

FOUND A FOOT AND LOWER LEG.

Gruesome Discovery Made Near a
Hotel Barn in Albany,
New York.

MEMBERS WERE IN PAPER BOX.

Mysterious Note Found in a Vest Accompanying the Severed Foot and Leg.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 10.—A severed human foot and lower leg, those of a man, have been found today beside the barn of the Hotel Barn in Albany, N. Y.

The gruesome object was in a pasteboard box with a vest and an empty bottle. The front of the vest was slashed into strips as if with a knife, and in the pocket was a note the first part of it written in English, which said in part:

"Dear Romeo: John Adams was at my place last night, and said he was going to Albany to find you and kill you. Don't launch; you know what you did to his brother."

Coroner Van Gysling of this city has the case in charge and will investigate. The doctors who have examined the foot say the amputation was not the work of a surgeon, and must have been done about four days ago. There is a large Italian colony between Coeymans and Rensselaer and the Italians are greatly excited about the matter, which at this writing is a mystery.

Banks Want Bonds.

Washington, Sept. 9.—Applications from national banks for the retirement of circulation are reaching the treasury department in unexpected numbers and amounts. For the seven business days of the present month the applications aggregate $2,762,500. Under the law only $3,000,000 in circulation can be retired in any one month, and the applications are granted in the order in which they are received.

For several months past the retirement of circulation have been only nominal, and during the refunding period the circulation increased by about $40,000,000. The present movement is accounted for at the treasury department by the high price of bonds, the banks evidently seeing a greater profit in selling their bonds than in keeping them in circulation.

Catholics vs. Typos.

Milwaukee, Sept. 9.—The slogan for what promises to be one of the biggest contentions in which organized labor has been engaged, one with the Catholic church, has been sounded by Father M. J. Ward, of Beloit, who has declared that neither he nor any other priest of the Roman Catholic faith will give an oblation to those who have taken an oath of the International Typographical union. The oath of this union requires that the member's allegiance to his union shall have priority over every other obligation, religious or otherwise.

Father A. F. Schinner, administrator of the archdiocese, said today that Father Ward was altogether justified in making such a statement, and that he would himself say the same thing.

Father Schinner's name is included in the list forwarded to the pope for a successor to the late Archbishop P. X. Keizer.

RUPTURE A THING OF THE PAST.

A Marvelous Discovery Made by a Syracuse Genius by Which He Positively Guarantees Any Rupture
Can Be Cured at Home.

NO CURE—NO PAY IS HIS MOTTO.

Flooded With Letters From All Parts of the Country Which Show Unheard of Cures—A Complete Revolution in Rupture Treatment.

Read this remarkable letter. It is only one of thousands now on file in our office which tell a similar story. You know I am 82 years of age. I was troubled with rupture for over 40 years of my life, which was

CURED OF RUPTURE AT 8 YEARS OF AGE BY THE GREAT DISCOVERY.

So painful and pronounced at times, that frequently I had to get some member of the family to reduce it at night. Inconvenient times of the day so as to prevent my death by its complications. I had heard of your remarkable discovery about five years ago and I tried it, believing it would fall as all others had, but I was ready to grasp at anything. It has now been over four years since I was completely cured and I feel as sound and healthy as a boy. My family and friends can hardly realize that I am the same man.

The above testimonial comes from one of Dr. J. B. Keysor's most prominent citizens. His name and address are on file in our office. This is the most marvelous discovery and invention made in recent years in the whole science of the medical profession. It was discovered by a Syracuse genius. It is so simple that the medical world is wondering that it was not discovered years ago. It makes a perfect home treatment. Absolutely no inconvenience nor loss of time from regular employment. We solicit the very worst cases. The cure is absolute, positive and sure. It is revolutionizing the entire treatment of this most dangerous and troublesome condition. Operations are no longer necessary. There is no quackery, experiment or "snake" about this. It is a simple, positive and proven home cure, in which examinations do not have to be made and one's nearest friends need not know of the treatment. It is meeting with universal success all over the country. Send your name and address to The Electric Co., 1025 Wood Building, Syracuse, N. Y., and they will forward free the complete details of this wonderful cure for rupture. Keep abreast of the times and learn what marvelous progress is shown in this wonderful invention.

THE LEADERS OF THE NEW MACEDONIAN REVOLUTION.

Now that a general revolution has been proclaimed by the Macedonian revolutionary committee Turkish atrocities are likely to be reported every day. The Macedonian forces have been divided into two divisions, the one in the north being commanded by General Zontcheff, president of the revolutionary committee, while the one in the south is led by Colonel Yankoff. Both men are experts in guerrilla warfare. Colonel Yankoff was seriously wounded during the last uprising against Turkish misrule.

WHY TOM JOHNSON IS POPULAR

He is a Regular "Mixer" and Has Ever Been True to His Friends.

Cleveland—A man who knows Mayor Tom Johnson, Cleveland's new mayor, very well, was speaking of how swamped he is with work and callers, and how hard it was to get at him, and he said that if you wanted an hour's talk with him the way to get it was to get him to give you ten minutes and then start the subject of taxation. And taxation, of course, with him, leads in the end straight back to Henry George, and from Henry George in but a short cut to the sentimental side of a character which, so far as external go, hangs out about as few indications of sentimentality as any you might meet. On general principles one would assume that a man who began life as a newspaper boy, and at the age of 46 Mayor Johnson will not be 47 until the 15th day of next July—had accumulated a fortune of $15,000,000 or $20,000,000, would not have had much time to develop sentiment, even if it were latent within him. But there is a sentimental side to him and you get a glimpse of it very quickly when he begins to talk of Henry George. He speaks of him with something more than mere admiration. There is a touch of tenderness in his very voice, which is the tenderness of genuine affection whenever he mentions Mr. George's name.

"He was the noblest man that ever lived," he said in speaking of him. "It was through my father I first met Mr. George. My father had been to hear his lecture, and after the lecture had a talk with him, in which he said, 'Mr. George, I have a son who is a great admirer of yours.' I had been reading Henry George's books then, and had talked to father a great deal about him. So when Mr. George said he would like to meet me I went with my father to his house one night. I said to him, 'Mr. George, I have no way of saying or writing things, but I believe I can make money, and I would like to help you on in your work in that way.' He told me not to be so sure I could not write or speak, and asked me if I had ever tried. I was with him from that time on—all through his campaign for mayor in 1886, during the Dr. McGlynn times, you know. He was a wonderful man. That tremendous mind of his wore out his poor, frail body. It was like putting a 50-horse power engine into a little naphtha launch. One day last week some document in French turned up in the mayor's office, and there was talk of sending out and having it translated, but the mayor said he thought he could read it, and he did read it, and that day one of the evening days through generations in which his men and his women were persons of forceful character who made their mark in their day and hour. Richard M. Johnson, from whom Mrs. Johnson is descended, was the ninth vice president of the United States.

Tom Johnson in spite of the hard knocks he has had and the fierce, aggressive battle for wealth he has made, has a youthful, almost boyish look, particularly in his moments of jovial outbursts which are frequent. His hair is dark brown and curly, just a touch of gray beginning to make its appearance. His eyes are large and gentle without a hint of the grim resolution of purpose there is behind them. His nose is an short but well set well down on his broad shoulders—a thick-set rather punchy man who weighs 225 or 230 pounds. His dress is as plain as his manners are amiable and easy. Black is just now at least, his favorite color, even to his derby hat. The only attempt at gaudy in his attire is in the rather dingy dabs of color in the cravat he wears with his turndown collar.

There is one thing you notice and that is that when you take his hand it is not the strong, blunt-fingered hand that you naturally associate with the type of man he is. On the contrary, it is rather a small and delicate hand with fingers that are tapering and almost slender—a soft and just a little flabby hand and one that the palmists say mean sentimentality and the artist temperament, whatever that may be. But when you get down to the substantial square-toed boots which cover the feet and are not strangers to the tops of the desks when his honor sits down, you find nothing to suggest sentimentality there. They are boots to kick their way straight through all the average run of obstacles that a man finds in his path in the vernacular of professional politics. To be a good "mixer," a genial mingler with the masses, is a great gift for a politician. It will have to be reckoned with in whatever future political enterprises the Hon. Thomas L. Johnson may undertake. As a "mixer" there is not a remotest doubt that he will develop formidable strength. He is a born "mixer," is Mayor Johnson. The other quality he has that counts in politics as in everything else—he sticks to his friends.

Mr. Johnson has a son and daughter, both the children just coming into manhood and womanhood. Mrs. Johnson, a woman of much refinement and amiability, is rather a prominent figure in Cleveland social life, and is much esteemed for her tact and gentleness of character.

He had all the popularity of a man who breaks a sudden stagnation by doing things just at the time when the public has at last made up its mind that things have got to be done. The general attitude of Cleveland toward him so far is one of approval. In some quarters the approval has taken the form of a "Hurrah for Mayor Tom" enthusiasm. In others it is in the attitude of an amused waiting to see what he will do next. The papers contain columns of things he has said or is said to have said, or of exploits he is planning, or is said to be planning, for the future. It is quite generally expected that he will make a bad break of some sort pretty soon, but bad or good, there is a settled conviction that it will be interesting.

That he has got a rather long string of hobby-horses in his stable which he will soon be riding four in a ring, is pretty much an article of faith with many, even of those who are glad he is where he is. On the other hand, there are many more who think that with the presidency in his eye he will keep these steeds under cover.

The late adventures of the Peeries, in bareback acts of this kind, were not of a nature to encourage an imitation performance, and Mr. Johnson is not above noting the direction of the political wind. Not that he is in the least tainted with the free silver craze, for he isn't. He is, and always was, a Democrat of the hard money stripe. Insects about the "unclean increment" and Socialists bug are more in the line in what is believed to be secretly troubling Thomas.

But about one thing there is no shadow of doubt, and that is that he has now of doubt, and that is that he has done more to advertise Cleveland than any man of his generation, and that incidentally he has not gone wholly unheralded himself, and knows it and is glad of it.

"I have had letters from all over this country and all over the world congratulating me on my election," he said, speaking of this feature of his recent skyrocket rush into prominence. "I have had them from England, from France, from Germany and even from Australia. I got the biggest mail I ever had in my life. I go through it every morning before I go down to the office."—In New York Sun shortly after his election as Mayor of Cleveland.

CURE FOR SICK-HEADACHE.

We had a letter the other day from a lady in the town of Boulder, Colo., that should be of interest to people who are troubled with spells of sick headache. She writes that she had these spells about four times a week, was obliged to go to bed and remain there from 3 to 10 hours each time. Had been troubled this way for several years, and the attacks became more frequent. Doctors done her no good, she tried fasting, as every body said it was from her stomach. Seeing an advertisement of Dr. Gunn's Improved Liver Pills, which said they cure sick-headache by removing the cause, she decided to try once more, and sent for two boxes. She said she had taken the last pill more than 4 months ago, has not had a sick spell of any kind for over 3 months. Druggists ask these pills for 25c per box. It only takes one for a dose, they cure sick-headache every time.
