OUTLOOK IN SUGAR INDUSTRY.

Unfavorable Conditions in Cache Fair Output Anticipated in Oregon and Weber.

DAVID ECCLES INTERVIEWED.

July Trial Jurors—Weber Stake Primary Conference—Damage Suit Against Telephone Company.

Hon. David Eccles of the Amalgamated Sugar company, who has recently returned from a trip through Oregon and Cache valley where the sugar company has two of its factories, stated to the "News" representative that the outlook in the sugar beet industry is fairly good, but not so favorable as last year. At La Grande, Oregon, the best growers have planted well this year and their crops look very good considering the cool weather they have experienced this spring, and unless something unexpected should come up to injure the crop there the factory will have a good run, even better than last year.

In Cache valley the outlook is not so favorable, says Mr. Eccles. The weather has been very cold during the spring so much so that the seeds did not take root as they should have done, thereby making the beet crop very backward and in some parts of the valley worms and other insects were very thick, and the beets did not grow fast enough on account of the chilly weather, and the worms ate them. On account of these great drawbacks some of the farmers became discouraged, and ploughed up their beets, and planted their crops on the ground thereby greatly decreasing the company's acreage in that district, and of course the crops being decreased the company will be short on tonnage, and does not expect as successful a run at Logan this year as last.

As to the outlook in Weber county and the surrounding country which furnishes sugar beets for the company's Ogden factory, Mr. Eccles says the outlook is very bright, while we have had some cold weather here and the season has been very backward, the best crop looks very good, and the farmers feel much more encouraged than they did six weeks ago, for at that time the beets in this county were very backward and the best growers were quite discouraged, but the last few days of warmer weather has brought the crop along very rapidly.

The oil took fire, and it was through the heroic efforts of his parents that his life was saved, after he was frightfully burned about the head and face. Then again last year he lost one of his fingers while topping beets.

MURRAY NEWS.

The "News" is delivered in Murray and vicinity from the branch office of J. R. Bartlow, agent every night. Orders for church works and advertisements received.

On Saturday evening last, when the streets of Murray were crowded with people doing their weekly shopping, a curious accident happened. A horse belonging to one of the agents for a Salt Lake business house was hitched to the railing in front of the Murray Co-op, when two young men rode up on a tandem. The owner of the horse warned them not to ride their wheel too close to the animal, but they did not heed the warning. Suddenly the animal became frightened and reared up, making a lunge at the wheel, striking it with his front feet, and knocking it back under the buggy to which the horse was hitched. At that he seemed to see what was up. Suddenly the horse leaped over the railing, and up the sidewalk he tore at breakneck speed. It was a miracle that no one was hurt, as a number narrowly escaped death and injury under his feet.

Mr. Orson Guest and family of Mill Creek left for Blackfoot, Ida., Monday afternoon over the O. S. L. Young Bennie Williams accompanied them.

WANTED TO SPY THE SUN.
Hyrum Wright, who has always been known as an energetic young man, brought a spy-glass, which he sent back east for. Last week he was experimenting with the same, when he thought he would take a glimpse at the sun. "Old Sol" did not seem to like to have the glasses turned on him, as he turned on an extra ray or two into his eyes, and he almost blinded himself. Some time ago the young man went into a store. Seeing a little metal bird sitting on the cigar shop case with its mouth open, he put his finger into it. He jerked his hand back, but alas, it was too late, the cigar nipper had nipped the end of his finger off.

Bennie Williams, who had not had enough fishing during the week, went out to try his luck Sunday. His line got caught in the bough of a tree which overhung the stream. He climbed the tree to unfasten his line, when the limb broke, letting him fall. He landed with a splash into the Big Cottonwood's cold, rushing stream. With difficulty he saved himself from drowning and returned home.

The Wilford ward is building a fine new hayrack to store the titling hay in this season.

The fall wheat crop is all out in head and looking fine.
