The sign manual of the American consul or officer was required to guarantee to the customs officials at the port of entry that the prices stated represented the true value of the goods in the market from which they were shipped. It is understood that the new treaty accepts the statement of the Garman merchant or manufacturer as the true value and that a consular certificate will be unnecessary in the future. This radical departure gives the dishonest German manufacturer and his Ameri-can agent a great advantage and it is feared that the result will be that the customs will suffer from undervaluation which in the past have amounted to multican effective.

FRENCH MARITIME EXHIBITION.

Briefs of the argument between De-lancey Nicoll attorney for Howard Gouid, and Clarence J. Shearn, counsel for Mrs. Gould, were submitted yesterday to Su-preme Court Justice McCall, and a de-cision is looked for in a few days. This argument took place last Thursday, and was on a motion by Mr. Nicoll to strike out three allegations from Mrs. Gould's bill of complaint.

FRENCH MARITIME EXHIBITION. The celebrion by the French govern-ment of the hundredth anniversary of the inauguration of steam mavigation by the American inventor Robert Fulton is an occasion which may be looked upon with peculiar interest from this side of the occas. And the part which the United States plays in the international maritime exposition formally opened at Bordeaux on May 1, is therefore a unique one. The exposition will contin-ue until October 31. An appropriation of $15,000 was grant-ed at the last session of Congress to enable the government to contribute its share in the nautical exhibit. The department of state, in whose charge the exhibit was placed, requested that its installing be given over to the Smithsonian Institute as the "one branch of the government service which has the experience, special knowledge, and facilities requisite to enable it to arrange for a suitable American exhibit.

and machines requisite to elable it to arrange for a suitable American exhibit of limited extent on the coming occa-sion." Secretary Walcott designated Mr. W. deC. Raventi of the national museum, who has been in charge of the Sattheractor museum, who has been in charge of the Smithsonian and museum exhibit at Jamestown, to collect and instal gov-ernment objects at Bordeaux. The display of the United States, however, is by no means limited to ar-ticles of maritime interest from the na-tional museum. Besides the Smithson-ian institution, under the direction of

The conclusion was reached at the navy department that either on account of the lateness of the hour of the return trip, the Minnesota's launch, in her haste, had been driven hard into the heavy sea that prevailed in Hampton Roads last night, or that the little boat had been run down by some of the giant tramp steamers that make use of the roads as a refuge in fime of storm.
At midnight the following information was received from the Connecticut bearing on the disaster on Hampton Roads last night.
"Launch from the Minnesota lost last night about 12:30 a. m., while returning from the exposition pler. Six midshipmen and the launch's crew of five enlisted men are thought to have been drowned. Caps of two midshipmen were found floating in the harbor tonight. No survivor to sive details. Opinion is that launch was run down by steamer."

ARRESTS EXPECTED.

kane as "contemptible wretches." Judge Dietrich stopped him, cau-tioned him and had the remarks strick-en from the records. Later Atty. Moore said to the jurymen that he "supposed they knew they were being shadowed by secret service men." Again the court ordered Mr, Moore's remarks from the records. Judge Diet-rich said the attorney was going too far. When the attorney said that "he supposed the jury knew that the grand jury was being kept in session for the prosecution who went on the witness stand and did not testify as the dis-trich said it was not within the prosecution who went on the witness stand and did not testify as the dis-trict storney wanted them to." Judge Dietrich said it was not within the probable action by the grand jury. When the attorney had taken his seat the court said that he had had about all that kind of argument that he wanted from the defense, cautioning those who were to follow Atty. Moore to keep within the evidence. He said that the government had seen fit to send a number of federal officials to Moscow to perform certain duties, and just because those duties did not suit certain persons, those certain persons had no right or license to get up in court and jeer at them and defle them, adding that he did not propose either to sit on the bench and see them in-suited. Prior to the noon recess. Atty. Moore ane as "contemptible wretches." Judge Dietrich stopped him, cau-

Prior to the bench and see them are suited. Prior to the noon recess, Atty, Moore had bitterly attacked Dist. Atty, N. M. Ruick, accusing him of suborning Ivan R. Cornell of Portland, Or., to commit perjury by giving the evidence which he did, saying that the scheme was "cooked up" in a room in the Portland hotel. He accused the dis-trict attorney of producing perjured testimony in the case of Wynne Pef-ley, who is a guard for the government here, Atty. Moore saying that in lieu of his receiving $5 a day for his ser-vices, he got upon the witness stand and swore to things that "are worse than jerjury."
