HOODOO AUTO.

Once More Famous Motor Car is Responsible for a Blaze.

The blacksmith shop owned by Oblad & Knight, at 145 east First South street, had a narrow escape from destruction by fire shortly after 1 o'clock this morning. Only the timely discovery of the blaze and the prompt response of the firemen and their quick and effective work saved the building.

A hoodoo automobile was responsible for the fire. It was the same machine that exploded at the Miller hotel a few weeks ago and caused an alarm of fire. The auto was taken to the blacksmith shop a day or two ago for repairs. It was hoisted up stairs to the paint shop and yesterday a workman took the machine to pieces and piled some oil and gasoline soaked waste in the corner of the shop. This stuff ignited, it is supposed, from spontaneous combustion, and in a few minutes the roof was ablaze. A street car man who happened to be passing, saw the flames and quickly notified the department across the street. Almost before the echo of the big bang had died away, the firemen were dashing across the street with the chemical, and extinguished the blaze without the use of the big hose. The heat was very intense, and besides practically destroying the automobile, did considerable damage to several newly painted vehicles.

A new wagon owned by the Franklin Candy company, had just been painted white with gold decorations. After the blaze the rig was a beautiful yellow. All this work will have to be done over. A hole was burned in the roof of the building, and the floor was somewhat damaged. Had the fire reached the paint and varnish stacked in one corner of the room, that entire building might have been destroyed.

Chief Devine estimates the loss on the building at about $150 and the loss on the contents of the department at $300, including the hoodoo machine the damage will reach close to $1,000. Mr. Oblad stated that the place was insured for $500 in the Baltimore Firemen's company.

ANOTHER VETERAN GONE.

John Clayton, an Old-Time Resident of Salt Lake, Called Home.

John Clayton, who for 45 years has been a resident of Salt Lake, died this morning at his home, 483 F street, from senile debility, aged 83 years. The deceased was a native of Lancashire, England, and came to Utah in 1859, after having lived for some time in the states. He was baptised into the church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints by President Angus M. Cannon and remained faithful to its doctrines until his dying day. He leaves three sons, his wife having passed away five years ago. The funeral will be held from the late residence on Monday, March 14, at 2 p. m. Friends are invited.

PAINTED IN COURT ROOM.

Mrs. Jaeschke Overcome by Son's Commitment to Reform School.

Overcome by grief because her boy was committed to the reform school by Judge Morse yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Martha Jaeschke collapsed in the court room at a late hour and was in a dead faint for over an hour before she was restored to consciousness.

The woman had refused to leave the court room after her son, George Jaeschke, was committed and taken back to jail and she remained there crying and sobbing until she was finally overcome. Her condition was not discovered until about 4:45 when Deputy Sheriff Parley White was notified that the woman was still in the court room and lying there unconscious. Mr. White, assisted by one of the young ladies in the county clerk's office, worked with the unfortunate woman for over an hour before she was brought back to consciousness. She was then taken down into the sheriff's office and a physician was summoned and also her husband's brother. Upon the latter's arrival he took her to his home where she was given proper medical attention.

Probably another cause for the woman's condition was the fact that her husband, August Jaeschke, accused her in the court room, after the commitment of the boy, of being responsible for his downfall. Her condition was not discovered until about 4:45 when Deputy Sheriff Parley White was notified that the woman was still in the court room and lying there unconscious. Mr. White, assisted by one of the young ladies in the county clerk's office, worked with the unfortunate woman for over an hour before she was brought back to consciousness. She was then taken down into the sheriff's office and a physician was summoned and also her husband's brother. Upon the latter's arrival he took her to his home where she was given proper medical attention.

PROF. CLARK'S RECITALS.

Our readers will notice on another page the announcement of a series of 18 dramatic and interpretative readings to be given next week and the week following by Professor S. H. Clark of the University of Chicago. He comes here with the highest recommendations of the most distinguished scholars and the dramatic reader. It will be remembered that he was here last year about this time, and those who heard him especially in his lecture, "The Tragic Ideal," will not forget the effect of his voice and presence. This, together with the fact that he is here under the auspices of the educational institutions of the city, is a guarantee, if any were needed, that a program of very high literary excellence has been arranged. We commend these readings to the general public.

MILES ROMNEY DEAD.

Brother of Bishop George Romney Passes Suddenly Away in Mexico.

Advices from Mexico tell of the death at Dublin, Chihuahua, Feb. 26, of Elder Miles P. Romney, brother of Bishop George Romney and a well known and highly respected resident of that section. The demise of Elder Romney was very sudden. He was president of the High Priests' quorum of the Juarez Stake, and in this capacity had just returned from a ten days' trip among the settlements of Sonora, feeling very tired. At 9 o'clock in the evening he retired, quite unwell, and a few minutes later was seized with a pain in the region of the heart. Fearing he was going to die he asked his wife to send for the rest of the family, but before they arrived he had passed to the great beyond.

Miles P. Romney was born in Nauvoo, Ill., August 18, 1843, being, therefore, in his sixty-first year. He came to Utah in 1850, where he lived until about 25 years ago, when he moved to Arizona, and in 1885 he went to Mexico. He was an honest, consistent Latter-day Saint, and had filled two missions, one to England in 1862, and the other to the northwestern states in 1875. He leaves a large family, besides two brothers, Bishop George Romney of this city, and Thomas Romney, of Montana.
