MESA CITY, Dec. 21st, 1888.

Editor Deseret News: I have not heard from you for some time, I wish to inform our friends (your readers) we are still alive, and I am happy to inform you that the health of the people in good since our "pestilential visitor" took its departure some two and one-half or three months ago, there have been no deaths in the intervening time.

Since the last of September we have had glorious weather. The highest temperature during September was 108° at noon. The weather during October was somewhat cooler, the highest point of the thermometer being 84°, and the lowest 46°. During November the mercury registered 82° the lowest being 36°. During the present month as far as goes, the greatest degree of heat has been 37 at noon, and the lowest 33 in the morning. These are official figures as taken from a standard thermometer, and show a climate besides, which "Sunny Italy" falls into insignificance. Tomato vines still continue to yield their luscious fruit in great abundance. After the fruit is all gathered by protecting the vine roots with straw they will bear again in May. This will occur four years before the vine dies and green peas will be a Christmas plumage here. We will exchange for a few snowballs, if the denizens of Cache valley have a surplus, they to insure their safe arrival.

On December 18th it began raining and continues at the present writing. Some of the people lost a large amount of hay, as they had just cut their last crop of lucern, being the fifth cutting this year. Rain is a blessing that here for the next three months will be a frequent visitor.

The acreage of land under cultivation in our town is increasing rapidly, as there will be nearly 400 acres of wheat in this winter, and some of the enterprising ones are contemplating orchards of from five to twenty acres.

The Salt River valley, generally speaking, is in a very flourishing condition, the number of acres in grain this coming year will be about 80,000, of which Phoenix and vicinity has the lion's share. George W. Cranson, of your city, has this salt put in 100 acres more of lucern under the Tempe Canal.

The Great Arizona Canal is being rapidly pushed ahead, some 15 miles of it being under active operation the third mile from the proposed dam. It will cost $20,000 and 30 feet on the bottom and 5 feet deep, with 20 feet fall to the mile.

The Mesa Canal Co. gave their canal a very thorough cleaning this fall and widened the canal to 18 feet wide near the dam, making an average of about 18 feet from the dam to Mesa, a distance of nine miles. As the Arizona canal will take all surplus water in the river, it is generally conceded that the smaller canals will not have another chance to enlarge.

It is said the Arizona canal will reclaim 25,000 acres, some of which is being cleared preparatory to receiving water in May next.

Our neighbors in Jonesville also took advantage of time and have a new large and finely graded canal, the surplus, some 15 to 20 feet, of surplus water on one acre, the canal being of the Honduras variety the water of some canals having to be mashed before being required to feed in the mill. This produce commands a ready sale among the Indians on the Gila, of which there are 8,000, most of whom are farmers raising a large amount of wheat and beans, the general trade is one gallon of sorghum for a bushel of wheat. The Indians referred to are 30 miles from here on a government reservation.

The Sacramento of the Lord's Supper was administered. It is General and Local Authority, was presented and sustained by the Church.

There was a Friendship meeting held Saturday evening and much good instruction was given. Conference adjourned for three months.

WILLIAM H. HOLYOAK, State Clerk.

"GIVE THE BABIES WATER."
A recent editorial article in the New York Medical Record contains the following pertinent remarks on the value of water in the treatment of sick infants:

"With the exception of tubercle, no disease is so fatal in infancy as intestinal colic, occurring especially during the hot summer months, and caused in the majority of cases by improper diet. There are many on whom the idea does not seem to have impressed itself, that an infant can be thirsty with out at the same time being hungry. When milk, the chief food of infants, is given in excess, cold fermentation results, causing vomiting, diarrhea with passage of green or yellowish green stools, elevated temperature, and the subsequent development of symptoms which are familiar to need repetition. The same thing would occur in the adult if drenched with milk. The infant needs no food but drink. The recommendation of some writers, that barley-water or gum water be given to the little patients in these cases, is sufficient explanation of their want of success in treating this affection. Pure water is perfectly innocuous to infants, and it is difficult to conceive how the seeming prejudice to it ever arose. Any one who has ever noticed the avidity with which a fretful sick infant drinks water, and makes the early abatement of fever and other symptoms, will be convinced that water as a beverage quencher of thirst, a physiological necessity in fact, should not be denied to this helpless member of society. We have often seen an infant which had been dosed at nausaeum for gastro-intestinal irritability assume almost at once a more cheerful aspect, and rapidly grow better, when treated to the much-needed draught of water. If any prescription is valuable enough to be used as routine practice, it is, 'Give the babies water.'"

OLD IN NEW YORK BUT NEW IN CHICAGO.

As Mr. DeWitt C. Pease, of New York, stepped from a Michigan Central train a few days since, a handsome young lady slipped up to him, threw her arms rapidly about his neck and kissed him many times saying: "Oh, papa, I'm so glad you have come."

Mr. Pease threw both arms around her and held her firmly to his breast. Soon she looked up into his face, and horror stood in her eyes.

"Oh, my! you're not my papa!" she said, trying to free herself from his embrace.

"Yes I am," insisted Mr. Pease, holding her tightly. "You are my long lost daughter, and I am going to keep you right in my arms till I get a policeman."

When the officer came and found Mr. Pease's diamond pin in the girl's hand he said: "That's a new trick here."

"Is it?" said Pease. "Well, it's old in New York."

THAT MELON.

"Father, I see by the papers that Mr. Guild talks of cutting a watermelon."

"Yes, my son."

"Is it a big melon?"

"Rather large."

"And very ripe?"

"Well, pretty ripe."

"And it is good of him; isn't it?"

"Very good—just like Mr. Guild."

"When he cuts it will he give all the boys a slice?"

"No, exactly, my son—not for Joseph? He will simply cut the melon in two."

"And then?"

"And we will with a half under each arm to devour the meat by himself, and plant the seeds to foot the boys another time."—Wall Street News.
