PROVO.

PROVO, UTAH, - NOV. 20, 1891.

DISTRICT COURT MATTERS.

Ryde and Davis Cases Continued—Collins Not Guilty.

The case of the Mammoth Mining company vs Junk county has been dismissed.

The three cases of murder against Captain W. E. Davis have been consolidated for term, as has been also the Hyrum Ryde assault case.

The jury in the case of the People vs Albert Collins, assault on Hyrum Ryde, with intent to kill, after being out an hour, returned a verdict of not guilty.

The First National Bank of Provo took judgment by default against J. E. Bonn, J. R. Rogers, J. G. Howard and T. H. Udall and their wives for $1,400, the amount due on a note.

The following suits have been filed:

Ben G. Raymond and Geo. Sutherland vs Provo Theater company, to recover $250 on a note. The note was the personal endorsement of five directors of the company.

John T. Rich vs D. D. Hoyt and wife, to recover $387 on four notes.

First National Bank vs John H. and B. F. Milner for $420 on a note.

Rita De Cesare vs Union Pacific railway company, to recover $5,000 for personal injuries alleged to have been sustained by plaintiff at Mammoth, whose, Eureka, on Sept. 6, 1892, when a passenger car, in which she was seated, collided with a freight car.

Sales and Personals.

Mrs. George Meldrum of this city has presented her husband with twin girls, aggregating in weight eighteen and a half pounds.

Several of the students of the B. Y. Academy are sick, and Thursday was observed as a day of fasting and prayer in behalf of the afflicted ones.

The old wooden bridge across Provo river north of the city is to be removed to Lake Shore, where it is the future it will assist the people of that burg in crossing Spanish Fork river.

H. H. Cluff, president of the Hawaiian colony in Salt Lake valley, is in the city. The Hawaiians there, he says, have but very little interest in the present difficulties of the Hawaiian government.

PARK CITY.

PARK CITY, - NOV. 24, 1891.

The Week.

The week just past has been one of severe cold and changeable weather. Snow has fallen nearly every day, and at present good sledding is to be had.

Merchants report a pleasing up of business a little in all lines of trade, and with the approach of the holidays they anticipate a very good trade. The mines will pay off here to the extent of a few days, and this alone stimulates trade to a remarkable extent.

The Utah Central is extending their track farther up to accommodate the large shipments of coal which they are now loading for the Anchor and Silver King mines. It looks at present as if both the silver King and Anchor intend to operate all Winter from the large amount of coal which they are storing in the bins.

A special train was run to Salt Lake Thursday to accommodate the many friends of the late J. R. Wright, who attended the funeral. They returned the same night.

Major and Mrs. Penrose, Lieut. Penrose and wife and Mrs. W. H. Bird were visitors during the early part of the week.

Mr. E. Carpenter, general sale agent of the P. V. Coal Co., was in town Tuesday, when he closed up some large contracts for coal with the different mining companies.

Ore Shipments.

There appears to be no letting up in the ore shipments, as most all the teams are busy at present hauling ore to the sampling mill, and the shipments are especially heavy from the Silver King, which is owing to the front very rapidly. No doubt that before long we will hear that the mine has declared a nice dividend. The Silver King sent two tons of ore here each to the Mingo during the week, and the May Flower also sent a ton to the same place. Another one is still in demand by the Pueblo smelters, and regular shipments are being made to them. The Daly and Ontario are reported as being in fine shape for which's work on the heavy shipments of ore are, millions are ready as usual.

Paid Their Assessments.

The advertised sale of delinquent stock of the Crescent Mining company consisting of 500 Mandy but no stock was put up for sale, as the parties in charge came up and paid the full amount of assessment, thus showing that they had great hopes for the mine as a good paying one.

OUR STOCKHOLM LETTER.

Brave Swedish Officers Who Fought Under the Stars and Stripes.—Mode of Communication in King Oscar's Domain.—A Swiss Paper on the Norwegian Consular Question.

STOCKHOLM, November 10.—[Special.]—The Congress of the United States has just sent a model of Swedish trade to the world around and the American Republic, from its very outset, has been indebted for many of its leading and most distinguished men to the Swedish race. Gen. Jackson, the hero of Indian wars, just [illegible]

"Swiss Viggorch," as he is called, has taken himself the [illegible] medal.

Among other Swedish officers who fought in America who ought to be remembered is Colonel Ericsson, who was in command of the Second Delaware regiment in the Civil war. He was a Swede by birth, and was born in Stockholm. He entered the 4th New York regiment as a volunteer, left a ship, and followed the Potomac army marching to conquer Richmond.

June 1 and 2 he commanded a company at the battle of Bull Run, where Hiring been severely wounded in the battle, he was made a prisoner and taken to Libby prison in Richmond. In August the same year he was exchanged, and joining the Potomac army for a second time, he pursued it all the fighting until the close of the war.

After the battle of Hatcher's Run, in February, 1865, he was praised in a report sent out by General Wadsworth, who said that Lieut. was "of the most efficient assistance, was conspicuous along the line and encouraging the men by his own gallant bearing."

Lieut. was also mentioned with honor after the battles of White Oak Road and Five Forks and at the fall of Richmond. He was finally appointed second-colonel in the United States army. At present he is living peacefully on the island of Gotland in the Baltic.

Other officers of the Swedish army, who fought in the civil war and are still in life, are Captain H. Anderson and Captain C. F. Grevelius, both of the Illinois regiment, and Captain C. U. C. Hamerig, of the Halland battalion.

Two men lately participated in nearly all the battles which took place in South Carolina, Florida and Virginia, and Captain Hamberg distinguished himself at the battles of Weldon Rail Road, Poplar Grove, Five Forks, Boydton Plank Road, Hatcher Station, Hightridge, Appomattox and Petersburg. When he left Hamberg for the purpose of returning to Sweden he was appointed a major in the army.

Several other Swedish officers who fought bravely under the stars and stripes in years gone by have died during the last decade. But although these are no more their memory still lives.

Sweden is provided with excellent communications both by land and sea. The highroads are altogether close upon 50,000 miles in length, to say nothing of the many railways and steamboat routes. The railroads are now the chief means of communication. Although they were opened somewhat late here—first in 1855—Sweden in comparison to her population, now owns more railways than any other land in Europe, while in respect to its area the convenient quarter of the country is nearly as well furnished with railroads as France, for instance. The entire length of the Swedish railroads is close upon 8,000 miles, and the state owns rather more than a third part belonging to the state. The gross income amount to more than fourteen million dollars a year. In Sweden we find the only railroad which passes the Polar circle, i. e., that of the state line Lulea-Gellivara.

Communication by sea plays an important part. Along the entire extensive coast is one almost a lively traffic is kept up, as also on the great lakes and the numerous canals. The Gotha and Dalaland canals in southern Sweden are very favorite routes for tourists.

The Kvaser Militaire Safety the prominent military Swiss publication, writes editorially on the controversy between Sweden and Norway as follows:

"In the Scandinavian politics new difficulties have arisen, because the Norwegian Storthing, with the small majority of fourteen votes, says four against fifty, has refused to sanction the very favorable propositions which King Oscar and the Swedish Riksdag have offered as a solution of the consular question. This is a very insignificant majority for a question of such importance, and it is not probable that the great bulk of the Norwegian people will follow its representatives to the extreme consequences.

"As to the matter itself, nobody can comprehend what Norway should gain by a division from Sweden; but, on the contrary, it is easy to conceive what it should lose by it. It would be the ruin of the advantageous trade being united with a country, which maintains its place among the states of Europe, and is able to defend its independence and interests. The demagogues in Christiania could never succeed in making anybody believe that Norway is a "talented nation and King Oscar a despotic ruler."

The co-educational principle has acquired many sincere friends in Sweden, but, still it cannot be said as yet to have made any considerable progress in wider circles, though it is realized in the lower classes of the National school. The question about handing higher schools for co-education has, however, of late been discussed in the pedagogical periodicals as well as at teachers' meetings and at other conferences called together by persons taking an interest in the question. Some schools for co-education have also been established by private people in the capital and Upsala and are working with good results.

The oldest and largest of them is the Palmgrien school in Stockholm which has later developed itself under the guidance of Mr. Hedenius, whose name it now bears. The school, which at the same time attaches great importance to "sloyd," has a state subvention and may be said to have served as a model for the co-education schools of a similar kind. Co-education is carried out as to the qualifying for the university, and hitherto it has occasioned no inconvenience to the girls to keep up with the boys. The school was founded in 1856.

At the closing of the year a committee shall be going to present plans and propose to congress for boys' school at three places, timed in smaller towns, into schools for co-education, where the instruction should be imparted by male as well as female teachers.

Five cases of typhoid fever are reported at Millard, one fatal. Considerable water has been contributed, and drinking purposes.—Mount Pleasant Eyrenet.

A row occurred in one of the saloons a few evenings ago, says the Mount Pleasant Eyrenet, which might easily have been productive of serious results. Two men got into an altercation and guns were drawn. One, however, was a Smith & Wesson, and when pulled "broke" and let the cartridges out. The weapon was used as a club with very bad effect, the other man getting badly cut upon the skull. The case was tried before Justice Clark, Wednesday, and the unfortunate had $25 and $10 respectively.

A traveling man named D. C. Mayberson, representing Price & Co., wholesale tinware house of St. Louis and St. Louis, and with samples aboard and Wednesday night, says the Logan Journal. He was stopping at Mrs. Hearst' hotel and as he left his room to go down stairs, it being dark, he stepped over the stairway into the room, falling a distance of about nine feet. As he fell over the railing he struck on his head, and was rendered unconscious for a while. He was picked up and taken to his room, where it was discovered that he was badly injured. He was able to be up [illegible]
