Undertaker Hayes was standing at the time in front of the stable and saw what was coming. He moved out of the way with such celerity that the shower of bricks missed him by just six inches, and saved the young man from practising his profession on him-self. The large hanging sign of the St. Nicholas hotel and cafe swung loose in the wind, and thrashed about the front of the building so as to alarm passers by who got out into the road-way to avoid impending disaster. The sign was finally secured and anchored. Other signs were torn loose and sent scurrying and rattling about the streets.

had been written by her mother, say-ing that a statement of that kind would be too definite. Counsel for the plaintiff objected to a question as to whether Mrs. May-brick had received a pardon from the British government, but the witness nevertheless cautiously replied that she had nears in her possession chose her had papers in her possession given he by the British government. Asked Asked It she were willing to produce them Mrs. Maybrick replied, with equal caution, that they were not permitted to be produced except at the request of the American government

American government. On re-direct examination, which was confined to one question, Mrs. May-brick detailed the circumstances under which she acquired an interest in the property in dispute, saying that at her marriage her mother gave her as a deeded gift, one-third of her property interest in Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia and later assigned the same in writing. The deed and assignment, said Mrs. Maybrick, had been confirmed repeatedly by her mother up to the present day by word of mouth. "That," she said, "is the agreement that now exists between us," and she smillingly left the stand.
