or habit. Moral suggestion, discipline and environment are the agencies which surely may be connect upon to elevate the young.

are the agencies which surery may be counted upon to elevate the young. Mrs. G. V. Parmelee, president of the Ladies' Literary club, said that while she knew little of the law concerning the establishment of the home, as a woman she decidedly endorsed it. There can be no doubt that it is a necessary adjuscit to the inventie court and adjunct to the juvenile court, and should be provided at the earliest possible time.
