The Views of Dr. Isaacson.

Today we publish a communication plains his reasons for leaving the path of what is sometimes termed orthodox Judaism and accepting Jesus of Nazareth as the Messiah. It is a lucid expression of his views and worthy the consideration of those to whom it is specially addressed. It will doubtless be perused with interest also by the general public. Besides the religious phase it presents, the paper is a flovelty from the fact of its being the much now as it ever would.

Mr. McCornick was also strongly in favor of selling the land, and believed

The funeral will be held today at 2 o'clock The occurrence has cast a gloom over the people here, and more especially as nearly every house has got a trap of this kind, and we do not know how soon other children may get into them.

Presentation.

On the 7th inst. an affair culminated at South Cottonwood, for which secret preparations had been going on for some time. The teachers of the ward, accompanied by a number of ladies, assembled at the ward house at about 5 o'clock p. m. C. D. Brinton was appointed to take charge of further prochosen spokesman. These prelimi-naries arranged, the party swooped ordinance be passed to protect fruit ceedings, and Richard Howe was down upon the house of Bishep Rawlins and took possession. THE COMMITTEE ON SEWERAGE presented the following report: Your committee on sewerage, to whom was referred the communication of W. H. Sells and others, in relation to the present City Council's policy as to making public improvements, and particularly in regard to newerage, respectfully report that we have given the subject careful consideration, and plaint showed, the objection was well taken.

The demurrer to the complaint was sustained, and E. D. Hoge and his associates in the suit against the Eleventh Ward were allowed time in which to amend their complaint.

Mesars. Sheeks & Rawlins are the attorneys for the defendants, and Mesars. Dickson & Varian for the plaintiffs.

Siven the subject careful comments in the find as follows:

On January list last our predecessors in the office of this city, and approved plans, specifications and estimates therefor, which were drawn under the direction of a special commutes of the City Council, by the firm of Loyrie & Hulls, of Denver, the sanitary engineers under whose supervision the Denver system of sewerage was constructed. These plans your committee have examined and found that the immediate portion of the city provided to be savered thereby, consists of about thirty blecks in the central or mest thickly populated portion of the city.

The estimate of the cost is based upon the assumption that the sewerage originates on an average 120 feet back from the street, and that the possible number of house connections to a block is sixty four.

Another method of drainage is also shown in the plans which is designated the "in terior block drainage," whereby a tier of blocks can join together for a string of street laterals, and each block separately take care of its own drainage by running the same into the interior of the blocks with but one connection with the street. The estimate for this method is as follows:
