MR. KRUGER'S
QUIET SUNDAY.
His Apartments Were Closed to All Visitors.
HE HOLDS DIVINE SERVICES
And Reads the Scriptures—A Member of His Suite Reads a Sermon—
His Plans.

Paris, Nov. 25.—Mr. Kruger passed Sunday with his family at the Hotel Scribe, observing Sunday in accordance with the customs of his fatherland. His apartments were closed to visitors, and he remained within them, indulging himself in perfect rest.

Although the boulevards were alive to a late hour last night with merry-makers singing songs, the Hotel Scribe was cordoned and the revelers did not disturb his rest.

This morning found him quite recovered from his fatigue. After an early breakfast he conferred with Dr. Leyds. There being no church of his own denomination in Paris, he held a private service in his apartments, surrounded by his entourage. Mr. Kruger read a portion of Scripture, and a member of his suite read a sermon. The Boer statesman expressed a desire to have an organ to assist in the singing, but this could not be obtained.

At an early hour free circulation was resumed in the streets about the hotel, whose only guardians, two policemen, stood on either side of the principal entrance. The number of passers-by was not greater than the ordinary Sunday crowd. Toward 3 p. m., however, pedestrians increased and along the boulevard came the shouting and singing boys. Their advent increased the enthusiasm which was rapidly worked up, and the streets began to fill. Cheers for Mr. Kruger began and a cordon about the hotel. Several companies of Republican guards quickly arrived. In half an hour the scene resembled that of yesterday. Responding to cries and plaudits, Mr. Kruger came for a moment upon the balcony, accompanied by his granddaughters.

Again, at 5 o'clock, the tumult was such that he reappeared, but only for a moment.

During the afternoon and early evening there was no falling off in the number of spectators. It was 10 o'clock before the people had sufficiently disappeared to permit the circulation of carriages.

Some manifestations of an important character occurred during the afternoon in front of the offices of the Libre Parole and the Intransigent, but the police quickly dispersed the demonstrators, arresting some who had uttered anti-British cries.

Many cards were left at the Hotel Scribe during the day, among them those of M. Delcasse, minister of foreign affairs, and other high officials of the foreign office.

Mr. Kruger will spend tomorrow morning in conferring with the Boer representatives. The afternoon will be devoted to receiving deputations and prominent people who have made appointments. No decision, it is understood, has been reached as to when Mr. Kruger will leave Paris. According to the best information obtainable this evening he will remain here until Wednesday evening or Thursday morning. It is said that he will go to Holland, not stopping in Belgium, where he may go later on.

TO AID THE BOERS.

Paris, Nov. 25, 3 a. m.—The morning papers suggest various ways of assisting Mr. Kruger's cause. The Intransigent contemplates the formation of an international conference of journalists at the European capitals, with a view of discovering practical ways of helping the Boers.

The Republique is persuaded that if European governments would remind Great Britain that she signed the Hague treaty, good would follow, and that there would be no risk in taking such a step.

PEARY HEARD FROM.

Sends Letter to His Wife from Fort Congo, Lady Franklin Bay.

New York, Nov. 25.—Herbert L. Bridgeman, secretary of the Peary Arctic club, tonight gave out extracts from letters sent by Lieut. Peary, the Arctic explorer, to his wife. She did not receive them, having started to join her husband last August without his knowledge. She was at Disco, Greenland, on August 24th. The letters of Peary were carried by natives to the camp of the Stein party at Cape Sabine, and thence conveyed to Cape York by Dr. Kahn, who boarded the steam whaler Eclipse on June 8th, and was landed by her at Dundas, Scotland, on the 9th inst. Following are the letter extracts given by Mr. Bridgeman: "Fort Congo, Lady Franklin Bay, March 11, 1898.—Just a line to go down to a whaler by returning natives. I arrived here at midnight on the 28th, twenty-four days from Etah. Six and one-half days of this time we were held in camp by heavy wind storms. The doctor and Hansen each left Etah with natives before we arrived here. The journey was a tedious one, owing to the storms, but not an uncomfortable one for me. A number of dogs died on the way, but I had an ample number for the work ahead. Twenty-one musk oxen were killed in sight of the fort the day before I arrived and we have an abundant supply of fresh meat.

"After resting and feeding the dogs a few days longer I shall go on, and the other Esquimos will remain at the fort hunting. I am in good condition, and the journey shows me that I am myself again. If I do my work this spring I shall come back and hasten down to meet the ship and turn back with her. I hope to write again by natives, whom I shall send back from some point up the Greenland coast. Dr. Didrick wishes to be remembered."

The second extract follows: Cape D'Urville, Grinnell Land, March 12, 1898.—I write this note on the chance sent by way of Meville bay. The fall without even a day's indisposition on my part. I have husbanded myself carefully. My feet have given me very little trouble, and now I feel that I am myself again. I am now at the Windward's winter quarters with the rear division. Mott and the doctor are ahead with the two other divisions, on the way to Congo. All but a few of the natives will return at once from there, leaving a few with me. I shall push on from Congo, without delay, perhaps by way of the Greenland coast. I shall strain every nerve and, God willing, shall do my work this spring. I may come back this summer. I send duplicate of this to Cape York for a whaler."
