

A DASTARDLY DEED.
The statement regarding the outrage perpetrated at the residence of Messrs. Dickinson, Varian and McKay, shortly after midnight on Sunday morning, will be perused with deep interest. This statement, which is accompanied with a feeling of ineffable disgust.

As a matter of course, without the slightest scintillation of reason or evidence, the contemptible deed is attributed by the rapid anti-Mormon press to the work of "Latter-day Saints." This is not a matter of surprise, as it has become fashionable for almost every species of vile act to be laid at their doors. They have been falsely accused of nearly every conceivable crime, including the assassination of President Lincoln, the murder of the late President Grant, and the murder of the late President Johnson.

Not only do we unqualifiedly declare that such filthy and contemptible work is utterly repulsive to the wish and sentiment of the Saints, but we unhesitatingly assert that whoever the perpetrators were, they are essentially the enemies of the "Mormon" community, because such gross conduct could not fail to be adverse to their cause. A man must be foolish indeed who is unable to perceive that such must inevitably be the case.

On the other hand, nothing could have been more opportune for the enemies of the people, against whom nearly everybody's hand appears to be raised, than this.

Reasoning upon the lamentable fact of the outrage, let every man lay this question to his heart: What have the "Mormons" to gain by the perpetration of such an act as that of yesterday? The answer must come like a flash—"Nothing." On the contrary they have everything to lose.

The men whose residences were assaulted in a sally as well as despicable fashion, are officers of the United States Army, and any affront offered to them is an affront to the United States. The conduct may have been, cannot well be separated from their official positions; therefore for "Mormons" to be guilty of such debased baseness would tend to increase the popular hatred against them which they have so much reason to deplore.

The saints have very little reason to desire the reputation of the three men who are principals in this matter in office, in which they have shown unparalleled unscrupulousness—the affair of Sunday morning makes them martyrs in a small way, but little personal expense to themselves, and, owing to the use that will be made of the incident, it will likely have the effect of making their official seats more secure.

The circumstance appears to be quite necessary to them at the present juncture of affairs, owing to certain steps alleged to have been taken for the removal of Mr. Dickinson, which, if effected, would also, in all likelihood, have secured the ouster of Mr. Varian.

The matter of yesterday is also opportune in another way at this time for the persons whose premises were assaulted. It will bring to the aid of those who are conducting the anti-Mormon raid, a good deal of popular sympathy, while it has had the effect of increasing the general hatred manifested toward their victims.

Under cover of this intensified condition, legal and judicial outrages can be perpetrated with greater safety than under a more just situation.

Basing the theory as to who perpetrated the deed upon the hypothesis that it was the work of Latter-day Saints, there is no escape from the inference that it could not possibly have been done by "Mormon" hands, unless it were by some senseless, irresponsible fanatics incapable of ordinary powers of reason.

There are circumstances connected with the nasty affair besides the fact that the anti-Mormons were the only ones to benefit by it, that are suggestive, as pointers to it being a part of the anti-Mormon conspiracy. No effort was made to communicate to the police the occurrence to the police, who did not learn of it until nearly a full week after it had taken place. So far as we can learn also, but little was known of it in the community until well along in the day. This shows that the anxiety to keep the perpetrators in prison, and to have the perpetrators discovered was not a deep or wide.

That subterfuge was so silly, however, and so utterly absurd on its face, that the "suspender buckle tragedy" became a standing joke in the community, and those who made-believe that they gave credence to the fabrication, subsequently dropped it as altogether too ridiculous.

Later there was the villainous Bishop West "Red Hot Address," which was published by the Salt Lake Tribune and sent broadcast over the country to poison and embitter the minds of the people against the "Mormons." That manufactured falsehood, so it afterwards transpired, reached Tennessee, acted as an anti-Mormon frebrand, and contributed its quota toward producing the murder of a number of Elders and Saints a year ago last August.

There is no doubt about it, whose columns were the medium of conveyance to the public of the atrocious lie, afterwards made a pretense of correcting it, by stating that it had been imposed upon, but in addition to the tameness and obscurity of its retraction, the infamy had done its work, and its object had been accomplished.

No more fitting occasion than the present could be chosen for such a scheme. Besides the opening of a new term of Court in this District, during which a large number of "Mormons" will be placed on trial for living with their wives, Congress has been adjourned, and the regular session, and those who wish to bring the "Mormons" to bondage and steal the Territory are anxious to bring every possible influence to bear upon that body, to get it to concede to their political proposition.

Besides all this, sad experience has taught the community that there is nothing too low, vile or contemptible for their enemies to stoop to in the hope of furthering the ulterior object nearest their hearts. Therefore we will cling to the most feasible theory of Sunday morning's outrage, in the absence of direct evidence to make the matter an absolute certainty.

Some of the newspapers throughout the country are now discussing the propriety of placing an embargo upon the importation of raisins from Spain, lest the cholera germ also be imported. It is argued that if raisins can convey the germs why not the pulpy body of the raisin? If the germ will live and develop in the seeds of the ship, why not in the seeds of the raisin?

The raisin is picked in the cholera district, handled over and over again by those exposed hourly to the disease—many of them die of the plague—the raisin is cured in the houses of the peasantry in the cholera districts: the trays are hung in all the rooms and every kind of space is utilized in the house for the purpose.

This is done in houses where men and women have sickened and died of cholera, and it is therefore claimed that there is danger in importing the Valencia or Malaga raisins.

The existence of cholera in Spain and the possibility of its being communicated to this country have aroused considerable discussion and investigation as to the means by which infectious or contagious diseases may be transmitted. Upon this subject we have received a communication from J. H. Raymond, Commissioner of Health, Brooklyn, N. Y., in which he says he is "endeavoring to collect statistics in reference to the danger of communicating contagious or infectious diseases through the medium of raisins, both domestic and foreign."

The raisins used in the manufacture of paper in this Territory are not imported, but of course contagious and infectious diseases have prevailed here at various times, and though the manufacture of paper from raisins has been carried on here for upwards of twenty years we have never heard of disease having been contracted from the handling of raisins here yet. If any of our readers have facts pertaining to this subject in their possession, and will communicate them we shall be pleased to give the same publicity in the interest of health.

A natural ink is found at the bottom of a copper mine at the foot of the Kennebec mountain, in Cobb County, Ga. It is a peculiar liquid of a deep wine color, and when a few drops of nut-gall are added it turns jet-black, and at once becomes ink of the best quality. The records of the county have for years been kept in this natural ink, which neither fades, freezes nor corrodes.

Mexico, that country which is so noted for its revolutions, is likely to have serious trouble on its hands soon, judging from the report that comes from her northern states of rival political factions arming and preparing to effect the ends of their ambition by force of arms. The people in the region of Coahuila are said to be growing more excited every day.

A "PURGED" JURY.
THE GRAND JURY FOR THE SEPTEMBER TERM OF THE THIRD DISTRICT COURT IMPANELLED AND SWORN.
The first business after the opening of the Third District Court for the September term this morning, was the impaneling of a grand jury. The following named persons took seats in the jury box, in answer to the clerk's call:

79 Thomas Davis, 14 Albert Marchant, 20 Wm. A. W. 18 Geo. H. Evans, 159 John C. Lambert, 120 N. H. Clayton, 140 J. G. Davis, 173 George Young, 61 Sam. Levy, 101 Arnold Wall, 189 Jacob Moritz, 154 Stephen H. Ellis, 126 Le Roy Bemis, 76 Wm. Spencer, 72 Geo. D. Nebeker. Thomas Davis was called as a citizen and taxpayer.

Attorney. To the question, "Do you believe it right for a man to live in the practice of unlawful cohabitation?" Mr. Moritz made no reply. Stephens H. Ellis was excused. He believed in the teachings of the "Morning Star." Leroy Bemis was excused, not being a resident of Utah Territory. Wm. Spencer was a "Mormon," and believed in the teachings of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, and was ordered to stand aside.

Geo. D. Nebeker was excused on the same ground. The following additional names were then called: 119 Jas. W. Thompson, 158 Morris H. Evans, 14 Jos. A. Silver, 138 Ephraim E. Ellison, 138 Thomas H. Stephens, 112 James Gilbert. Jas. W. Thompson, Morris R. Evans and George Harrison were all "Mormons" and were accepted.

Jos. A. Silver and Ephraim E. Ellison being not members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, and were excused. Thomas H. Stephens, of Davis County, was a member of the "Mormon" Church, but did not believe in many of its teachings, which he considered false and pernicious. He held the office of Seventy, but had spoken against "Mormon" doctrine, and did not believe the revelation on celestial marriage was ever given, but that the Church authorities were seeking to impose on the people. He would give the grand jury any information that he might have, but did not know that he would voluntarily furnish the names of all who might be available witnesses, and was challenged and excused.

James Gilbert had been a "Mormon," and had been once excommunicated, but the office of Teacher, but had been removed. He believed some of the teachings of the Church were false and pernicious, and that the revelation on celestial marriage had never been given, but that the Church authorities were seeking to impose on the people. He would give the grand jury any information that he might have, but did not know that he would voluntarily furnish the names of all who might be available witnesses, and was challenged and excused.
