A committee from Nor-folk visited the flagship Connecticut today to extend all invitation to the men of the feet to be the city's guests Saturday, but Admiral Sperry had gone to Richmond. There is little doubt that the Norfolk invitation will be accepted, however, and that several thousand men will be seen to parade. This will be the first shore leave the men will have. They are being kept aboard ship now in anticipation of an inspection by Admiral Sperry. It is customary each year to make a thorough inspection of each vessel in a command, and Admiral Spetry had planned to make it at this time. It is possible, however, that it may be post-poned until the ships have been dis-tributed to the anavy sards.
