Theatre.—Last evening another audience large in numbers and liberal in applause assembled at the Theatre to see the Georgia Negro Minstrels in their characteristic entertainment. There were considerable changes in the programme, improvements also upon some of the programme of the day previous.

The "drawing-room concert" was very good, and the interesting dialogues afforded great amusement. Billy Wilson's challenge jig, or as we might call it the multitudinous shuffle, was very cleverly done, and loudly applauded. Keenan and Morton's clog dance was also greatly enjoyed.

The oration on education, said Hamilton's banjo and song, also afforded much amusement. Altogether, the performance was a decided success.

This evening, there will be an act of music, and the Minstrels appear for the last time. They are clever in their peculiar line, and the habitues of the Theatre evidently enjoy their performances.

Sabbath Breaking.—This morning four boys were before Justice Pyper charged with destroying property belonging to Mr. John W. Snell, situated in Pleasant Valley, City Creek Canon. When asked what they had to say to the charge one of them stated that he was "half guilty," the others following suit with the same pleading. The act complained of was committed last Sunday, and consisted in taking some boards and shingles from a building that had been broken down by the snow, and constructing a raft of them, to sail down City Creek.

One of the lads, stated that two of the boys who testified against them had become witnesses to get out of the trouble themselves, and that they should be made to change places with the accused, being as guilty as the latter. Each of the boys was fined in the sum of five dollars, and in addition the justice admonished them, saying that the deplorable practice of breaking the Sabbath and destroying property was being punished, in the hope that their being made examples of may deter others from engaging in similar practices.

TO-DAY'S DISPATCHES.

EASTERN.

The Bristol Investigation.

WASHINGTON, 29.—E. B. Northrop, editor of the Milwaukee Commercial Times, in which paper the article appeared making charges against Bristol in connection with the mode the Merritt was examined. He testified that he wrote the article and that a Deputy United States Marshal just called his attention to the subject and asked him to work up the case. It was either Ed Simpson or Burke, his knowledge of the case was derived from Col. Goodwin, who received his statement from Johnson and from John A. Hager, a detective who derived his information from Weiss. The witness knew nothing of the case except what he derived from others, and at an examination of the court records. The witness, in reply to a question by Secretary Bristol asked the witness, during the last eight months, was engaged exclusively in the whisky fraud trials at Milwaukee. Secretary Bristol asked the witness whether Col. Goodwin was not his open and avowed enemy because of his official course in the prosecution of those who were engaged in the whisky frauds. Representative Bright remarked that the committee were not engaged in the examination of the whisky frauds.

Secretary Bristol said he had been arraigned on charges preferred by a member of Congress, Judge Cole, and it seemed to him it was competent for him to show the motive of the attack.

Bright objected on the ground of irrelevancy.

Hartsell said the committee had better send for Col. Goodwin, and put him on the stand; he could then be interviewed as to his motives. The question seemed to be an attempt to throw discredit on the witnesses without giving them an opportunity to be heard. If the witnesses were here it would be proper to put the question.

After conversation by several members of the committee, Northrop said that Col. Goodwin did not intend to leave the city, and that he was at the Milwaukee Hotel.

G. E. Weiss, formerly deputy collector at Milwaukee, testified as to his conduct in relation to the Mary Merritt, and the circumstances attending the paying of his money. The witness resisted the remission of the bond of $15,000, for forfeiture of the vessel until his interests were secured. He paid Judge Hartsell $500 out of gratification for not favoring such remission, and not in consequence of any private agreement with that gentleman.

The witness said that Bristol, after his arrest, called on him, and asked him to sign a statement in favor of his release, and make his argument before Secretary Richardson, in company with counsel for Trices, retired, saying that he merely appeared for his friends, and having no pecuniary interest in the matter.

Darius Lyman, in charge of the navigation division of the Treasury department, made a written statement covering all the official proceedings in the case of the Mary Merritt. He together with assistant secretary Hartley, concluded that such cases might be compromised where there was no intentional fraud, and such was in consequence of the views of Solicitor Randall and of his successor, Wilson. Witness explained the matter to the acting Secretary of the Treasury Committee during the absence of Bristol, and the acting secretary issued a warrant of remission. The witness knew of no money or gratification being given or promised any officer of the department for service performed in this matter.

She will not deviate from her programme except in the face of the five other great powers.

A Phylloxera Extirpator.

August Mann, an experienced vintner at Big Oak Flat, Tuolumne county, sends to the San Francisco Chronicle the following remedy for vines affected by the phylloxera—

"The phylloxera deposits its eggs on the bark of the trunk of the vine. Rub off all the loose outside bark, gather and burn it, then take hard wood ashes (sifted) and dissolved in water 1 pound. Put all in a boiler, add 5 gallons of water and boil 10 minutes; stir the mean time, when cold apply it with a brush all over the vines except on the wood of last year's growth, in the same manner as trees are whitewashed. This must be done before the buds open, so as to destroy the eggs before they hatch. My vines have been affected by the phylloxera, particularly the foreign vines. I have tried many different things to destroy them without success. In the spring of 1873 my vines showed all the signs of dying out. The grapes, immediately after the blossoms dried up, and the leaf had a lifeless appearance. I then tried my remedy on a patch of Affen-taler vines which were the most affected, and to my great joy leaves came out again. Satisfied then that I had discovered the right cure, I next spring applied it on all my vines before the buds opened, and at the end of the season I had a full crop of fine grapes, and all full of life and vigor, with large dark green leaves. I succeeded in destroying the leaf louse, and consequently the root spruce too, as the former is the producer of the latter. Those who try my remedy will, in a short time from now, find out the truth of this statement."

Alcoholic Stimulants During Physical Exposure.

When men are subject to great and prolonged exposure to cold, experience has taught them the danger of taking spirits. My friend Dr. Payer told me that when crawling through the wet heather in a cold day he had seen a man who had accompanied him a pull from his flask. The old man declined, saying, "No, thank you. It's too cold. The last time I was in Canada who was in a cold day in the winter, sleeping in holes in the snow and in exposed positions. Some of them took a good deal of spirits before going to sleep, and they lay down warm and happy; some took no spirits at all, and they lay down somewhat but not very cold; others took none at all, and they lay down very cold and miserable. Next morning, however, those who had taken no spirits were quite well, those who had taken a little got up feeling cold and wretched, and those who had taken a good deal were up and about as usual. Those who took no alcohol kept the heat warm at the expense of the skin, and they remained well; those who took much warmed their skin at the expense of their health, and they remained ill. Dr. Payer, in Fractitioner.
