FROM OUR DIXIE.

SHONESBURG July 24th, 1864.

EDITOR OF THE DESERET NEWS:

DEAR SIR:—Thinking it might be interesting to some to learn something of the condition of the crops and other affairs in Upper Dixie, or along a portion of the Virgin, I thought I would pen a few lines, that perhaps you might condescend to publish in your paper.

We have had a very dry season thus far, the old settlers tell me it has been an unusually cold season until about the middle of this month, since which time it has been very warm.

Wheat crops are very good along this river, they will more than average with the Sanpete crops, where I have lived ever since 1860, until last fall. Our early cotton crops were badly injured by the cold weather in the Spring and when they were about to recover from the blight, worms seized upon it and did considerable damage, though at present there is a prospect of from one-half to two-thirds of a crop of cotton; other crops have also been considerably damaged by insects.

We have now good roads to our settlements so that if the Presidency should ever come to Dixie again they need not say, we will not go to Shonesburg for there is no road. Perhaps I may weary your patience, for I am an unlearned writer.

The Citizens of Shonesburg, Rockville, Spring Dale and Norph, met at the latter place on Saturday morning the twenty-third inst., to celebrate the day of the entrance of the Pioneers into Great Salt Lake Valley.

S. R. GIFFORD.

CUCUMBERS AND TOMATOES.

PROVO, August 9th, 1864.

EDITOR NEWS:—As cucumbers and tomatoes can be exhibited at our coming State Fair, I propose to select from my garden a cucumber vine and a tomato vine, each with the fruit on, and if any gardener or other person in this Territory will do the same, and bring his vine for exhibition at the State Fair, with the cucumbers and the tomatoes attached to the vines, if his vines have half the weight of fruit that those have which I will bring, I will pay to the Gardeners and Mechanics Institute, Provo, $100 worth (at Great Salt Lake City prices) of clean and pure Altring-carrot seed, to be disposed of for the benefit of said Institute; conditioned that, if the other party fails of having one half the weight on his vines, he shall pay $100 to the Deseret Agricultural and Manufacturing Society.

My vines are growing on ground from which I have this season taken three good full crops, viz:—a crop of radishes in May, of lettuce in June, and of turnips in July.

C. TWELVES.

In the foregoing proposition I do not include those who are raising cucumbers from seed from my vastly superior kind of cucumber.

C. T.

If br. Twelves' cucumbers are the kind known by some as "vegetable snakes," they are not worth either exhibiting or raising. [Ed. News.]

VISIT TO SANPETE COUNTY.

G. S. L. CITY, Aug. 15, 1864.

EDITOR DESERET NEWS:

SIR:—There is nothing more worthy of observation to the traveling community than the condition of the roads, and having just returned from a visit to Sanpete, I will mention a few places that require immediate attention. First, the bridge over Little Cottonwood, near Kesler's mill, the small one just beyond it, and the one opposite Bishop Caboon's: the planks on each of these are getting loose, and a few hours labor with two or three new planks would render them secure for months to come. The next place when an effectual improvement can be made at a small cost, is on the north side of Provo river, where a few hours labor in removing the large cobble stones would be particularly beneficial to the traveler, and equally so to his animals; then, on leaving Spanish Fork city, there are two streams of water crossing the road, and the banks on each are so abrupt, as to render them difficult to get over, further on and near Pungent Springs, 12 miles from Salt Creek, there is an elbow leading off the main road, where all the travel seems to go, on account of some bad place that needs attention. The last place worthy of remark, is on the county road, on leaving Nephi for the canyon, just after crossing the bridge over Salt Creek, where there are several steep pitches that threaten the traveler with a broken axle-tree, or a summer-set. With these few exceptions, the roads were never in a better condition than at present, for safe traveling, and as President Young, and others, expect shortly to visit the southern country, those whose calling authorizes them to act in the forenamed localities, will no doubt appreciate the motive in directing their attention to the same. A hint to the wise is sufficient.

Those who have a taste for the beautiful, in flowers, shrubs, choice fruits, etc., just call on friend Graves as you leave the city of Provo, and you will find him perfectly at home in that department; further south, at Spring Lake Villa, where only two or three years ago, all was barrenness, now an almost endless variety of fragrant flowers, dressed in every conceivable attire of richest hues and trees laden with fruit of only two years growth. There lives Joseph E. Johnson, whose indefatigable labor and devotion to his garden studies, place him in the foremost rank of our Horticultural citizens. A few miles further, on Summit, lives Abel Butterfield, rather slow, but sure in his operations, he has some of the choicest flavored black currants in the Territory. He has also a large tansery, and fine growing orchard.

The next thing of note that greets the eye of the traveler is the lofty white steeple of the meeting house in Nephi, which can be distinctly seen for many miles before you reach the city. This building when completed will be equally an honor as well as an ornament to the place, and may those whose means were freely donated towards its erection, live many years to worship in it.

Leaving Nephi for Sanpete county, a few hours ride brought me to Uinta or Fountain Green, Moroni, Fort Ephraim and Manti, at each of these settlements, men and teams were equally busy in hauling hay, to be in readiness for the harvesting of grain which was nearly ready. Occasional showers of rain for a few weeks past, had proved a great blessing through the county. On Sunday, July 31st, a cloud burst near Fort Ephraim, and the storm came pelting down in such torrents on the city, as was never known before, the creek overflowed its banks, and for a time seemed to threaten everything with destruction, but being of short duration, and local in extent, it soon abated, and but little damage was done.

Having traveled over the entire Territory during the past two years, visiting over eighty settlements and some of them several times, it is very gratifying to observe the rapid improvements that a few months will develop, in such places where the leading spirits are men of taste, wisdom and enterprise, not only in the erection of meeting houses, good and substantial habitations, planting out orchards and shade trees but in having good fences, and keeping every crossing place leading to and from the settlement in thorough repair. All these combined must certainly tend to render such cities far more inviting to those whose councils and countenances are both cheering and instructive, than where improvements, like angels visits, are few and far between, and where a crossing place three months ago, was very bad and dangerous, is a great deal worse to-day. Such things, however, I am happy to say, are among those that are past, and men appointed now to keep bridges and crossings in repair, are selected for their judgment and determination that the traveling community shall not any longer be jeopardized in life, property and limb by having to cross such dangerous places, as used to exist before they were appointed to office.

The shattered condition of one or more bridges near this city, on the State Road, will of course be immediately made good by expert prompt and enterprising supervisors.

Thanks of the whole portion of community will therefore be due to those whose duties require them to keep the roads in good repair, (and actually do so) and in their behalf I subscribe myself your friend and well-wisher.

GEORGE GODDARD.

WASHINGTON D. C.—We have received a report, from br. Daniel Tyler, of the doings and enjoyments of the folks on the celebration of the 17th anniversary of the entrance of the pioneers into these valleys, but it is too late for publication.

We have devoted considerable space to notices of the celebration of the 24th in the last three Nos. of the News, and cannot at this late day spare room for more. Reporters and others should learn that whatever is of interest to the reading public ought to be laid before them at as early a day as practicable.
