

Dust in Climate.

Said a friend to us once, with some emphasis, "I detest the climate of Washington." We asked why, and received for answer, "Because there is so much dust in it."

The idea was new to us, that dust could make part of a climate; but in that day, before the advent of the district government, the error was allowable. Dust in Washington, as in San Francisco, is the curse of the locality. Certain unreconstructed winds come up from the South, and meeting certain loyal winds from the North, the two go at it hammer and tongs, and whirl up pulverized continents on every square.

We thought ourselves free of this plague for over a year. It was fast sinking into an unpleasant memory of the past, when suddenly it returned, bad as ever. We have been choked, blinded and made wickered in our blasphemy by the old-time nuisance. The sacred soil is very light soil, and ready for your eyes, throat, nostrils, and ears at a minute's notice.

Of course, as a guardian of the watch tower, emblemized by that on the New York Tribune buildings, we made inquiry as to the cause of this unexpected return. We found that the streets had been cleaned by a company possessed of the necessary machinery, in the shape of huge four-horse affairs with tremendous brooms, that gathered up the dampened dust and dirt with amazing rapidity and success. The nation's capital was the admiration of the world, on account of its smooth, clean streets and clear, healthy atmosphere.

In an evil hour our authorities were induced to advertise for that pest known as the lowest bidder. The lowest bidder with us is generally a man who makes a fortune where an honest man would starve, by not doing the work he has undertaken all others to get. The result might have been anticipated. The cheap work is only an aggravation, and the contractors cannot make it available without loss to themselves. Now, as there is no law calling for the lowest bidder, without regard to the parties making the bids, the best thing for our authorities to do is to estimate what would be a fair compensation—and with the experience they have this is easily done—and then contract for the work.

The streets of our city are so perfect, such smooth, even highways throughout, that machinery is available for the purpose of keeping them free of dust and dirt. Probably this cannot be said of any other town in the country. It is monstrous, then, for us not to avail ourselves of the means that, in result, is not only comfort but health. —Washington Capital.

RECENT MARVELS OF IRON MAKING.—Some years ago there was rolled in this city a piece of sheet iron 1-1,000th of an inch in thickness. This at the time was thought to be something wonderful, and it was sent to England; where, some time afterwards, a still thinner sheet was rolled. Both of these specimens of thin iron, however, are thick in comparison with a sheet that was recently rolled at a mill in this city, and which we have seen. It would require 10,000 such sheets as we allude to to make an inch in thickness. There may be seen at this office still another sheet, recently rolled at the same mill, that is 1-7,000 of an inch in thickness. It is apparently about as thin as tissue paper, is perfect in every respect, and has a beautiful, rich, dark lustre, resembling the smooth surface of graphite. What would perhaps be the most surprising part of the history of these thin sheets we can not give without violating confidence. —Pittsburg Gazette.

Philadelphia gives employment to no less than sixty thousand women—chiefly in exhibiting their spring bonnets on Chestnut Street.

Mr. Leigh Hunt, grandson of the famous author of the same name, committed suicide in London recently by blowing out his brains.

The government admits to being a loser by the new law requiring prepayment of postage on newspapers, sent through the mails at the offices of publication.

It makes one melancholy to think that there are now in Milan three hundred American girls studying singing, with a view to the operatic stage.
