

Senate Committee Inquires Into Alleged Irregular Practises In State Land Office.

SOME TIPS FROM RELATIONS.

George E. Woolley's Dramatic Story Involving His Friend the Accused Clerk Who is Implicated.

This afternoon at 4 o'clock the second session of the special senatorial committee to probe into the land board will be held. As a working basis it, already has a well developed case against Harry Anderson, the accused clerk, who is implicated in testimony given at the first hearing, by George E. Woolley of the United States land office. Woolley's story was dramatic in the extreme, and was the narrative of a friend learning things about another friend that if carried to an extreme would wreck his career, and of an ac-tion taken to prevent temptation be-ing thrown in his way through promo-

At the first hearing of the committee held Saturday alternoon, five witnesses were examined. It developed unexpect-edly during the alternoon that the declaration of Senator Benner X. Smith in the senate resolution giving birth to the committee, to the effect that the land board had refused to do anything, was true only to the extent that nothwas true only to the extent that noth-ing had been done. An investigation had been ordered by the governor, and was waiting for a postponed meeting when Senator Smith's resolution sug-gesting the necessity for drastic and immediate action came up. The land board had been waiting for the arrival of W. D. Candiand, it seems, and of course would have appreciated a chance to do its own house cleaning away from the lime light of a senatorial in-vestigation. vestigation.

WOOLLEY'S TESTIMONY.

WOOLLEY'S TESTIMONY. Harry Anderson was represented by E. W. Schlor and W. D. Livingston as attorneys. Schlor had been subpoended as a witness, but asked to be relieved on account of his position as attorney. The important feature of Woolley's tes-timony was drawn out in a question by Benner X. Smith. "Did you have a conversation with Harry S. Anderson relative to certain lands which are here designated as the Sorensen lands?" "I did," was the anwer, "during the listter part of July." "Please relate the circumstances." "Yes; late in July or August of last year. Anderson was examining our

Anderson told me that he had met his brother-in-law and told him that Mr. Mueller was establishing a summer re-sort in M01 Creek canyon, which would make land in the vicinity valuable, and that he had put him on to it. In addi-tion to what P. A. Sorensen filed on, there was 120 acres left, and Anderson said he would have to take care of this, too. Hans P. Sorensen came in a day or two later and filed on this land. "LOOKED SUSPICIOUS."

trophy he would see that the $50 cash The Garns application was taken up, and it was shown that it had been veri-fied at Green river by a notary stamp dated March 7. The deposit slip showed the money had been received March 19 and was marked with Harry Ander-son's 'O. K.'' Later Judge W. C. Haft on behahlf of Garns had complained that the land had been homesteaded and insisted on paying the balance due on the state entry. He had heard Har-ry S. Anderson say that he had writ-ten to Garns asking about the land, stating that he had thought of pur-chasing it and that instead of answer-ing the letter Garns had sild in and made application. The Garns application was taken up, chasing it and that instead of answer-ing the letter Garns had slid in and made application. During the last few weeks some of the members of the land board had heard of Anderson's alleged irregular proceed-ings and had decided to hold an investi-gation. Owing to the absence of Com-missioner W. D. Candland an adjourn-ment had been taken until next Tues-day. No one had even filed a written complaint against Anderson, and so far as he knew his record was honorable. Mr. Dixon testified that it was the custom for members of the board to buy state land and to select tracks which they desired. He had done so himself in the name of his wife, and he was requested to furnish the names of all members who had made similer se-lections.

He was overruled. In a competition between the freshmen and sophomores as set forth in last night's "News," the latter were victors and in the contest between the DUNN'S STRAIGHT TALK. Edward T. Dunn, a clerk in the United States land office, was the next witness. "Some time prior to Jan. 11 of this year," he said, "Anderson came to the federal land office and sought to homestead a piece of land near Green River, which I knew had been applied for in the state land office by Ephraim Garns of Elgin. Owing to the fact that Anderson had already made a desert entry he was disqualified from home-stead entry." "I told him," continued the witness with emphasis, "that even though he were not disqualified, he should not be allowed to file a homestead entry on that land, because any man who would take undue advantage of an applicant in his own office did not deserve to profit by his acts." seniors and juniors the junior team asserted their rights to enter the final contest. Friday noon at chapel hour the so phomore team, J. M. Carlson and C. Henry Anderson, met E. A. Morgan and Wallace Calder of the juniors for the class championship before a large audience of interested students

President Roosevelt Favors Proposition of Government Leasing Same.

The Chief Question to be Considered is The Rate of Royalty That Must Be Paid.

HOW IT WORKS IN COLORADO.

President Roosevelt, following up his recent recommendation concerning the public coal lands, has sent to Congress a special message further outlining his policy and urging the enactment of laws to carry it out. He advocates, says the Engineering and Mining Journal the leasing of these coal lands, and reservation by the government of the right to supervise their development.

their development. In support of his argument, the president refers to the successful oper-ation of this policy in certain foreign countries. This reference was entirely unnecessary, inasmuch as in our own country examples of such as in our own country examples of such a system may be readily observed. In Colorado, where thousands of acres of public coal lands have been taken up by cor-porations which are at present operat-ing and developing mines, the suite re-tains possession of a certain section (640 acres) of land in every town-ship. In coal districts this square mile of land, generally known as a "school section." is leased to and developed by the operators who control the ad-joining area. The state retains en-gineers who examine the mining oper-ations carried on under school lands, itions carried on under school and check up by measurement the ad-vances of all entries and rooms, thus forming the basis for estimates of the monthly tonnage extracted. The estimates prepared by the state

The estimates prepared by the state engineers are compared with those made by the engineers of the com-pany, and from this comparison a basis for the monthly settlement is de-termined. The royalties accruing to the state from leases on such coal lands amount to a considerable figure. The president, in his message, did not specify the rate at which these coal lands ought to be leased, but sug-gested that the same liberality be ex-tended as has already been shown by the government in its dealings with tended as has already been shown by the government in its dealings with the public. In the meanwhile, the house committee on public lands has reported favorably upon a bill con-forming somewhat to the president's recommendations, which authorizes the president to lease coal lands at a royalty of not more than 2 cents a ten.

ton. The idea of liberality on the part of the government will certainly be car-ried out if 2 cents per ton is to be the maximum royalty. Thousands of ocres of coal lands throughout the United States are being worked today on the royalty basis, and in no instance is the minimum royalty so low as that, so far as we are aware. In most parts of West Virginia the royalties range from 5.5 to 12.5 cents per ton; in Pennsylvania, Kentucky, filinois and Colorado, the average royalty is about 8 cents per ton. In metalliferous min-ing royalties are rarely less than 10 to 15 per cent, even in the case of the lowest grade of ore, such as the zinc ore of the Jopin district, which is worth only about $1.50 per ton at the mines. This it will 1 observed that even the existing custom is decidedly more favorable to the lessee in coal mining than in metalliferous mining, and as everyone is aware, the collier-les exploited under current royalties are in most instances profitable to the operators. If the public coal lands are to be leased, why should the maxi-mum royalty be so low as 2 cents per ton? — Nowever, even that low rate will The idea of liberality on the part of However, even that low rate will produce an income that will show in produce an income that will show in strong contrast with the present pol-loy of giving away these resources. If we consider that the average thickness of the workable coal seams underlying the government land is five feet, and that only 4,000 tons of coal will be produced from each acre, the government will receive $50 in royalties for each acre of coal that is worked under lease, less the cost of administration. Up to date about 30,000,000 acres of public coal land have passed under private control. There is no doubt that a large part of these holdings were acquired by the present owners at a price not exceed-There is no doubt that a large part of these holdings were acquired by the present owners at a price not exceed-ing $2 per acre, and in many cases for less than $1 per acre. It is conserva-tively estimated that the government still controls 20,000,000 acres. As to the amount of land to which one lease is limited (2,560 acres) in the bill before Coarcess, this area is suf-ficiently large to justify the installa-tion of a substantial plant, and since such an area would produce from 6,000,000 to 10,000,060 tons of coal, the life of the operation would extend over a period of from eight to 11-years. The chief question to be con-sidered is the rate of royality. Inas-much as the value of the remaining coal lands is largely dependent upon their proximity to existing or project-ed raliways, or upon their situation in districts likely to be developed by gailways in the near future, it would appear that the rate of royalty ought to take this into consideration.

aid that about one-seventh of the world's population is now under the world's population is now under the green flag of Mahomet, and that the sultan of Turkey aims to become the sole and only recognized head of Ma-homedans all over the world. The speaker made extended references to the killing of Chinese Gorden in the Soudan which was followed by a holy war in which all who refused to accept the Koran were put to the sword. Either one of two alternatives must be accepted at such times, the Koran or the sword, and countless thousands of skeletons were now bleaching in the Soudan as the result of the great war-fare waged in the name of the Moham-edan religion. The Turk is only an intruder in Europe, having gained a foothold at the last of the Hunic wars in the fifteenth century, and he has al-ways been a source of uneasiness and apprehension to the nations of Europe. Dr. Hodgkin dwelt on the wretched condition of woman under Moslem rule which considered them mere chattels. A man can have four legal wives, and as many concubines as the can take care of. He may divorce a wife by his own flat three times, and take her back each time, if he willed; but after that he could only take her back after eine had been married to another man and di-vorced from bim. However, the en-trance of the Christian faith into Mo-hammedan dominions had started a move in favor of the elevation of wo-man, so that the question of "The New Woman" is being widely agitated in Arabic papers. It is being actually green flag of Mahomet, and that the man, so that the question of "The New Woman" is being widely agitated in Arabic papers. It is being actually proposed to raise woman in islamism from her utterly inferior position and condition, to a higher plane. This, the speaker believed, is an entering wedge that will eventually split Mohamme-danism, and effect a triumphant entry of Christianity. Attention was called to the Mosque of St. Sophia which was originally a Christian church, where the signs of the cross remain yet in many places. Roberts college is doing a great work in the sultan's domina great work in the sultan's domin-ons, and women are being educated as quickly as possible. Christians and Moslems can only live in peace to-gether where the former is in control. If the Moslem rules, the Christian can not dwell in safety there.

REV. SIMPKIN'S ADDRESS

Says Revelation Has Been the Guiding Star in All the Ages Past.

Rev. P. A. Simpkin preached a very nteresting sermon before a large audi ence at the Phillips Congregational church Sunday evening, his subject heing "The Increasing Christ." His remarks were based on the statement of John the Baptist, "He must increase but I must decrease." It was a joy to Christ's forerunner to acknowledge that his own star was setting, while the sun of his Master was risinug toward the fixed zenith. "The message of Jesus' life, and the dominance of his ideals, the supremacy of his re-velation and the sure mission of the age to Him, are assured factors," said

Mr. Simpkin. Mr. Simpkin, "Surely as the sun rose this morning to its zenith, so rises the Christ. Surely as sank the sun to-night behind the gray west, so sink all the thoughts of earth that sweep not into the orbit of his life." The reason is not far to seek. Men have never in the age been without revelations from God. From the low to the high have ranged the revelations from Him to the children of men. The far-off con-ceptions of an age that saw only mysterious god of fear and wrath, died out into clearer visions, and Tenny-son's lines sum up the worth of them all compared with the Christ; "They are but the broken lichts as "Surely as the sun ros

F. B. STEPHENS' STORY.

F. B. STEPHENS STORY. Frank B. Stephens was the first wit-ness. He testified that on July 20, 1906, he went to the land office with a couple of contracts drawn up for a client, and showed them to Anderson. He then asked if the land was open to entry, and Anderson, after looking over the books, said it was. A short time later the contracts with the deposits made were returned to Mr. Stephens with the information that the land was not open. The records of the United not open. The records of the United States land office showed that it had been filed on July 23, the land being known as the first Sorensen entry.

"Did you disclose to any one that these lands were selected by you?" "I did not disclose to any one that these lands had been selected."

"Mr. Anderson requested us to pre-pare applications for other lands. That these lands were selected by another before our application was filed. Afterbefore our application was filed. After-wards I found they had been selected by Sorensen. Two or three days after we filed the papers they were returned to us. I did not know the reason for Sorensen's precedence at that time. Sorensen's application was filed be-tween the time I first visited the office and the time of filing the papers, which was some 24 hours."

JOHN DE GREY DINON.

John De Grey Dixon, secretary of the land board, was the second witness. He was kept on the stand a long time detailing the methods of procedure in the land office, and the duties of vari-pus clerks. He stated that applications when received were not dated as it was the custom not to consider them as applications until it had been ascer-tained from the plats of the U. S. land office, that the lands were open to en-try. Harry S. Anderson was entrusted with the work taking the papers over to check up on the plats. Anderson also stoed at the counter to meet the public, and receive applications. Some-times he allowed a number of applica-ions to accumulate before taking them over to the federal land office. Menner X. Smith introduced the two applications of W. H. Dorcher which Anderson had marked "O. K." signify-ng that the land had been found open to entry. Any member of the board the witness explained, could find out the name of an applicant before the thecking up was done at the federal and office, and a filing in that office prohibits the state from selecting the and. Sir James Crichton Brown's Opinion

Sir James Crichton Brown, of Eng-land, at the Congress of the Royal In-stitute of Public Health in London, gave a lecture on old age. He states that if every person should live right and take the proper care, to live one hundred years would be a matter of course.

There is no excuse for feebleness at the age of 50, 60, or even 70. In every person there is a constant change tak-ing place in the system, and just so long as the scoply equals or exceeds the waste, just so long will old age be warded off. When one finds their energies flag-ging, the organs acting slowly and less effectually, the blood sluggish, and in fact "feel old." then there is nothing known to medicine that will restore elasticity to the step, brickiness to the eyes, vigor to brain and muscle, and strength to every organ in the body so surely as our real cod liver preparation, Visol.
