

POPE LEO'S BODY EMBALMED

It Is Clothed in Full Pontifical Robes.

SIMPLE EMBLEMS OF GRIEF.

No Flame Half-Wasted, No Building
Shrouded With Creps as When Temporal Rulers Pass Away.

Rome, July 21.—The body of Pope Leo today was placed in the chamber where his last death struggle took place, which for the time being has been transformed into a mortuary chapel.

Just this afternoon the body of Pope Leo was enshrouded and clothed in full pontifical robes, preparatory to the funeral obsequies.

Through the night and early morning many simple emblems of grief had been displayed, but the main thoroughfare did not present a spectacle of universal mourning. No flags were half-masted and no buildings were shrouded in creps, as when temporal rulers pass away. The busy centers of Rome presented the usual scenes of animation. It was in the poorer sections of the city that the evidences of grief were more manifest. Entering the Borgo district, leading to the Vatican, the hum of excitement attending the event was more apparent. A steady stream of carriages bearing cardinals and diplomats, swarming through the narrow streets, called the Via Borga, leading to the piazza of St. Peter.

Coming now to the piazza of St. Peter, a scene of stillness began to unfold itself. There was not the slightest evidence of bustle or confusion. The vast expanse enclosed within the stately colonnade looked majestic in its serenity. Although groups of people hurried here and there, their presence was completely lost in the immensity of the whole.

Nowhere about the square was there the slightest outward sign of mourning, neither on the church front nor on the columns or doors to the Vatican. The main entrance of the Vatican showed the chief evidence of activity. As the equipages drove up with distinguished prelates the heavy iron chains continued to keep back the crowd, leaving a small aisle for the arriving cardinals. Back of the chains were massed a crowd of curious onlookers. The presence of the Italian soldiery was kept off to the left of the ground. At the foot of the stone steps stood a uniformed Italian grenadier in fatigue uniform and cap, with a small detachment of troops, no broken into squads that they did not have the appearance of being in martial array. With them were the Vatican and municipal soldiers in somber uniforms with broad chevrons, some tipped with little blue pom-poms.

The ponderous bronze doors of the Vatican were closed, preventing a front which might have withstood an army. The only means of ingress was a small opening which had been cut through the solid masonry by a relief. Behind this tiny entrance, only wide enough to admit a single person, stood a Swiss guard, with fixed bayonet. As the cardinals and diplomats came up they went to the tiny door, knocked, and were admitted. Outside those favored few the exclusion was absolute.

Inside the magnificent church of St. Peter could be heard the sound of the hammer and chisel already preparing Leo's temporary tomb. A massive wooden platform had been rolled into the basilica, reaching half way to the ceiling to the left of the nave. Around this rough staging stood a crowd watching half a dozen workmen prepare the altar. The resting place of the pope was a simple, rectangular, marble casket, about fifteen feet above the pavement, forming the upper casement of one of the massive doors. On either side were great marble columns, while the light came dimly from above through two domes surrounded by exquisite mosaics, one showing the apostles and the other an angelic chorus. Two workmen pounded and called out their commands in staccato contrast with the solemn surroundings.

The interior of the church was as yet undraped with mourning. The massive crimson hangings had been removed, bringing out the ghastly whiteness of the marble nave. At the further end could be seen groups of priests, kneeling about the tomb of St. Peter, where scores of tapers burn unceasingly. Only the usual masses were said during the morning, as the ceremonies in connection with the death of the pope have yet to be arranged.

Within the night mass still another preparation for the pope's obsequies was going on. This was the preparation of the chapel of the holy sacrament for receiving the body after its removal from the Vatican. Cardinal Respighi, the vicar of Rome, had given orders for these arrangements. Although Cardinal Respighi has suggested that the interests of the church, it is Cardinal Respighi who has been given immediate charge of the personal affairs relating to the death of the pope. According to the beautiful chapel was invaded by sweepers and cleaners, who poured buckets of water on the mosaic pavement and began scouring it. The front of the chapel is cut off from the main church by a massive trellis through which the faithful can look upon the altar within. This is of solid brass with hemis brass kneeling angels. Before the altar is a very narrow space where Leo's coffin will be deposited when it comes from the Vatican. This space is so small that the coffin of the casket will extend to the iron trellis. The purpose of this arrangement is to carry out the ancient ceremony by which the actual foot of the dead pontiff will extend through the iron barriers, to permit the kneeling faithful to approach and kiss the last remnant of former papal authority.

Through the grating and gazed at the preparations going on within.

LAST TRIBUTE TO LEO.

Rome, July 21.—The body of Leo XIII. lay tonight in the hall of the throne room a few steps from the room in which his death took place. The same room, the "comodo" room, the Vatican, the white gown which were put on yesterday cover the form, which rests in state, surrounded by the trained candles and noble guard and Franciscan penitentials.

Tomorrow morning the diplomatic body and high dignitaries will enter the room and their tributes of respect to all the remains of the pope, who won the respect and affection of the world. In the afternoon the body will be arrayed in all the glory of the pontifical robes, the mitre replacing the hood and at sunset it will be taken into the chapel of the sacrament of St. Peter, where for three days the public will be given an opportunity of paying a last farewell. The interment will occur Saturday evening.

Today was notable for the impressive ceremonial of the recognition of the death of the pope, which occurred in the morning in the chamber in which he died. There, after only those were admitted who were concerned in the embalming of the body, an operation was performed which lasted six hours. Meantime the authorities of the Vatican proceeded with the preparations for the funeral and the enshrouding of the body, and the acknowledgment of the condolences that had been received. Among the latter was a notable message from the German emperor. Throughout the day the Vatican was surrounded by crowds, which increased towards evening.

Several entered St. Peter's at vespers and joined in prayers for the departed. Among these were many Italian officers, who were accompanied by the Italian flag. At no time had their services been needed. It is not the custom in Italy to wear the conventional emblems of mourning, and hence the crowd which, in consequence of the closing of many places of business, wandered the streets tonight, has more the appearance of an aimless holiday-making than that of a mourning for the death of the pope.

Into many bell in Rome churches, however, hundreds not often seen in places of devotion flocked to vespers to say a hurried prayer. Afterward, they joined outside, reading the deep blacked proclamation of Cardinal Respighi, the vicar of Rome, concerning the funeral arrangements, the meeting of the enshrouding and the church ceremony.

The quiet of the evening was broken by a chorus, such as the world has seldom heard. On the stroke of 8 o'clock of Rome's 400 churches, a bell rang to toll bells for the passing of the soul of Leo XIII. In from the seven hills came the sound of the bells, which contained, until all was one vast reverberation. The harsh jingle of the smaller church bells striking quickly and more often was broken by the solemn strokes that came in mourning measure from the great dome of St. Peter. It was as if a great fire raged and every bell in Rome were ringing with every bell in anxiety to warn the populace. Except in this common note and common sorrow it was an amazing discord, which continued an hour and which will recur nightly until the obsequies are over.

IN BREATHITT COUNTY.

Grand Jury Returns Indictments Against Hargis' Teamsters.

Jackson, Ky., July 21.—The grand jury tonight returned indictments against the teamsters of Hargis' team, charged with the murder of the late Senator Breckinridge. They were already under bonds on the charge of setting fire to the late Senator's house.

An indictment was also returned against Gardner Plummer. It is charged that he offered B. J. Even $5,000 to leave town, so that he could not testify in the trial of Curtis Jett and Thomas White.

It is currently reported that L. T. Bollin, who is well known here, testified before the grand jury today that he was to furnish the money that was offered to Even by Plummer and that two well-known county officials were named in the jury room.

Frame of a Big Whale.

New York, July 22.—A party of scientists from the Smithsonian institute, has arrived on the steamer Silveira from Newfoundland, bringing the frame of a 78-foot whale, which is to be the central attraction at the St. Louis exposition. The party has been in the north since early spring.

Plaster casts of the big whale were made so that a life size model can be made and set up alongside the articulated skeleton.

Overhauling Wall Street Assay Office.

New York, July 22.—The annual overhauling of the assay office in Wall street, attending the yearly examination of the treasury officials from Washington are accustomed to make has been completed. It resulted in the discovery of about $10,000 in gold dust, which is entered as a surplus in the refining department. The furnaces were taken down and the files cleaned and dust on the roof was swept up for re-refining. The year's receipts of gold and silver bullion amounted to fifty millions of dollars.

EXPERIMENTS

Learn Things of Value.

Where one has never made the experiment of leaving off coffee and drinking Postum it is still easy to learn about it by reading the experiences of others.

Drinking Postum is a pleasant way to get back to health. A man of Lancaster, Pa., says: "My wife was a victim of nervousness and weak stomach and loss of appetite for years and was a physical wreck; although we resorted to numerous methods of relief one of which was a change from coffee to tea, it was all to no purpose."

"We knew coffee was causing the trouble, but could not find anything to take its place and cure the diseases until we tried Postum Food Coffee. In two weeks time after we quit coffee and used Postum almost all of her troubles had disappeared as if by magic. It was truly wonderful. Her nervousness was all gone, stomach trouble relieved, appetite improved and above all a night's rest was complete and refreshing."

"This sounds like an exaggeration, as it all happened so quickly, but we are prepared to prove it. Each day there is improvement for the better for the Postum is undoubtedly strengthening her and giving her rich red blood and renewed life and vitality. Every particle of this good work is due to Postum and to drinking Postum in place of coffee." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Ice cold Postum with a dash of lemon is a delightful "cooler" for warm days. Send for particulars by mail of extension of time on the $7,500.00 contest for 735 money prizes.

Government Troops Successful at All
Points—Every Precaution Taken
To Prevent Escape of Rebels.

Caracas, Venezuela, July 21.—A messenger, who arrived here by steamer and train from Ciudad Bolivar, reports that the city was captured by the government troops at 3 o'clock this morning.

BATTLE RAGES MADLY.

Solida, Venezuela, Monday, July 20, 8 a. m.—Since the last dispatch sent to the Associated Press at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the battle between the revolutionary forces at Ciudad Bolivar and the Venezuelan government army commanded by Gen. Gomez has raged madly. Block after block was destroyed, the government troops entering the city slowly. All the houses had been barricaded and the revolutionists had been forced from the flat roofs called azoteas. When the revolutionists finally abandoned the houses, after having taken all that could be used for cartridges, or to otherwise stop the advance of the government troops, they were immediately occupied by the government soldiers, who bored big holes in them so as to communicate with the next house.

The city appears to have been struck by a cyclone.

At 7 o'clock in the evening the government forces arrived near the center of Ciudad Bolivar. For two hours previously firing had diminished, but it was heavier at 11 o'clock and illuminated the sky.

At 3 o'clock in the morning, when the inhabitants of the commercial and foreign parts of the city, near the Alameda, saw the advance of the government troops, they abandoned their homes and sought refuge in other parts of the city, crossing the streets amidst a hail of bullets and shells, the women carrying their children. The strong feeling of the women fell, struck by bullets.

In the middle of the streets, with firing, the yells of the wounded and the crying of the women and children, a terrible scene was witnessed, hard enough to disgust anybody forever with civil war.

The government troops, however, acted with humanity, especially the soldiers of the forces at the same time the Venezuelan fleet, which had changed its anchorage so as to bring its guns to bear effectively on the city. The soldiers have had no food for two days, no ambulances are being used and yet the fighting continues.

Monday, 4 p. m.—The advance of the government troops has reached the market place. The old customs house and the waterworks have been taken. The Dalton block, the property of the United States, where all the leading German and French firms reside, is now being attacked. The jail, the center of a terrible resistance. All the defeated revolutionists are concentrated there. It is estimated that more than 200 men have been killed in that vicinity.

On Trial for Grand Larceny.

New York, July 22.—Before Judge Newburger in the court of general sessions, Lawrence Murphy, former treasurer of the Journeymen Stonecutters' association, has been placed on trial for grand larceny. The specific charges are that Murphy stole $1,000, appropriated $12,744, all the funds of the union. Some of the questions John F. McIntyre, Murphy's counsel, asked in regard to important and significant, were:

"If the evidence during the trial of this case shows that it was customary in this stone cutters' union to levy fines and penalties upon members who were owners, builders and bosses, would this prejudice you against the defendant?"

"If it is shown that through threats and fear the members of the union have given up to persons in the union large sums of $50,000, $40,000, $25,000 and $10,000 from time to time, would your verdict be influenced?"

"Could you still return an unprejudiced verdict?" continued McIntyre, "if we prove that persons connected with the union were in the habit of meeting in a saloon to arrange plans for extorting money from owners and construction companies, and then divided among themselves these large sums surreptitiously to them to prevent strikes or bring them to an end?"

Gen. Hernandez Loves America.

New York, July 22.—Gen. Jose Manuel Hernandez, Venezuela's new minister to Washington, has been the guest of honor at a banquet given by the Venezuelan colony of New York. About 25 of the veterans compatriots were present to greet him.

In responding to an address of welcome, Gen. Hernandez said he was glad to be back in the United States. He also pointed out to President Roosevelt and to the American press, which he said was always a strong ally of Venezuela when the latter needed aid.

Senor Fullana, Venezuelan charge at Washington, the only English speaker, said a great debt of gratitude for its part in the arbitration of the claims made connection with the city lighting deal and the trial of E. J. Arnold, president of a tur investment company that failed several months ago, were today postponed until the October term.

BATTLE IN ALBANY.

Albany, July 21.—The Philippine scouts and rural constabulary defeated 250 rebels in the streets of Albany, on Thursday last, killing 15 and wounding 40. The combatants entered the town from opposite sides and street fighting continued for three hours. Four non-combatants were killed. The scouts carried the town and the rebels were driven back to the mountains. The rebels were led by Simionela, chief of the Albany rebels, who had fifty rifles. Col. H. H. Banholtz (formerly captain of the Second Infantry), was in command of the scouts and constabulary, has been campaigning actively in Albany, but this was the first decisive engagement he has had.

TRAIN WRECKERS CONFESS.

Sent to Jail Without Bonds, Charged With Murder.

Banoke, Va., July 21.—A detective last night arrested James W. Bailey and John W. Kennedy near Shenandoah, charged with wrecking a Norfolk & Western passenger train near Green, Va. on the night of Dec. 28 last, when Engineer Wesley Bailey was killed. The men pleaded guilty today and were sent to Staunton jail without bond, charged with murder. In a sworn confession they said they planned with Mrs. Ellen Paynter to wreck the train and kill any passenger who might escape death in the wreck. Only one engineer was killed and the plan of wholesale murder was abandoned. Mrs. Paynter, who comes from North Carolina, will be arrested.

Union of Swedish Singers.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 21.—Six hundred members of the American union of Swedish singers are guests of Minneapolis of the coming to attend the convention. Frau Anna Holstrom, prima donna soprano of the Royal Swedish opera; Herr John Forsell, prime baritone of the Royal Swedish opera; and Miss Martina Johnstone, American violinist are among those who will take in the musical program.

Many Sheep Poisoned.

Butte, Mont., July 21.—A miner special from Billings says: Word comes from Columbus of a heavy loss sustained a few days ago by a well known sheepman. It is learned that someone scattered poison on the range about 12 miles south of Columbus, where 300 sheep were ranging and 1,000 head of cattle. Over 1,200 head are known to have died as a result and others were made so sick that their death is looked for. Another sheepman is said to have lost 200 head.

There is no clue to the miscreants.

On Trial for Grand Larceny.

New York, July 22.—Before Judge Newburger in the court of general sessions, Lawrence Murphy, former treasurer of the Journeymen Stonecutters' association, has been placed on trial for grand larceny. Those present expressed the opinion that the defeat of the insurgents at Ciudad Bolivar ends the present disturbance in Venezuela.

Russia Mobilizing Troops.

London, July 22.—The Standard's Odessa correspondent sends a report that 100,000 troops are being mobilized from central and northern garrisons in Russia for immediate dispatch to the front if necessary. He also reports that immediately upon the return of Gen. Kuropatkin a special council of state, which will be attended by the czar, will discuss Manchurian and cognate questions.

Made Delicious by Face Oil.

New York, July 22.—Six sailors of the steamship Toronto are in the hospital from a peculiar accident. Two of them are in a serious condition.

The crew were unloading cargo when two casks containing face oil burst. The men who were working in the hold when the casks broke ran on deck. Capt. Whitton asked for volunteers to go into the hold and get the oil back into casks. Six men responded. The fumes of the oil immediately prostrated them. They became delirious in a minutes and one tried to jump overboard.

A KENTUCKY DUEL.

Both Parties to It Were Fatally Shot.

Jackson, Ky., July 21.—At Cave Run school house three miles from here today, Mack Howard and James Barrett, a negro, fought a duel with pistols, the result of a card game. Both were fatally wounded, and James Virns, aged 12, who was sitting at his desk in the school house, was shot in the abdomen. Virns may recover.

The civil authorities desired to take action and the men were arrested by two details of soldiers, who had to go into the country to get their arms. Barrett admitted having shot 12 men and one woman, two of whom had died.

Discharged Soldier Missing.

San Francisco, July 22.—Robert Morris, a discharged soldier, is missing from his home in this city and his bride of a few weeks has asked the police to search for him. Morris was married to Miss Florence Barker six months ago.
