Third, the applicant cannot be required, under the law, to answer any questions except as to the matters expressed, in terms, in the text of the election law. He need not say whether or not he is a "Mormon" or a Methodist, a Jew or an Infidel, a member or not a member of any particular church or society, by name.

Fourth, if a polygamist or a bigamist or person cobabiting with more than one woman should register, he can be prosecuted for perjury. It is not likely that any such person will attempt to register.

. Fifth, if a person who is a monogamist in the full sense of the term, and who is a member of a church or organization which teaches or practices plural marriage (this is in the present tense) as a duty arising from such membership, registers and attempts to vote, he also can be prosecuted for perjury.

The teaching was given orally, in the form of catechising, illustrated by charts. In commencing his work in the class he had great difficulty in flad ing lessons which were adapted to the children of a tender age. He got over the difficulty by formulating a catechism for his own use, and had met with considerable success. He had taken the class through a great part of the history of the Bible, bad taoght them the first principles of the Gospel, also the duties of members, and was now instructing them in the duties of Deacons and Teachers.
